FATE OF DEBT PACT PUT UP TO U. S. BY FRANCE

It All Depends Upon America—Herriot.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, July 10.—With the statement "everything depends on agreement with America," Premier Herriot of France returned to Paris today from the Lausanne conference on the same train with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain.

"If the United States finds the Lausanne agreement good and if a satisfactory arrangement concerning debts can be reached the Lausanne agreement on reparations will be ratified and will come into full effect," he said. "If that is not the case everything is reserved."

That statement exactly presents the situation which has resulted from an agreement among the debtors of the United States. The whole Lausanne agreement is contingent on a satisfactory debt settlement between the United States and the European creditors of Germany, failing which the situation will be legally the same as before the Hoover moratorium.

Forced Issue on MacDonald.

Friday evening Chancellor von Papen of Germany asked if another conference would be held between Germany and her creditors in such circumstance and was assured by Mr. MacDonald that it would. If Mr. MacDonald had not assented to the "gentlemen's agreement," the French premier was prepared to carry the whole issue of the resumption of Young plan payments by Germany to The Hague and what was accomplished at Lausanne would have been delayed for months.

Mr. MacDonald, as he put it himself, would have preferred "to trust America" rather than be put in a position of trying to force her. The whole problem, as he repeatedly said with emphasis was to make a beginning of getting rid of "that huge transfer of money without a counterpart in goods which is largely responsible for the world's present suffering."

How Agreement Was Reached.

He said he wanted to take the step without making Europe's cancellation dependent on the United States. France and Belgium would not take the risk. Hence, the debtors' agreement.

There still are very few persons in France who are ready to subscribe to Mr. MacDonald's statement of yesterday:

"Perhaps the reason why so many budgets are not balanced lies just in this attempt that has been made to balance them by getting the money from other people and so upsetting world trade."

Alarm has already been expressed in France that "the worst must be expected from the United States." Others, however, find comfort in the moral entanglement of the United States as a result of the Young plan provisions and the Hoover moratorium, which linked reparations and debts, and President Hoover's suggestions to Premier Laval that Europe put her house in order.

World Bank Ignores "Joker."

BASEL, Switzerland, July 10.—(AP)—Machinery was set in motion today to carry out the reparations agreement reached at Lausanne. The governors of the central banks at a meeting of the Bank for International Settlements declared that Europe had taken the first great step toward world recovery.

The Bank for International Settlements, as trustee of the German bond issue of three billion gold marks [$714,000,000], which is the kernel of the settlement, is proceeding as if a "gentlemen's agreement," which technically might cause reversion to the Young plan, did not exist.

Gentlemen's Agreement Worthless.

"The gentlemen's agreement means nothing," said one authority. "The Young plan is dead and Europe must act on that basis."

The treaty does not go into effect until it is ratified by the parliaments of the initiating countries—Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan—which, by an unwritten agreement, will not take place until after the United States reconsiders the questions of scaling down the war debts due her from Europe.

Officials were reluctant to discuss the "gentlemen's agreement," which was not made public, but it was understood that a memorandum concerning it was circulated to remind the parties to it of the agreement and that a copy was sent to Germany.

Committees of the proposed world economic conference are expected to begin functioning within three weeks with late August or early September.

HOOVER REJECTS ROOSEVELT AID ON WATERWAY

Asserts Program Is Being Formed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—President Hoover today declined with thanks Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's proffered help to hasten completion of the treaty with Canada to spend 500 million dollars more for construction of the St. Lawrence waterway.

In a telegram made public at the White House the President wrote the Democratic presidential nominee that the negotiations were making headway and that it would be unnecessary for him to interrupt Gov. Roosevelt's vacation cruise off New England.

"While under our constitution international treaties fall within the sole jurisdiction of the federal government," Mr. Hoover reminded the New York governor, "nevertheless the leaders appointed by you and leaders in other states primarily concerned have been consulted during the course of the negotiations."

The President assured Gov. Roosevelt that he would struggle along with the negotiations and advise him when a treaty had been concluded.

Treaty Up to Congress.

"The question of the disposal of the by-product of power which will result from the works which border the state of New York, like all domestic questions of this character affecting the two countries, is reserved by the proposed treaty for purely domestic action by each country," the President's telegram continued. "This disposal is not the subject of international agreement.

"If a treaty is concluded and is ratified by the senate, then the domestic questions which may arise must be settled through the action of both the senate and house of representatives in accordance with federal and state law and in accord with the interest of all the states of the Union.

Urged It for 10 Years.

"You will realize that neither you nor I have authority to enter upon agreements in respect to these domestic questions, but if the treaty is consummated and ratified I shall be glad to consult with you and other governors. I have no doubt that we can make such recommendations to the congress as will be helpful to them in solving the particular domestic problems relating to each state.

"Having ardently advocated for over ten years the great work of completing this shipway from Duluth and Chicago to the sea, I am glad to know that it will meet with your support."

The President added that negotiations had been under way for nearly three years and had "now reached a hopeful aspect."

Roosevelt Gets Reply; Silent.

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt declined to comment at his home here tonight on President Hoover's declination of his proposal for a White House conference to iron out differences between New York state and the federal administration over the pending St. Lawrence power treaty.

The Democratic presidential nominee had been watching carefully all day for a sign from Washington on the President's attitude toward his invitation for the discussion.

The governor tonight was ready to leave here for New York City and Long Island, whence he will set out tomorrow with his sons on a week's cruise in a 40 foot yawl.

MAYOR SUFFERS SETBACK AFTER SEEING VISITORS

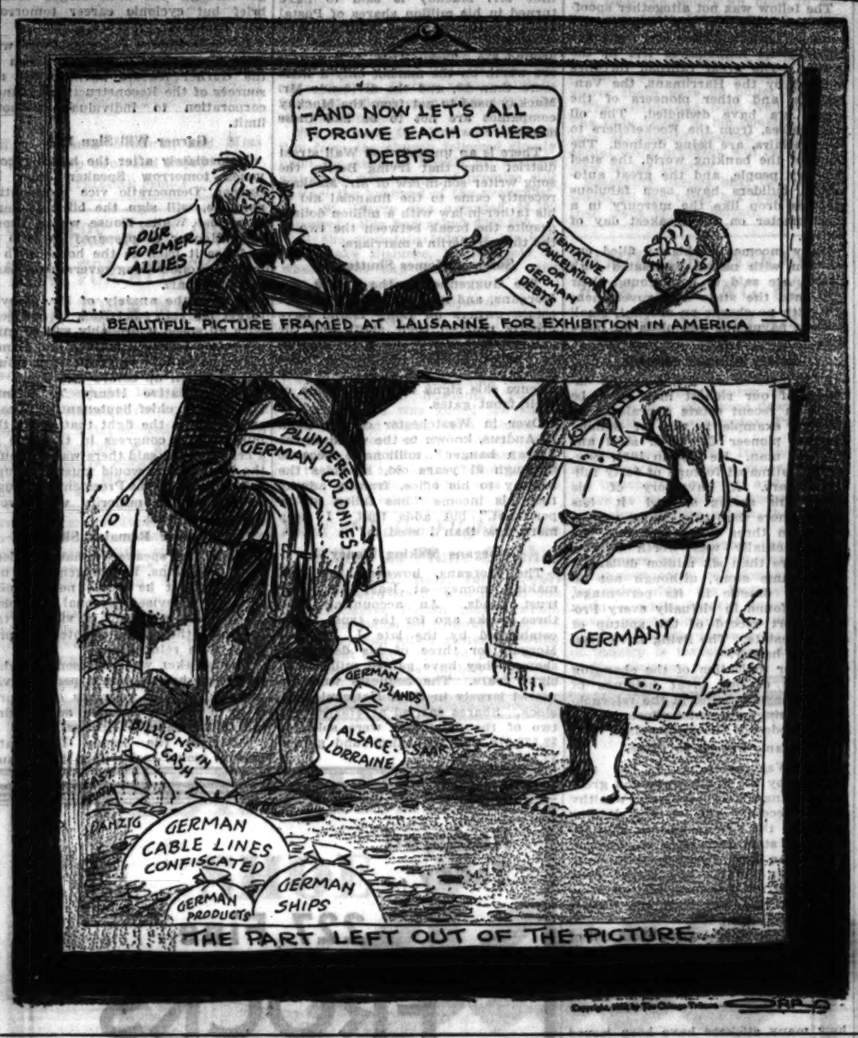
Mayor Cermak, who is in St. Anthony's hospital recuperating from fatigue and illness, suffered a slight setback yesterday afternoon, according to his son-in-law and physician Dr. Frank J. Jirka.

The unfavorable turn was blamed on visitors. Dr. Jirka said that a series of conferences had left the mayor restless and nervous. He added that for the next few days a strict "no visitors" rule would be established.

"The mayor's temperature is normal and he appeared greatly improved in the morning," the physician asserted. "He slept through Saturday night. He cannot, however, stand any excitement yet."

Among the visitors were Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor; Municipal Court Bailiff Al Horan and Benjamin Lindheimer. The mayor received a message of condolence from Max Schmeling, former heavyweight boxing champion, who expressed the wish that they might meet in Germany if Mayor Cermak takes a trip abroad this summer.

A GOOD JOB OF FRAMING



'Apologize!' King's Agent to De Valera

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 10.—James McNeill, King George's governor general of the Irish Free State, tonight demanded an apology from President Eamon De Valera for the shabby treatment, he holds, has been accorded him by the government in recent months.

McNeill said that unless he receives an apology he will obtain his own removal from the office of governor general.

Developments tonight pointed to a complete break in Anglo-Irish relations, already strained by De Valera's attempts to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown and the withholding of land annuity payments due Britain.

Tells of Affronts.

The governor general based his demand for an apology largely upon two incidents. The first occurred at a party at the French legation on April 23, when Sean O'Kelly and Frank Aiken, Free State ministers, abruptly departed just as the governor general arrived and the band began to play the British national anthem.

The second occasion for complaint was during the Eucharistic congress at the civic reception given the papal legate, Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri. McNeill was not invited.

Defying De Valera's express instructions to the contrary, McNeill made public tonight the correspondence which has passed between himself and the Free State president concerning the incidents in question. The first letter was written by De Valera on May 7 in reply to a protest by McNeill concerning the "walkout" of the two ministers.

De Valera said he "regretted" the incident, but added that "further than this I am unable to go."

Wrote Last Thursday.

Last Thursday McNeill wrote De Valera demanding an apology. In this letter he told more fully his side of his treatment at the time of the papal legate's reception. He recalled that the lord mayor had asked for the use of the government's army band. The government, he reminded De Valera, sought to impose the condition that if the band were used, he was not to be invited.

"I do not question your right to omit to ask me to a state reception to the papal legate and naturally did not ask for admission," he wrote. "I have never sought any public honor and am willing to return to private life when my acceptance of public duty is displeasing to the majority either of the dail or the people."

In the same letter the governor general warned De Valera he would publish the correspondence within three days unless he received apologies from De Valera and other ministers "who had some times openly and sometimes otherwise sought to behave in calculated discourtesy to me."

He said he wished to inform his countrymen he had not become a coward because of "the attractions of an honorable office."

De Valera Replies.

De Valera replied to this letter by saying that the executive council was not prepared to allow a precedent to be established by publishing correspondence between the governor general and the executive council.

Yesterday McNeill replied, saying that it seemed the government thought there was nothing for him but silence. He added that "it must surely be evident to you that you and your council are the only people in Ireland who think the course you suggest is honorable. I think only you and your council will be surprised at my decision to have an apology made to me as the alternative of my removal from office," the governor general concluded.

Woman Is Rescued After She Jumps Into River

A gray haired woman, 55 years old, leaped into the river from the lower level of the Clark street bridge last night. Henry E. Hult, 34 years old, 47 South Wells street, dived after her, fully clothed, and saved her. She was revived and taken to the Henrotin hospital. Though she refused to give her name the police believe it is Grace Hinckley, because that name was printed in one of her shoes. She told questioners she tried to end her life because she was "too old to find work."

18 to 17! This Baseball Game Makes History

Cleveland, O., July 10.—[Special.]—The Philadelphia Athletics and the Cleveland Indians played a baseball game here today that will go down in the record books as one of the most remarkable in major league history. The Athletics won, 18 to 17.

The game went 13 innings, twice the duration of a regulation game, and required four hours and five minutes playing time, the longest game in the major leagues in the last eleven years.

Jimmy Foxx, the Athletics' first baseman, hit three home runs into the left field stands of the Cleveland stadium, where no man has ever hit a baseball before.

The two teams made a total of 53 hits, Philadelphia getting 25 and Cleveland 33, for a new major league record. The old record was 51, made by the Philadelphia Nationals and the Chicago Cubs in 1922.

Batting Records Fall.

Players of the two teams were at bat a total of 163 times. The old record was 110, made by the players of the Boston and Detroit National league teams in 1883. Cleveland, by going to bat 83 times, also set a record for the most times at bat by one club in one game. The highest number previously was 66, made in 1883 by Boston and Chicago in the National league.

Johnny Burnett, Cleveland shortstop, established two new records by getting nine hits in eleven times at bat. The previous record for times at bat for one player was eight, established in 1882 by Abner Dalrymple, and the old record for the most hits in one game was seven, set by Wilbert Robinson in 1892. Eddie Morgan, Cleveland first baseman, also went to bat 11 times to equal Burnett's record.

Foxx Gains on Record.

The two clubs tied the American league record for runs scored by both clubs, making a total of 35, a mark equaled several times before.

Foxx's remarkable feat of hitting three home runs where no player had hit one before gave him a total of 33 for the season. Babe Ruth in 1927, the season in which he established the present high mark of 60, had hit only 29 on July 10 and did not hit his 33d until July 26.

For the first nine innings the game was a riot of batting, but after Philadelphia had scored two runs in the ninth inning with two men out to overcome Cleveland's lead, the game suddenly developed into a remarkable pitching duel, with Wesley Ferrell, the leading pitcher of the American league, and Ed Rommel, one of the Athletics' stars, giving a remarkable exhibition of pitching for another period of full game duration.

Libby Holman Will Testify Again Today

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 10.—[Special.]—Evidence tending to show that young Smith Reynolds, heir to the tobacco millions, had enemies who may have sought his death was found today by investigators seeking to solve his supposed suicide early Wednesday morning.

It was learned that during a party at Port Washington, L. I., last summer a pistol bullet was fired at Reynolds and missed by a margin so narrow that his coat sleeve was ripped.

On that occasion his widow, Libby Holman, blues singer of the Broadway stage, was present. A number of other footlight celebrities attended the affair. Authorities are not sure whether the shooting was accidental or an attempt on the life of the youth.

Mrs. Reynolds, practically a prisoner in her bedroom at Reynolds, the home of the couple and the scene of the death of the husband, presumably will be asked to tell what she knows of this shooting when the coroner's jury reconvenes tomorrow.

Married in 1931.

Another element of mystery entered the investigation when it was disclosed that Reynolds and Libby Holman were married secretly at Monroe, Mich., on Nov. 29, 1931. This date was only six days after Reynolds' first wife, Anne Cannon, obtained a divorce. It had been believed that they were married in Honolulu last spring, as they told their friends in May. The date of the Michigan ceremony was given by the actress in her testimony to the coroner's jury yesterday.

Officials at Monroe, including County Clerk Leo Hoffman, confirmed the marriage there. The county records show that the ceremony was read by Justice of the Peace Fred H. Schroepfer. The county clerk suppressed the marriage license. The couple had given the five day notice of intention to wed, as required by Michigan law.

The dark skinned singer bride's action in leaving a dinner party the night preceding the shooting of Reynolds was explained today. Other members of the party said that at 9 p. m. she had gone upstairs with Blanche Yurka, her close friend, an actress from New York.

There was, it was added, no particular mystery in that. Miss Holman was planning to return to the stage in a Czecho-Slovakian play and was reading the lines with Miss Yurka, a Czecho-Slovakian, as coach. She was attempting to perfect her accent for this production.

Authorities would not comment on how this information compared with the earlier statements of Mrs. Reynolds that her mind had been a blank from Monday evening until after her husband's death, with one lucrid interval of a few seconds when she heard Smith call her name and saw him standing, gun in hand, at the foot of her bed.

There has been no statement to explain how the young actress, in protracted amnesia, could entertain guests, play bridge, read the lines of a play and go to the hospital where her youthful husband died.

Deputy at Her Door.

Tonight, as last night, a deputy sheriff stands at the door of the actress bride's bedroom. She has been allowed to talk only to her father, Attorney Alfred Holman, and in the presence of the deputy.

Sheriff Transou Scott and Assistant Solicitor Eric McMichael visited the Reynolds estate today, but refused to tell what they learned.

Young Albert Walker, close friend of Reynolds, who is being held as a material witness, slept again in the county jail. It is expected that he too will be questioned tomorrow.

During the first six months of 1932 the Chicago Tribune carried 99% more furnished and unfurnished apartment-to-rent want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

BANKERS TO SIT WITH BOARD IN FINANCE PARLEY

Economy Urged as the Remedy.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board tonight will begin a new effort to solve its financial difficulties when it holds the first of a series of 10 night sessions.

In the opinion of Trustee Orville Taylor, who initiated the procedure, the matter of whether the public schools will reopen on schedule in September will depend upon the success of these meetings.

The board adopted a $90,180,263 budget for 1932, but has been unable to finance it. It owes the teachers and other employes $20,730,613 to July, and needs an estimated $18,185,000 for salaries alone to complete the year. It owes millions to contractors, coal, supply, and school book concerns. Building of needed schools has virtually stopped because of the lack of funds and 40 concerns have refused to do further business with the board until it pays some of its bills.

Council Demands Economy.

In an effort to meet its $90,180,000 budget, the board requested the city council to pass a 1932 tax levy of $75,398,918 last April, which the council has so far declined to do. Mayor Cermak and the aldermen insist that the school trustees economize as much as the city proper has done, and reduce the tax burden proportionately. Trustee Ernst Buehler started the present campaign for financial solvency by urging the board to reduce its tax levy by $15,000,000. Instead of reducing the tax levy first, the board has decided to reduce liabilities and expense first and the levy later.

"All of the information I have," said Trustee Buehler yesterday, "indicates that the cut must be approximately $15,000,000. I suggested $10,000,000 from the building fund and $5,000,000 from the educational fund, but regardless of the division the board cannot go on creating debts at the present rate and have the slightest hope of becoming solvent."

Bankers Are Invited.

Among those whom President Myers of the school board has invited to these sessions are Sewell Avery of the mayor's advisory committee, Fred Sargent, head of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, and the following bank presidents: Melvin A. Traylor of the First National; Philip R. Clarke of the Central Republic; Howard Fenton of the Harris Trust; James R. Leavell of the Continental Illinois, and Solomon Smith of the Northern Trust. In addition the representatives of the teachers' and union labor organizations of the schools have been invited.

"While I am not insistent upon a particular plan," went on Mr. Buehler, "I think it would be well at the start to ascertain the attitude of Mr. Avery and Mr. Sargent toward the board's financial affairs. Not all of the trustees nor the representatives of the employes know the position of the bankers toward school loans. If the bankers will tell us frankly under what conditions and in what amount they will loan money to the schools, the trustees will then know how much they will have to cut expenses. We will have a definite mark at which to aim in later sessions of the board, and the employes will be informed on what to expect.

"The board and its employes have been sidestepping the facts, refusing to recognize the realities and declining to believe that nearly everybody is in financial distress. I hope we get to that point tomorrow evening."

Want Law Repealed.

The bankers are reported to have said privately they will not lend money to the schools until the law passed at the last session of the legislature, which puts pay checks marked "not sufficient funds" on a par with tax anticipation warrants, is either repealed or declared illegal by the state Supreme court. A test case on this law is now pending, and the trustees tonight may petition the Supreme court for a recess opinion; otherwise there will be no decision until next October.

Another condition made by the bankers is a larger payment of taxes. The bankers are reported to have said that the banks cannot lend, nor sign notes to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for loans, until a larger proportion of the taxes is paid.

A letter from County Treasurer McDonough is expected to be presented to the board by President Myers. It suggests that the trustees might request the school teachers to urge large solvent property owners to pay their 1930 taxes. It asserts that the normal tax collections are about 95 per cent of the taxes levied, while in 1925 the percentage of collections was 91 and for 1926 was 91.4 per cent. The letter also gives the taxes levied and collected for the four last years, as follows:

Year.	Taxes extended.	Taxes paid.	Per cent paid.
1927	$229,193,364	$200,836,387	87.62
1928	219,574,594	181,414,619	82.62
1929	260,544,670	178,433,981	68.48
1930	290,284,505	146,182,297	50.35

The 1927 taxes were paid in 1928, the heyday of prosperity, the 1928 taxes in 1930, the 1929 taxes in 1931 and the 1930 taxes are being collected this year. The amount of taxes levied has increased each year since the depression started and the amount collected has decreased each year.

Hopes for Agreement.

Trustee Taylor is hopeful that the first session will progress far enough to reach an agreement to reduce certain expenses. As a preliminary, a meeting will be held in his office at 11:30 o'clock this morning with representatives of scores of school contractors.

Attorney Roy D. Keehn represents about 180 contractors, and he with Howard P. Savage, business manager of the schools, School Attorney Thomas V. Sullivan, and other school officials will try to reach an agreement on abandoning work on various school buildings. It was estimated yesterday that the contract liabilities of the board on schools under construction total about $10,000,000.

The trustees plan to offer a settlement on the work finished and then cancel the contracts. Detailed figures on work finished were being compiled yesterday by School Architect John C. Christensen and School Engineer John Fowatt. It is reported that the contractors will ask compensation not only for work completed on the job but also for materials bought, as mill work and fabricated steel.

Some Concerns Closed.

By its inability to pay for supplies, materials, and construction, Trustee Joseph P. Savage said yesterday the school board has put many concerns out of business.

All of the trustees are expected to be present this evening, excepting possibly Mrs. Helen Hefferan. She voted against the program at the last board meeting and said that she would not sponsor a meeting where it might be the intention to trim the teachers' salaries. But she may be present to see what happens.

CUBA SEIZES 20 IN SEARCH FOR POLICE ASSASSINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, July 10.—Twenty suspects are under arrest, but deep mystery still clouds the search for the assassins of Capt. Miguel Angel Calvo, chief of Cuba's secret police, and two aides. Ten thousand persons attended a military funeral accorded the three victims this morning.

Of those arrested yesterday and today, 18 were Cubans. Two, Raymond and Archibald Durland, are sons of the late John Durland of Ohio, who came here during the Spanish-American war. His widow, a writer for El Mundo, Mrs. Carmela Herrera Durland, a Cuban, disappeared mysteriously today and police say they are unable to locate her.

Jose Gomez, an alleged eye witness to the assassination yesterday, said that the Durland boys were two of the assassins of Capt. Calvo. Gomez also insists that besides the five in an auto who used a machine gun, three men fired shotgun broadsides into Calvo's limousine from another car. None of the machine gunners has been apprehended.

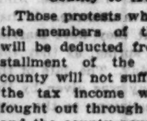
PUBLICATION OF PERSONALTY TAX LEVIES ORDERED

Public to Know Amount of Bills Next Month.

Cook county taxpayers may expect to know how much their 1931 quadrennial revaluation personal property tax bills will be by the last week in August, when the personalty assessments of every Cook county taxpayer will be published.



J. L. JACOBS.

Assessor Jacobs made this announcement yesterday when he said the last of the personalty schedules will be sent from his office by July 20. They have been dispatched by mail at the rate of 20,000 a day since June 15. Each property owner is instructed to file the schedule in ten days.

All to Be Taxed Alike.

The assessor's office has been organized to receive the scheduled returns at approximately 20,000 a day, the assessor said, and if the program continues at the present rate most of the returns will have been placed upon the personal property books by Aug. 15. Each schedule, of course, is subject to examination and change by the personal property experts in the office.

Publication of all the assessments will assure each taxpayer that his assessment conforms to the uniform levied against his neighbors.

Once the assessments have been published the personal property books will be sent to the board of tax appeals where any protests against the assessment may be filed. A hearing will be granted for each taxpayer who protests.

Under the present program in the assessor's office the real estate assessment books for the revaluation will be sent directly to the county clerk for extension and thence to the county treasurer for billing and collection. After the bills for the 1931 taxes, which will be paid in two installments, due March 1, 1933, and July 1, 1933, are in collection, the real estate books will be returned to the board of tax appeals for protest.

County to Avoid Delays.

Those protests which are allowed by the members of the appeals board will be deducted from the second installment of the taxes. Thus the county will not suffer a long delay in the tax income while protests are fought out through the appeals board and the county courts.

The assessor yesterday said that the real estate assessment would not be published until those books are formally approved by the board of tax appeals. After this is done the books will be returned to the county clerk for the extension of the second installment, and then taken to the county treasurer for the second billing and collection.

RENEW LICENSE DRIVE

City license officials will renew their efforts this week to tag automobile owners who are driving without city vehicle stickers since the report of vehicle tax payments shows that $59,861 less was paid in during the first six months of this year than during the corresponding period of 1931.

The collections to July 1 total $4,838,996, as compared with $4,898,857 for the first six months of 1931. If the revenue from motorists is to equal the amount—$5,360,000—estimated in the 1932 budget, $521,004 still must be taken in. The total collections for 1931 were $5,304,134.

"There will be no let-up in our efforts to force delinquent motorists to obtain stickers for their cars," said George F. Lohman, deputy city collector.

A comparative statement showing how many stickers have been issued for various classes of vehicles to July 1 of this year and during all of last year follows:

Class of vehicle.	To July 1, 1932.	All of 1931.
One horse vehicle.....	5,101	6,200
Two horse vehicle	389	1,066
Three horse vehicle	4	8
Motorcycles	558	749
Pass. auto, 25 h. p. or less.	328,732	409,878
Pass. auto, more than 25 h.p.	12,448	13,908
Auto delivery, one ton	21,027	26,245
Auto truck, over one ton ...	17,002	20,284
Demonstrators	1,451	1,502
Transfers	6,008	2,643

In the 1932 budget $4,150,545 is appropriated from the vehicle tax fund for the repair and maintenance division of the bureau of streets.

This amount is approximately 73 per cent of the total appropriations of $5,781,900, other appropriations being made to city departments that aid in the collection and distribution of the fund.

Million Income a Year Is Rare as Dodo in These Times

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—In 1929 there were 513 persons in the United States with incomes of more than one million dollars a year. By the end of 1930 this number had shrunk to 149 and now in the summer of 1932 the folks with the million a year income have become so rare that the species is almost extinct.

"Who are your millionaire traders today?" was the question put to a stock exchange broker.

"I doubt very much if you could find even one," answered the broker. "They have vanished like the dodo bird, and pretty soon we are going to be selling stock exchange seats at the cut rate theater ticket shops."

Vast Fortunes Melt Away.

The fellow was not altogether spoofing, for seats on the 'change are going at bargain prices and there are virtually no millionaires left in the market. The great railroad fortunes founded by the Harrimans, the Vanderbilts, and other pioneers of the steam era have dwindled. The oil millionaires, from the Rockefellers to the Sinclairs, are being drained. The czars of the banking world, the steel industry people, and the great automobile builders have seen fabulous incomes drop like the mercury in a thermometer on the bleakest day of winter.

Many income tax blanks filled out by men with names associated with wealth are said to have found their way into the state and government files with no checks on account, small interest payments, and pleas for more time.

Estate Shrinks Millions.

A barometer of the declining incomes of our richest men may be found in recent estate appraisals. A striking example is that of Samuel Mather, pioneer Cleveland steel and shipping man. He died in 1931, leaving an estimated fortune of forty million dollars. An inventory of his estate this spring showed it has shrunk more than thirty-three million dollars in three years and that the estate actually was worth only a little more than six million dollars.

The same story, although not always so drastic in its percentage, may be found in virtually every Probate court record of the splitup of a great estate. The living have been hit even harder.

Another indication of the changing structure of our great holdings of wealth may be found in the retrenchments being put into effect in the living modes of the millionaires.

Bank Forced to Close.

Port Washington, L. I., is surrounded by the green acres and great stone mansions of reputedly wealthy men. Recently one of the leading banks of the village had to shut up shop and start over. The explanation given was that the pay rolls from twelve big estates had either been eliminated or trimmed to the bone and that this had been the biggest business of the bank.

Near Roslyn, L. I., neighbors tell of a gathering of employes on the lawn of the Clarence H. Mackay estate, the Postal Telegraph head, it is related, spoke for 30 minutes to his 100 servants. He is said to have told them he could no longer pay them wages and that he was preparing to close the 250 acre place in which he and his wife, Anna Case, the singer, had made their home. Most of the servants elected to remain in their cottages without pay, it was said.

Mr. Mackay has suffered a series of physical and financial reverses. Last March he was stricken with a severe attack of influenza and two weeks later while still weak from his illness, he slipped on a bathroom floor and suffered a slight concussion of the brain.

Value of Stock Shrinks.

His financial reverses date back to the merger of the Mackay companies and the International Telegraph and Telephone company in 1928. At that time Mr. Mackay is said to have turned in his million shares of Postal stock for International Telegraph and Telephone shares, then selling for around $75. Today I. T. & T. shares are worth on the market only a little more than $3, and the dividends Mr. Mackay used to get from the Mackay companies are not to be had these days.

There is an unconfirmed Wall street district story that Irving Berlin, the song writer son-in-law of Mr. Mackay, recently came to the financial aid of his father-in-law with a million dollars despite the break between the two at the time of Berlin's marriage.

Summer Homes Shuttered.

The Guggenheims, the Astors, the Morgans, and most of the other large estate owners on Long Island have greatly reduced their staffs and the summer homes of many of the smaller or "stock market millionaires" are tightly shuttered this season with foreclosure sale signs tacked on some of their front gates.

Over in Westchester county John E. Andrus, known to the world as the "strap hanger" millionaire because although 91 years old, he rides the subway to his office, frankly admits that his income "has fallen off 69 per cent," but adds that "I sleep more now than I used to."

Morgans Making Money.

The Morgans, however, are still making money—at least for their trust funds. An accounting filed three weeks ago for the trust funds established by the late J. Pierpont Morgan for three of his daughters showed they have gained millions in eight years. The bequests were invested largely in First National bank stock. Shares carried at $792,000 for two of the daughters were sold for $2,526,076 and the third fund gained $2,196,076.

SEE SURRENDER BY GARNER MEN ON RELIEF BILL

Expect New Measure to Be Passed Soon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—Complete surrender by the house on the Hoover-Garner relief battle appeared certain today.

In a rapid succession of events on Capitol hill and at the White House the hard contested two billion 122 million dollar relief bill is slated to go through the final stages of its brief but cyclonic career tomorrow and Tuesday.

Before congress adjourns there will arise in its place a measure shorn of the Garner feature opening the resources of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to individuals without limit.

Garner Will Sign Bill.

Immediately after the house reconvenes tomorrow Speaker John N. Garner, Democratic vice presidential nominee, will sign the bill and send it to the White House where President Hoover is prepared to veto it and fire it back to the house with a message condemning government loans to individuals.

Despite the anxiety of Mr. Hoover to get his veto edict back to congress with all speed it probably will be midafternoon before it arrives and Democratic house leaders predicted it would not be taken up before Tuesday.

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], chief lieutenant of Speaker Garner in the fight that drove the bill through congress in the face of a certain veto, said there was no doubt the Republicans would muster enough votes to sustain the President, although he predicted a majority would vote against the veto.

Speaker Remains Silent.

While the speaker remained silent about his plans, it was generally understood that he would not attempt to insert a revised personal loan plan in the new relief bill in view of the fact that the senate adopted his program with reluctance.

The speaker was represented today as feeling he has won a personal victory by putting congress on record, if by a narrow margin, as favoring individual loans to citizens.

Whether the house Democratic leaders would insist upon the Republicans assuming responsibility for writing a new relief bill was a question that aroused considerable speculation. It was expected, however, that the Democrats would bring in a bill meeting the President's demands and pass it in a blaze of oratory attacking it as a Republican measure and "class legislation."

TRAFFIC IN PANAMA CANAL SLUMPS; TOLLS HIT NINE YEAR LOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., July 10.—Panama canal transits of commercial vessels totaled 4,506 for the fiscal year ending June 30 and tolls collected amounted to $30,707,377. These are the lowest figures since 1923, when 3,987 ships made the waterway, paying $17,503,414 in tolls.

The last six months of the last year showed a decline of 7.8 per cent in transits and 8 per cent in tolls, in comparison with the first half of the year.

In comparison with the previous fiscal year, traffic showed a decrease of 1,023 transits and $3,938,079 in tolls. In comparison with the fiscal year, 1930, there was recorded a decrease of 1,679 transits and $6,389,513 in tolls.

The record year to date for canal transits was the fiscal year 1928, when 6,456 commercial vessels went through the waterway. The record year for tolls was 1929, when $27,592,715 were collected.

In comparison with these high figures, last year's traffic showed a decrease of 30.2 per cent in transits and 25 per cent in tolls.

The average amount of tolls paid by each ship during the last year was $4,595 in comparison with $4,487 in 1931 and $4,377 in 1930. This increase in the average amount collected has been due to a gradual increase of the size of vessels using the canal.

The daily average of commercial transits during the last year was 12.31, as compared with 15.15 for the fiscal year of 1931, and 16.95 for 1930.

The daily average tolls collection amounted to $85,577, as compared with $87,521 for 1931 and $74,183 for 1930. Taking this last month of June the daily average of transits was 11.20 and the daily average tolls collection was $51,159. The averages for the previous month of May were 11.52 ships and $85,400 collections daily.

REVENUE TAXES SHOW DECREASE OF $873,995,391

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—Illinois barely stayed in the hundred million dollar class in internal revenue receipts for the fiscal year 1932, according to the statistics of internal revenue by state collection districts, issued by the treasury department today.

Total internal revenue receipts from Illinois for the year which ended last June 30 were $106,702,752, as against $190,787,171 for the preceding year.

Receipts for Illinois.

Internal revenue receipts for the First Illinois district, with collection headquarters at Chicago, and the Eighth Illinois district, for which collections are made at Springfield for the last four years are as follows:

Year.	1st Ill. Dist.	8th Ill. Dist.	Total Ill.
1929	$229,154,604	$9,073,160	$238,227,764
1930	238,171,524	8,903,112	247,497,637
1931	183,181,804	7,605,366	190,787,171
1932	101,633,191	5,069,561	106,702,752

Total internal revenue receipts for the fiscal year 1932 were $1,554,233,363, a loss of $873,995,391 from the total of $2,428,228,754 collected in the fiscal year 1931. The 1931 total in its turn represented a decrease of $811,916,978 from the 1930 peak of $3,040,145,733.

Drop in Income Taxes.

By far the larger percentage of loss has come in income tax receipts, particularly those of individuals, the miscellaneous receipts which are derived principally from the tobacco tax having held up comparatively well despite the depression.

This is illustrated in the following table:

Year.	Corporation.	Income tax, Individual.
1930	$1,263,414,486	$1,146,944,763
1931	1,026,592,609	833,647,708
1932	629,663,704	427,278,825

	Total income.	Miscellaneous taxes.
1930	$2,410,359,250	$629,886,50[illegible]
1931	1,860,240,297	568,188,256
1932	1,056,879,336	497,354,033

Another illustration is found by comparing the three years' internal revenue receipts from New York, where about nine-tenths of the revenue comes from income taxes, with those of North Carolina, the receipts from which are derived almost wholly from miscellaneous taxes, or, in other words, from the tobacco tax.

Comparative New York Figures.

Internal revenue receipts from New York state:

	Income tax.	Total receipts
1930	$830,165,461	$928,955,971
1931	614,966,831	672,171,406
1932	340,068,542	394,627,448

Internal revenue receipts from North Carolina:

Years.	Miscellaneous receipts.	Total receipts.
1930	$237,276,186	$274,257,838
1931	249,128,997	262,849,306
1932	219,676,749	231,139,859

Totals of the five central states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin for 1932 and 1931 were as follows:

State.	1932.	1931.
Illinois	$166,702,752	$190,787,171
Indiana	12,367,643	21,431,923
Iowa	6,457,201	10,198,171
Michigan	59,976,835	107,264,830
Wisconsin	16,826,166	28,163,949

New York in 1932 again held first place, with North Carolina second, Pennsylvania third with total internal revenue receipts of $109,395,923; Illinois fourth, and North Dakota, with only $245,479, last among the states.

BROKER INSISTS HE MISLED MISS WINDSOR ABOUT BEING MARRIED

San Francisco, Cal., July 10.—(AP)—In a signed statement in the Chronicle today, Alfred C. Read Jr., young Oakland broker, admitted "misleading" Claire Windsor, blonde actress, "by not telling her I was a married man."

Miss Windsor has been sued by Read's wife, Mrs. Marian Y. Read, Oakland society matron, for $100,000 alienation of affection damages. Mrs. Read is also suing for divorce.

"You can take it from me," Read said in his statement in the Chronicle, "there will be no divorce and no trial of this alienation suit."

BABY LOCKED UP WITH BULLDOG; SUCH A FLURRY!

Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Schlapik of 427 Aldine avenue have a 6 months old child named Miles, a nurse, a bulldog and a lot of good neighbors.

While the parents of little Miles were out during the afternoon the nurse, Miss Florence Jacobs, started to mix some food for him. One ingredient was missing, and she started for a drug store to get it.

She had barely stepped outside when she remembered that she didn't have a key. The door had locked. So she summoned the neighbors. Some of the neighbors summoned the police. Others summoned the fire department. Help came from both sources.

Policemen John Maturi and Harry Schmidt wanted to break down the front door. The bulldog was in the kitchen and they didn't care to go that way. But it was decided to let Fireman Bernard Dorris of rescue squad No. 3 go up a ladder. He went and crawled in a window. Little Miles was sleeping in his crib, and in another minute his nurse was stirring his food again.

THREE DROWNED AS 400,000 JAM THE CHICAGO BEACHES

Mercury Goes to 87; Cooler Today.

Three men were drowned in the lake yesterday as they, with thousands of others, sought relief from the heat at the beaches. A Chicago woman died of a heart attack while swimming in the lake near Grand Haven, Mich. More than 400,000 persons were at the beaches.

The heat which packed the beaches yesterday will lessen today under north to northwest winds, C. A. Donnel, government forecaster, predicted last night. The thermometer yesterday reached a maximum of 87 degrees at 4 o'clock.

One of yesterday's drowning victims was Eugene Coss, 43 years old, 4814 South Elizabeth street. With his roommate, George Kilduff, 49, he was caught in an undertow at the 76th street beach. Life Guard Norman Hines saved Kilduff. Guard Al Schick brought Coss to shore. Kilduff was revived by Dr. Janet Conway, 7645 South Shore drive. The other drowning victims were an unidentified man, 60 years old, whose body was recovered at the 66th street beach, and Joseph Johnson, 25, Negro, who drowned at the 58th street beach.

Mrs. F. E. Lambert, 2550 Smalley court, wife of an oil burner manufacturer, was the woman who died near Grand Haven. She was 60.

Woman Killed as She Falls Under Street Car

Mrs. Florence Huffman, 59 years old, 7648 Perry avenue, was killed last evening when she was struck by a northbound surface car at 77th and State streets. With her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Willey, she was waiting to board the car when she stepped or fell in front of it.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Anna Anderson, 79 years old, died Saturday night in the Norwegian American hospital of a fracture of the hip which she suffered on June 1 when she fell down a flight of stairs in her home at 4325 North Lawndale avenue.

SOLDIERS FACE CIVIL TRIAL FOR ATTACK ON IOWA TOWN MARSHAL

Omaha, Neb., July 10.—(AP)—Expressing his apologies to Mayor C. F. Graf of Stuart, Ia., Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commandant of the seventh corps area, today offered to return for civil prosecution a group of Fort Crook soldiers alleged to have assaulted Night Marshal Harley Rouse there July 4.

Gen. Hagood said he will send an army officer to Stuart tomorrow to investigate the episode which allegedly occurred while 400 Fort Crook troops were encamped there en route to Fort Riley, Minn., to their home barracks.

The Stuart city council has dispatched to the war department a formal protest, charging that Rouse was disarmed and trampled by the troops.

SEEK TO OUST HUTTON FROM ANGELUS TEMPLE

Revolt Follows Verdict in Heart Balm Case.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 10.—[Special.]—A revolt within the congregation of Angelus temple against David Hutton, husband of Aimee McPherson, was brought into the open today when five spokesmen for the dissatisfied faction of the church issued a statement demanding that Hutton sever all connection with the temple. Hutton is business manager of the temple.

Hutton to Fight Ouster.

"More than 50 per cent of the membership of Angelus Temple," the statement said, "think it best for our cause that Mr. Hutton remove himself from all official connection with the church at once."

The demand for Hutton's resignation from the church followed closely upon the heels of Myrtle St. Pierre's victory in her breach of promise suit against the husband of the evangelist. Miss St. Pierre was awarded $5,000 damages. She had asked $200,000.

At the mountain lodge of his wife near Lake Elsinore, Hutton said he would fight any movement to oust him from the church.

Mrs. Hutton Injured.

"I defy them," he said. "Sister Aimee is still boss at the temple and they can't do anything to me."

Meanwhile Mrs. Hutton lay prostrated in the cabin mourning the verdict against her husband. To her serious illness was added the shock of a fall last night. She fainted on receiving word of the verdict. Mrs. Hutton's head struck the cement porch of the lodge and she suffered a slight brain concussion. She was unconscious for 45 minutes.

Pilot of Balbo Flight Fame Killed as Plane Crashes

ORBETELLO, Italy, July 10.—(AP)—Capt. Pietro Ratti, who piloted one of the twelve Italian planes which Gen. Italo Balbo led to South America last year, was killed yesterday while trying out a new type of plane here. His mechanic was slightly injured.

EERIE HERMIT LEADS SCOUTS TO MURDER VICTIM IN WOODS

Media, Pa., July 10.—(AP)—A scoutmaster and his Boy Scout assistant returned from a midnight hike in the woods today with an eerie tale of a hermit with flowing white beard and a cackling laugh who led them to the scene of a murder. The hermit had met the scouts in the woods and bade them follow him, which they did.

The flashlights of Wilmer Brown, 35, and Walter Hawks, 17, flickering on tangled brush and a dim trail through the woods, had first picked out the strange apparition of the hermit, they said. Curiosity overcoming fright, they followed when he challenged them to "see something."

He led them to a spot about 500 yards off the trail, they related, and pointed at three fallen trees, which formed a sort of natural casket. The scouts peered closely and saw the body of a man. Nearby was a revolver. They turned to address their guide, but he was gone.

It took the scouts an hour to find the spot again for the police. Coroner J. Evan Scheehle concluded after an examination that the man had been beaten to death and his body stuffed away there. Despite the revolver there were no bullet holes.

The victim had been well dressed. The only thing in his pockets was a pair of smoked glasses. Expensive dental work probably will be the only clew to his identity.

Searching parties beat through the woods all day today but found no further trace of the hermit.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR SAVING 62 IN LOST SUBMARINE

CHERBOURG, France, July 10.—(AP)—The tri-color fluttered at half staff above the naval base headquarters today for hope of rescuing any of the sixty-two men who went down Thursday with the submarine Promethee had been abandoned.

This morning the Italian salvage ship Artiglio II sent a diver down in the treacherous currents and for three hours he tried without success to detect signs of life within the sunken vessel.

Tonight or tomorrow the Artiglio will return to Brest, whence it came in answer to a call for assistance. Its sister ship, the Rostro, may remain a while longer, but even the naval experts doubt that it will be possible to raise the wreck. A board of inquiry is investigating the cause of the disaster.

ELECTION EFFECT TAKES CONTROL OF LEGISLATION

Now Dictates Everything Congress Does.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—The shadow of the presidential election hangs heavy over the doings of the legislative and administrative branches of the government as congress prepares to adjourn and the political campaign gets under way.

The pending legislation for repeal of prohibition, for provision of nonintoxicating beer and for depression relief deals with matters all of which are leading issues in the election and all of which are being viewed in congress with reference to the effect on party fortunes of action thereon. The question of the reduction or cancellation of war debts has suddenly been thrust to the fore as a potential campaign issue. Even the move for an investigation of the treasury department, federal reserve board, and Reconstruction Finance corporation is tinged with politics.

President Hoover, who canceled his week-end holiday at his Rapidan camp, put the finishing touches today to his message vetoing the 2 billion 100 million dollar depression relief bill which he will transmit to congress as soon as the measure reaches him tomorrow or Tuesday.

Veto to Be Campaign Text.

The veto message is looked forward to by Republican leaders as a campaign document of the first magnitude. In setting forth his reasons for rejecting the Garner provisions for loans to individuals the President is expected to join the issue between conservatism and radicalism, which the Republicans aim to make the paramount issue of the election.

Long before the Republican national convention met in Chicago Mr. Hoover chose this ground on which to give battle to the Democrats. He was convinced that Gov. Roosevelt would be nominated by the Democrats. Gov. Roosevelt has appealed to radical support so conspicuously as to have caused Al Smith to accuse him of demagoguery.

Opining that Gov. Roosevelt would draw to his support in the election all the radical elements of the electorate, Mr. Hoover set out to bid for the support of all the conservative elements. To this end he caused the Republican convention to write the most conservative platform since the Republicans girded themselves to withstand the onslaught on western radicalism under the leadership of William Jennings Bryan in 1896.

Heartened by Events.

The President did not expect to further develop his conception of the fundamental distinction between the two parties in this election before making his acceptance speech next month. But the passage of the depression relief bill, containing the provisions for individual loans sponsored by the Democratic candidate for Vice President, has given him a prior opportunity of which he takes full advantage in his veto message, according to administration officials.

With Republican leaders urging the President to make political capital out of the Garner scheme, Democratic leaders have been no less vocal in charging Mr. Hoover with flopping on the question in order to reap political advantage. They point to his advocacy a few weeks ago of depression relief loans to private enterprise and assert that he did not oppose such loans until Garner was nominated for Vice President by the Democrats and the opportunity was thus presented of damaging the Democrats by forcing the repudiation of Garner by congress as an irresponsible radical.

Miss Opportunity for Reform.

The indisposition of the leaders of either party to move for the submission of a prohibition reform constitutional amendment by congress before the adjournment of this session has called in question the sincerity of the Republican and Democratic platform promises. President Hoover, titular head of the Republican party, has displayed no interest in getting an amendment submitted embodying the modification of the eighteenth amendment proposed by the Republican platform. Gov. Roosevelt, titular leader of the Democratic party, has refrained from urging Democratic members of congress to seek immediate submission of an amendment embodying the Democratic platform proposal of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

In the case of the Democrats the question of the sincerity of platform pledges is raised on broader grounds than in the case of the Republicans. The Republican liquor plan confined itself to advocacy of a change in the eighteenth amendment. The Democratic platform not only advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment but proposed a change in the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages nonintoxicating in fact.

Democrats More Responsible.

Neither Gov. Roosevelt nor the Democratic leadership in congress, however, has taken any steps toward the fulfillment of the pledge in respect to beer. In fact, both Speaker Garner, heading the Democratic organization controlling the house, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Democratic leader of the senate, have obstructed the consideration of the legalization of beer at this session.

Both the Republican and Democratic leaders explain their unwillingness to move for immediate redemption of these campaign pledges on the ground that the party platform, despite promises of "immediate" action, does not apply to the present congress, but to the next congress, the members of which will be elected in November on the platforms of their respective parties.

With regard to the beer legislation, which, unlike the submission of a constitutional amendment, would require only a majority vote, some of the Democrats profess to entertain doubts that the beer contemplated in the Bingham bill is nonintoxicating in fact, as proposed by their platform. Others frankly admit that they are against action on beer at this session, which would deprive the Democrats of an issue in the election. If the country should be given beer now the Democrats would be unable to say, "Vote for us and we will give you beer."

War Debts Thrust Forward.

The war debts issue has bobbed up in consequence of the agreement reached at the Lausanne conference to reduce German reparations to a little more than 700 millions of dollars. By the terms of a secret gentlemen's agreement, however, entered into by the negotiators, the reduction of German reparations is not to be ratified by Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium unless these countries succeed in procuring a corresponding reduction in the debts they owe the United States.

The Democratic platform contains a single sentence declaring against cancellation of the war debts. The Republican platform is silent on the question. All reference to the matter is said to have ben omitted from the Republican platform at the instance of Secretary of State Stimson.

With the pressure in Europe increasing for reduction, if not cancellation, of the war debts it would not be surprising if the question were to become an important issue in the campaign. President Hoover went on record at the time of the Hoover moratorium a year ago in opposition to cancellation of the debts, but he has indicated from time to time that he is not inhospitable to a scaling down of the obligations.

Did He Promise Laval?

At the time of the Laval conference at the White House last fall it was disclosed on the authority of a high administration official that President Hoover had assured the French premier that the United States would "do its part" if the European powers were to scale down German reparations. In amplification it was explained that if the powers by reducing reparations due them from Germany could establish that their capacity to pay the United States had been impaired thereby the Hoover administration would be disposed to reopen the debt settlements with a view to reduction of the obligations.

When congress met in December the President proposed a revival of the war debts funding commission, a suggestion coldly received on capitol hill. Shortly thereafter congress ratified the moratorium, but declared against reduction of the war debts.

Dry Injunctions for Year Set an All-Time Record Here

More permanent injunctions against places in the Chicago area handling illicit liquor were issued in the fiscal year ending June 30 than in any previous period since prohibition, a report compiled by Assistant United States District Attorney James C. Leaton revealed yesterday. A record was also set in temporary injunctions.

Among the places padlocked the record lists every form of dispensing agent, including saloons, breweries, cafés, cabarets, beer flats, and drug stores. During the previous year not a cabaret had been padlocked and injunctions fell off 26 per cent compared with 1929.

A total of 763 permanent injunctions was issued during the year ending last June 30, as compared with 340 for the period ending June 30, 1931, an increase of 55 per cent.

Most of the injunctions, approximately two-thirds, were issued in the last three months of the fiscal year. The heaviest single month was June with 223 permanent and temporary injunctions. The largest place raided was the old Citizens' brewery, 2760 Archer avenue, against which a temporary injunction was issued. Proceedings seeking a permanent order have been started.

Among the places named in the restraining orders were Colosimos, Planters Hotel Oyster Bar, Embassy club, Hollywood club, 71 club, Caruso Italian restaurant, and the Big Oaks café in Norwood Park. By allotting $5,000 as the estimated average, said to be low, for each place enjoined, the dry law injunctions tie up a real estate valuation of approximately $3,815,000.

Several places with a much higher valuation, including drug stores and breweries, will, according to Assistant District Attorney William Parrillo, bring the valuation tied up to close to $5,000,000.

SAYS U. S. IS AT LIMIT AS MODEL FOR SMALL NAVY

Can No Longer Be Pacifist Prayer, Pratt Shows.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 10.—[Special.]—Summing up lessons learned through forty-five years of naval service which has included participation in every naval limitation conference of the last decade, Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, today stated that the time has come when the United States must abandon its policy of disarmament through example.

In an article outlining his policy the gray haired veteran naval student said:

"We cannot go on indefinitely with the idea that if other nations reduce we should follow suit always without a limit being set, nor can we set the pace in reduction by example any longer, for with our military force reduced to a minimum naval strength is all that we have left except moral suasion to maintain our national prestige, dignity, and safety against an aggressor. England has served notice already that she has reached the limit of reduction through example. Nations which live on and by the sea have a limit, beyond which they cannot permit with safety, their seapower to decline."

Hitherto All Persuasion.

Discussing the policy which has governed American participation in disarmament conferences in the past, Admiral Pratt states that with us, the reaching of an agreement has been of paramount importance with national security a secondary factor. He said that at present the United States is turning more and more toward the French thesis that navies should not be reduced beyond the point where they are large enough to guarantee national security.

"The first American proposal," said Admiral Pratt, referring to the Washington conference of 1922, "started on the thesis that the agreement was of paramount importance. The discussions during the Washington conference excluded the consideration of national needs as far as possible and the general conference trend with us is somewhat along these lines.

Home Interests Neglected.

"The American way in conference has been by the direct method of agreement without relating our agreements always to considerations of security. The Washington treaty and the Kellogg pact are both the logical outcome of our line of reasoning. The net result of our attitude toward armaments is that we, of all countries, approach each conference probably with a more altruistic mind than do most other great nations and in our preparations for war we will in all likelihood be in a more unprepared condition than others who live on the edge of the volcano."

Admiral Pratt emphasized that the American policy of not building up to the treaty levels fixed by treaty has shown that disarmament through example will not work. He added also that total disarmament, in the present state of the world, is "foolish."

"No such slogan as disarmament now can be effective except that it brings anarchy in its wake, and revolution and disorder, such as we see in China today," he said.

mentioned as a likely time for the conference, to which the United States would be invited.

MacDonald Is Triumphant.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 10.—In spite of sweltering heat—the hottest day this year—thousands jammed Victoria station to accord Prime Minister MacDonald a great public welcome on his arrival in London from Lausanne this afternoon.

Nearly every member of the cabinet was present, many wearing gray top hats and spruce morning suits, a striking contrast being Stanley Baldwin, who was wearing blue serge, a black Derby and a rainbow necktie.

On alighting he faced a battery of photographers who were denied the use of flashlights as the premier's eyes have been troubling him, and was handed a microphone into which he said a few words of thanks and welcome. To a friend on the platform he remarked, "We've pulled it off, pulled off more than we expected."

The premier rushed off to Downing street and then to Buckingham palace to see the king.

Worn by the strain of the conferences, MacDonald, on orders of his physician, will take a complete rest. He will not appear in the house of commons tomorrow and will leave shortly for a holiday at Lossiemouth.

Berlin Welcomes Von Papen.

BERLIN, July 10.—(AP)—Chancellor von Papen and his associates at Lausanne returned from the reparations conference there today. A large ...owd cheered them at the station.

Tomorrow there will be a cabinet meeting and later in the week the chancellor will report to President Von Hindenburg at the latter's country estate.

Adolf Hitler, addressing a monster meeting of his uniformed National Socialists from Bavaria and Austria at Berchtesgaden, cut a sharp line between the Von Papen government and the National Socialists.

Touching upon the reparations agreement initialed at Lausanne, he said, "The new treaty which burdens the German people with 3,000,000,000 marks will not be worth three marks within six months."

ROB HENRICI'S AS 25 PATRONS EAT BREAKFAST

Four bandits took approximately $1,000 yesterday morning in a holdup of Henrici's restaurant, 71 West Randolph street, without attracting the attention of some 25 patrons who were having breakfast there.

James F. O'Toole, manager of the restaurant, was standing in the doorway when three of the robbers approached him. One put a pistol against his side and ordered him to accompany them inside. At the cashier's desk a second bandit pointed a gun, which he kept carefully shielded from sight of the patrons, at Miss Celia Niemer, the cashier.

At his direction she surrendered several small steel money boxes and the loose contents of the cash register, which he placed in a handbag. The three bandits entered a car which was driven up to the curb by a confederate as they left the restaurant, and made their escape.

WORLD FLYERS INSIST THEY'LL TRY IT ALL OVER

Reach Moscow and Streak for Bathtub.

MOSCOW, July 10.—(AP)—Dirty, weary and disappointed, James Mattern and Bennett Griffin stepped off a train here today, shook hands with a few fellow countrymen and streaked for a bath tub.

JAMES MATTERN.

A little later, with most of the grime scrubbed off, they told of the wreck of their round the world flight ambition in a Russian peat bog, and of their determination to try it again, if not this summer, certainly next year.

"We got a tough break, that's all," they said. "We're going home as soon as we can, but we'll tackle it again—this year, if it's not too late."

Mattern Pilot at Time of Crash.

Mattern was piloting when the Century of Progress, booming over western Russia between Berlin and Moscow, began misbehaving, it was learned. Something went wrong with the stearing gear, but it wasn't serious.

"So I looked around," said Mattern, "and I hollered back to Griff that we were coming down. I knew we could fix things in a couple of minutes, and there was a good spot to land right underneath us.

"Rather, I thought it was a good spot, but you can't always tell when it's dark. It turned out to be that peat bog."

When they landed the wheels dug into the muck and the Century of Progress nosed over with her wheels in the air.

Guess Wrong.

"As soon as she began to sink into the swamp I knew I'd guessed wrong," said Mattern. "I gave her the gun, but it was too late. Next thing we knew we'd nosed over, and there I was, pinned in with the motor jammed up two inches from my knees.

"We were both kind of dazed, but Griff yanked me out and we crawled on one of the wings to recover from the shock. It seemed like we lay there a couple of hours, but it was really only a few minutes before help came.

"It was a blasted shame the ship had to go like that. She was one swell piece of machinery."

GIRL HOLDS UP RESTAURANT AND FLEES WITH $50

A girl bandit who stood only about 5 feet 2 inches tall took $50 yesterday in a single handed holdup of the lunch room of Joe Link at 1567 North Halsted street.

She entered the place, in which six patrons were eating, sat down at the counter, and ordered coffee. When she had finished she drew a small revolver from her purse, held it against the side of a milkman who sat next to her and demanded his money.

"I don't want chicken feed," she said when he produced 75 cents.

At that moment Matthew Schmidt, the waiter, approached and asked her, "Anything else?"

"Yes," she replied, turning the gun on him. "Come across."

He gave her $50 in bills from the cash register. She allowed him to keep the silver in the cash drawer when he pleaded that he needed it to make change for customers. She backed out of the door and ran into a nearby alley.

Bandits Invade Home, Break Up Breakfast Party

Three bandits interrupted a family breakfast party yesterday in the apartment of Dr. Clara Tigay, 3810 West Roosevelt road. Present at the time were Dr. Tigay, her brother, Dr Robert Tigay, her father, Aaron Tigay, and her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Irving Schwager. The bandits gained entrance on the plea that one of their number wished to consult Dr. Robert Tigay. When two of the men produced guns, the women screamed and Dr. Robert Tigay and Dr. Schwager ran out of the building to summon aid. The robbers fled.

JOBS NOW SEEK TWO GIRLS WHO HUNTED IN VAIN

Two jobs are waiting for two sisters, one of whom on Saturday night swallowed poison while despondent over unemployment. The girls are Elaine and Fay Horner, 18 and 20 years old, formerly of La Salle. The man who found the jobs for them is Policeman Bert O'Brien of the Woodlawn station. Neither sister could be found yesterday.

Elaine and Fay came to Chicago several weeks ago and found work in a loop restaurant during the conventions. When the conventions ended their jobs ended also. Then Elaine took poison and was taken to the Jackson Park hospital. Yesterday when Fay called for her she learned that Elaine had departed.

Fay notified police and asked for help in locating her sister. Meanwhile, Policeman O'Brien found work for the girls, but when he tried to reach Fay at 6548 Greenwood avenue, where the sisters had been staying, he found that she had departed.

Dog Track Concessionaire Robbed by Five Gunmen

Five robbers, one carrying a submachine gun, held up F. Silverberg, 519 North Clark street, and his wife at the Governor's highway and the Indiana Harbor railroad tracks in Blue Island yesterday and took almost $1,000 from him. Silverberg operates a concession at the Thornton Coursing club.

8 HELD AS GAMBLERS.

Bloomington, Ill., July 10.—[Special.]—Eight men were arrested and a truck load of alleged gambling devices was confiscated in Leroy, Ill., when Sheriff James A. Reeder and deputies of McLean county raided the Al Henson carnival shows. Those arrested are held in the McLean county jail.

SUSPECTED GANGSTER SHOT.

Clarence S. Stafro, 29 years old, 1603 South Wood street, was found lying wounded on the sidewalk yesterday at 17th and Wood streets. He is a suspected member of the "42" gang, police said. They doubted his story that he had been shot from a passing automobile.

Reveals Lloyd George Wanted U.S. to Remove Gen. Pershing

New York, July 10.—(AP)—Newton D. Baker, President Wilson's secretary of war, has revealed that then Premier David Lloyd George of Great Britain at one time apparently desired the removal of Gen. John J. Pershing as commander in chief of the American expeditionary force in the world war.

In a letter to Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, former liaison officer between Gen. Pershing and the British war office, Mr. Baker wrote that the wartime premier complained the American army was "perfectly useless" to the British forces and was on the verge of asking for Gen. Pershing's recall.

Col. Griscom, now publisher of the Nassau Daily Star, commented in that newspaper "that Mr. Lloyd George failed actually to make this demand was perhaps due to the spirited and masterly manner in which Mr. Baker met the first onslaught."

U. S. of "No Service."

At the conclusion of a dinner in London in 1918, Mr. Baker wrote, Mr. Lloyd George "with vehement emphasis complained that the American army in France was of no service to the British at all, in spite of the fact that Great Britain had stripped necessary empire services of ships in order to carry American troops to France, and that they had scarcely gotten to France before Gen. Pershing pulled them away from the British and took them into his own custody on another part of the line.

"This description was most earnest and vehement, resulting in the final declaration of Lloyd George that, so far as Great Britain was concerned, the American army was perfectly useless and the ship service devoted to bring them over wasted."

Baker Defends Americans.

Mr. Baker replied that, from his own observation on the front lines, he was convinced that the American troops were "at least detaining that many German divisions which might otherwise be added to the concentration against the French and British."

He countered with an offer to discontinue the transportation of American soldiers on British ships and move only such forces as could be carried on American vessels. The premier changed the subject and the matter was not discussed again.

The next morning, Mr. Baker recalled, Lord Reading, former viceroy to India, said, with "diplomatic casualness," that Mr. Lloyd George "asked me to say to you that you should think no more about the matter which he raised for discussion last night at dinner."

NEW YORK CITY SOON MAY LOSE ITS CIVIC VIRTUE

Banishment of Statue So Named Urged.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Civic virtue in the vicinity of city hall is again the subject of acrimonious debate. This time the discussion concerns a marble statue instead of the behavior of the city fathers and to date no Samuel Seabury has been called upon to unearth evidence against "the big boy." He has damned himself.

The big boy is Civic Virtue, the $60,000 fountain piece done in 1922 by Frederick MacMonnies, the noted sculptor, and today the statue appears doomed to banishment from his commanding place in City Hall park. The plaza is to be remodeled and landscaped after the dingy old federal building across the way is demolished. When the work is done city hall, one of the nation's most beautiful buildings, will have an ideal setting unmarred by such unseemly slights as a fat boy trampling on a couple of fish tailed women and some snakes.

Kicks Seagoing Sirens.

The marble gentleman with a stone heart has been engaged in kicking a pair of seagoing sirens where it would do the most good for the last ten years, and the landscape engineers are of the opinion that Civic Virtue can do his kicking in some more remote retreat just as well, and that anyhow Civic Virtue never did belong in City Hall park.

The plans to remove this manly grace elsewhere has brought a number of offers for the "tough guy." Coney Island wants him—and not for a penny sideshow, either.

"If you do not want that beautiful statue of innocent boyhood, give him to us," wrote Kenneth Southerland, Coney's political boss, to Mayor Walker. "We have an eye for beauty out our way. It would inspire us to have Civic Virtue in our midst."

Staten Island Wants It.

Staten island also desires the young woman trampler for a seafront guard against mermaids. The Staten island argument is that Manhattan has a lot of statues and that the ferry borough has a lot of trees. The idea is to swap trees for statues.

Out in the rural regions of Queens, George U. Harvey, the borough president, has been begging for the fat boy statue for three years. Mr. Harvey says Queens needs Civic Virtue and "if there is any chance of getting it I'll make an application for it."

Meanwhile around city hall there are two groups—the Civic Virtue crowd and the anti-Civic Virtue gang. The latter group thinks it would be a swell idea to graft the marble boy to the Statue of Liberty and give him a torch instead of a sword. There is also an element holding that the statue should be presented to an upstate nudist colony. The pro-Civic Virtue crowd, however, whittles toothpicks and continues to point with pride at the big guy.

Like Trade Mark, They Say.

"Like a trade mark, ain't he?" they opine.

"He's a problem anyway you look at him," vouchsafed Julius V. Gurgevin, the park board landscape engineer. "Whether he goes or stays, he is going to cause us a lot of trouble."

Meanwhile Civic Virtue, alias the fat boy, continues his business of waving a short sword as he tramples on two sirens. His fat marble back remains turned squarely on city hall as he endeavors to peer past the Battery into the clean, open spaces of the sea.

Civic Virtue has been accused of almost everything under the sun in the ten years of his life. The rough gladiator has been roundly denounced by women in all walks of life. Anthropologists declare he has the face and body of a moron.

Boys Would Miss Him.

About the only ones who would really miss the big fellow are the east side boys and girls who use the fountain basin for a swimming pool on hot days. They would hate to see him move to the country.

Civic Virtue was made possible by a bequest from Angelina Crane, who died in 1891. He has been a storm center for protests since he moved in ten years ago.

The symbolism of the statue, according to Mr. MacMonnies, its creator, was to create the idea that "those who govern the city's destiny are strong to uphold the law of right . . . and that the lure of pleasure and luxury cannot turn them aside from the straight path into devious ways. . . . These lovely sea women suggest temptation, but he steps out triumphantly and places a foot on a firm rock."

To the critics, however, Civic Virtue has been and always will be just brutal male with his big feet planted on the soft bodies of helpless women.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY FOUND.

The body of an unidentified man about 50 years old was found yesterday on a bluff overlooking the lake at Lakewood drive, Highland Park. Apparently the man had died of heart disease.

CIVIC VIRTUE TO GO

Statue in New York City Hall park which is to be removed. It has been the subject of much criticism and been referred to as "Fat Boy," "Baby Face," and "Rough Guy." A fountain at its base was regarded with favor by New York newsboys. [Associated Press Photo.]

STUDENTS RIOT IN SHANGHAI FOR RED PRISONERS

Demand Release of 2 Accused Agitators.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 10.—Twenty-six men and women students were arrested here today for communist demonstrations in behalf of Paul Noulens and his wife, foreign communists, who are being tried at Nanking on charges of attempting to overthrow the Chinese National government.

The demonstrations were accompanied by a distribution of leaflets demanding the release of the defendants. Police succeeded in restoring order.

Have Many Aliases.

The Noulens couple, who are known under many aliases, claim to be of Swiss nationality. They came here a year ago as members of the secretariat of the Pan-Pacific Trade Union congress, a subsidiary of the Third International.

Their activities were disclosed through the arrest of a French communist at Singapore. Documents seized indicated that the Noulens were plotting with Chinese Reds in Kiangsi and elsewhere in the interior to overthrow the Nanking government.

Jailed for Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Noulens were held in jail at Soochow and Nanking for practically a year. Their trial started last week, but both protested the jurisdiction of the Nanking court and demanded trial at Shanghai, where the appearance of a foreign lawyer is permissible. The Chinese court insisted on trial in Nanking, whereupon the Noulens resorted to a hunger strike, which lasted six days and continued until both were taken to a hospital in a weakened condition.

The National government has been bombarded with telegrams from communist sympathizers in America and Europe demanding the Noulens' release, while Red student groups have staged demonstrations in various parts of China. In one riot at Paotingfu ten students were killed.

50 DIE IN BLAST OF AMMUNITION; NANKING JARRED

Death List Is Likely to Be Much Greater.

NANKING, China, July 10.—(AP)—Shortly before noon today an ammunition storage depot on the outskirts of Nanking caught fire and exploded with a blast which jarred the city. Probably 50 or more persons were killed.

Persons living in the immediate vicinity were panic stricken and it was some time before fire fighting apparatus was brought into action.

By then the flames had spread and smaller explosions came at intervals. It was impossible for any one to get close enough to what remained of the arsenal to determine how many had perished.

It seemed certain that a guard of forty soldiers had been killed in the first blast and the fire which started immediately afterward.

The ammunition depot was blown to bits and a police station nearby also was wrecked. This frightened inhabitants of the area, fleeing in panic, headed for the river and it was feared that many of them drowned.

Although conservative estimates placed the number of dead at fifty it seemed likely that twice that number had died.

Nurse Dies of Hysteria Caused by Auto Collision

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Uninjured physically, Miss Elsie Cob, 23, a nurse at the Creedmore state hospital, died today of an attack of hysteria brought on when the automobile in which she was riding was in collision with another car in Queens.

GOVERNOR MAY ACT TODAY ON SPECIAL SESSION

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson may determine today whether the Illinois general assembly will be called into its fourth special session for 1932 to meet the unemployment problem of the state.

William H. Sexton, Mayor Cermak's mouthpiece in such matters as corporation counsel, announced yesterday that the decision whether the governor will be urged to summon a fourth extraordinary session will be considered at a meeting this afternoon of the members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission which will include Speaker David E. Shanahan and Senator Richard J. Barr, president pro tem of the upper house of the assembly.

"Chairman E. L. Ryerson Jr. is still in Washington, watching the situation there," said Mr. Sexton, "but apparently another session of the assembly is necessary. We must act at once."

BRAZIL REBELS CAPTURE STATE CAPITAL, REPORT

Insurgents Defeat Troops in Battle.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, July 11 (Monday).—A dispatch received direct from the city of Sao Paulo, Brazil, today said that government troops, sent to quell the revolt, have joined the insurgent forces.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 10.—The government of the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil, was overthrown in an armed uprising in the City of Sao Paulo, the capital of that state, late today, according to dispatches received here. It is believed here that the rebel success will result in the fall of Provisional President Getulio Vargas of Brazil.

Col. Filgueria, first reports said, led the insurgents in battle against troops loyal to the national interventor, Flores da Cunha. Later reports said the rebels had disarmed civil authorities and declared a state of siege. A tight censorship has been ordered in Brazil.

The leaders of the revolutionary movement are demanding the return of constitutional government in the republic. The uprising is expected to have the support of the states of Rio Grande do Sul and Minas Geraes.

Dr. Vargas assumed the presidency Nov. 3, 1930, after a military uprising. Representative assemblies were dissolved at that time. Last May President Vargas signed a decree setting May, 1933, for election of new state assemblies.

Government Admits Revolt.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, July 10.—(AP)—A seditious movement in the city of Sao Paulo, supported by two corps of the army garrison there, was reported by the government today. Forces were sent to quell the rebellion, which was reported to be confined to the city. The rebels were isolated, without hope of reinforcements, the government announced.

Shell Peruvian Rebels.

LIMA, Peru, July 10.—(AP)—An artillery attack on fleeing rebels in northern Peru was reported in dispatches today. The revolutionaries had attacked the Madrugada jail, slaying a number of politicians and military officials.

"The capture of Trujillo is impending," said an official statement today. The federal advance on Trujillo was protected by an airplane squadron. Reinforcements to cut off the rebels' retreat were requested by Tayabamba officials.

Federal troops were landed at Salaverry yesterday and airplanes bombed Trujillo with missiles and circulars advising the rebels to surrender.

Ibanez Again Refugee.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 10.—Former President Carlos Ibanez, who came home from exile in Argentina last week, was a refugee again today after what appears to have been a vain attempt to seize power.

Col. Ibanez, according to available information, tried, with the aid of certain army groups, to overthrow the socialist régime of Carlos G. Davila, but the strength of his support did not come up to expectations. The fallen dictator therefore was forced to take refuge in a garrison which was friendly to him.

Under pressure of officials of the Davila régime, however, Ibanez decided to leave the capital within fifteen minutes after receiving notice to do so. He departed for the south in a motor car and is understood to be at his farm near Rancagua.

TORNADO SWEEPS THROUGH INDIANA AND OHIO

Akron Suburb Hit

Akron, O., July 10.—(AP)—Windstorms struck Summit county with tornado force late today, laying waste the residential section of Mogadore, a village of 2,500 seven miles east of here, and doing widespread property damage in Goodyear Heights, an eastern Akron suburb.

At least half a dozen persons suffered injuries at Mogadore, one of them believed to be critically hurt. One woman was cut by flying slate at Akron.

The business district of Mogadore escaped damage, but in the residential section virtually all trees were uprooted or blown down and a dozen houses ripped from their foundations.

Film Director's Butler Found Slain; Gun Nearby

Los Angeles, Cal., July 10.—(AP)—A theory of suicide was given credence today by detectives investigating the death of Albert L. Erlacher, butler for George Fitzmaurice, film director. No arrests were made. Erlacher was found shot through the heart in the main entrance of the Fitzmaurice mansion at Bel Air late last night. At his feet lay a revolver, wrapped in a dish towel.

Hempstead, L. I., July 10.—[Special.]—Sixty Kentucky bred saddle horses were burned to death shortly before daybreak today in a fire that destroyed the Hempstead Riding academy on Mill road, Hempstead.

MAYOR HAGUE TO CAMPAIGN FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, floor leader for former Gov. Alfred E. Smith at the Democratic national convention and head of the group that tried unsuccessfully to block the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, will give Gov. Roosevelt active and loyal support. Despite his prediction at the convention that Gov. Roosevelt, if nominated, could not be elected and could not carry any state in the east, a prediction now explained as having been made solely for political purposes, Mr. Hague with the aid of the Democratic organization now expects to carry New Jersey for Roosevelt and will make every effort to do so.

This became known today when it was learned that in addition to ratification of the Roosevelt and Garner ticket by the Hudson county Democratic organization at a meeting tomorrow, Mr. Hague plans to have a state wide ratification at a Roosevelt da at Sea Girt about the middle of August.

It is expected that Gov. Roosevelt will be present on this occasion and it is the intention of Mayor Hague and his associates to make Roosevelt da in New Jersey this year even more of a demonstration than was Smith d-y in 1928.

ACT TO PREVENT ABUSE OF PUBLIC DEFENDER PLAN

Judges Agree Those Who Can Must Pay.

The public defender system in the Criminal courts is to be protected in the future against the criminals who, although able to pay, take advantage of the free legal services of this department under the direction of Attorney Benjamin Bachrach, one of the defenders of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold.

The results of a recent meeting between a Chicago Bar association committee and the Criminal court judiciary were announced yesterday by Judge John Prystalski, who is to be the next chief justice of the Criminal court. The judges agreed with the lawyers' committee that the law business in the Criminal courts is being ruined by the too promiscuous appointments of the public defender.

Require Proof of Poverty.

Judge Prystalski pointed out several instances in which the public defender appeared for defendants who obviously had money to pay lawyers. An arrangement was worked out at the meeting which provides that every person must file a pauper's affidavit before he is entitled to the services of the public defender.

It a defendant commits perjury in signing such an affidavit he can be prosecuted for this crime, or punished directly by the judge for contempt of court.

A second method of stopping the abuse of free legal service by those able to pay is an agreement that the judges will not appoint the public defender in any case in which the defendant is at liberty on bonds. The lawyers say that if a man has money enough to furnish bonds he has money to pay a lawyer.

System Speeds Trials.

"The public defender system has speeded up the work of the Criminal courts," said Judge Prystalski. "We do not want to undo the good done by this system, but there is no doubt that some defendants have taken advantage of the situation. The lawyers' committee was in accord with the establishment of the defender system and their only complaint was that it was carried to extremes."

Defender Bachrach pointed out that he has no choice in the selection of cases. He acts only in cases where he is notified to do so by the judges. He pointed out that in some 500 cases he withdrew after private attorneys were hired.

In the 18 months the office has operated it has handled 4,614 indictments involving 4,137 defendants.

The defender has established a record of 33.31 per cent of not guilty verdicts and findings.

PROGRESSIVE G. O. P. OF WASHINGTON MAY INDORSE ROOSEVELT

Seattle, Wash., July 10.—(AP)—The progressive Republican state organization of Washington today called a convention for July 23 to consider "indorsement of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency."

"The purpose of the convention will be to consider and take action on a proposal to repudiate the candidacy of Mr. Hoover for reelection and to indorse the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt," the call said.

It added that Republicans taking part will be "free to remain within the Republican party and to participate in the Republican primaries in support of local and state candidates."

WOMEN OBJECT TO INDORSING GOV. ROOSEVELT

New York, July 10.—(AP)—Sixty-two members, including such socially prominent persons as Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, and Mrs. George E. Baker, expressed public disagreement today with the action of the executive committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform indorsing Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Asserting that the step turned a nonpartisan organization into a partisan group their statement said "such a course destroys the usefulness of the organization before the attainment of the object for which it was founded."

AMERICA AND EUROPEAN RESTORATION.

Although ostensibly a permanent settlement of the reparations problem, the agreement announced at Lausanne is conditioned upon concessions expected from the United States in the form of a cancellation or drastic reduction of the debts owed it by the governments associated with us in the late war. This is very tactfully conveyed to us in the phraseology of the preamble to the proposed treaty, with accompanying remarks by Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot in which the appeal to America is foreshadowed. That the American people are not what European political propaganda has pretended to think them, a Shylock demanding his bond, has been well enough understood in all responsible quarters abroad. What is sought by our debtors is the best possible terms obtainable, which Europe has had ample reason to rely upon. The moment is obviously not one for the abuse indulged in futilely and mischievously at an earlier stage of the war debt discussion. What we have now to expect is a... approach for which our predisposition to altruism and easy compliance in international relations promises considerable success.

That the American people have a vital interest in the stabilization and recovery of Europe is as thoroughly understood by them as by Europe, although it is constantly alleged in European discussion that we are unaware of that interest. If the appeal for American concessions were confined to this consideration much difficulty would be removed. But if past experience is a guide we shall have to deal with a good deal of rhetoric on the subject of international interdependence and reconciliation which is only too likely to impress the ingenuousness and generosity of the American nature while serving to dim the sharp outline of profitable bargaining. The American people, therefore, owe it to themselves to keep the underlying facts in view. We have been invited to assume that we are the main obstruction to European accord and revival, and that our position on the debts reveals a deplorable failure to realize our ethical as well as our political responsibility for the state of Europe and the world. We have been invited to accept the theory that Europe has reached its present condition of impoverishment and paralysis because of our unwillingness to have removed from the shoulders of Europe to our own the huge debt represented by our loans for war and reconstruction. We are invited to assume that the war was won for us by the greater sacrifice of our associates, and in this theory the profits acquired through victory by our debtors are studiously ignored. Yet these profits are a relevant and important factor in the consideration of any adjustment based upon material realities or upon justice. They should not be forgotten when we are asked to take up the problem of adjustment of charges.

The British empire and France divided the German possessions in Africa, including German East Africa, German Southwest Africa, Kamerun, and Togoland. The British empire and Japan divided the German islands of the Pacific. France got Alsace-Lorraine and the mines of the Saar valley for fifteen years, and for all time if a plebiscite votes for France at the end of that time. Belgium got 382 square miles of German territory between Holland and Luxemburg. Denmark got 1,537 square miles. Poland got southeastern Silesia and most of Posen and East Prussia, 27,686 square miles, and the Danzig corridor, 729 square miles. France got a mandate—that is, the right of control—over Syria, and Great Britain a mandate over the Mosul oil territory and over Palestine. Italy got Trieste, Fiume, and part of the Tyrol. Rumania, Czechoslovakia, and Jugo-Slavia got large territories from Hungary. . . .

But these were merely the profits in terms of territory. The main part of the German navy was turned over to Great Britain. Fourteen German cable lines were confiscated by the allies. Most of the German merchant marine was ordered distributed to them. Germany as a sea power and a world carrier was removed for years, a substantial profit to her competitors, especially Great Britain. Munitions, locomotives, railroad cars, etc., were delivered to the allies.

Politically and financially, as well as territorially, the victors took for their own advantage profits and advantages worth billions. Of the treaties imposed upon Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey, John Bass' "The Peace Tangle" says:

"These treaties regulated the political and economic destinies of about a hundred and fifty million people of different nationalities. Never before had such a sweeping attempt been made to regulate the internal affairs of nations, some of which were not even represented at the discussions. The five treaties did these things:

"They fixed the boundaries of the five nations (taking territory from each).

"They determined the burden of debt belonging to each.

"They provided for the control of the finances of each through reparations committees whose power over the resources of each was almost unlimited.

"They provided intricate methods for control of navigable rivers and gave rights of user on these rivers.

"They gave rights of user on the railroads and even fixed the rates in some cases.

"They provided detailed terms of penalties and indemnities and of disarmament.

"They attempted to deprive legislatures in many countries of the power to make certain laws while reserving that right to allied parliaments."

In short, as we have said before, the victors wrung vast profits from the vanquished and put half Europe in chains. The peace treaties have paralyzed the reconstruction of Europe. They have made peace and recovery impossible and are the chief cause of the disaster from which we are now called upon with contempt and rebuke to rescue Europe. The ruin of a war we did not make, the worse ruin of a peace we would not sign or support, it has been proposed the American people shall pay for.

The American people have expended a hundred and fifty thousand lives and thirty-eight billion dollars in what they believed was the cause of peace and the reconstruction of European prosperity. They have seen their purposes buried under wreckage wrought by European ambitions, jealousies, rancors, and reckless extravagance. If measures are now in prospect for a rational readjustment in Europe the American people will not fail to apply appropriate considerations not only of their own material welfare but of the general peace and reconstruction of the nations. But they will be applied with respect for all the facts of the situation.

THE INFLATION BILL.

Senator Carter Glass has not proposed his currency inflation bill with any great enthusiasm. The Virginian is not a political trickster in financial legislation. His self-respect keeps him from the tactics used by such of his fellow Democrats as Long and Garner and his financial intelligence makes him incapable of going Brookhart when the country's solvency is involved. He has finally decided to offer the bill making all U. S. government bonds a currency base for a five year period. Under it the national banks could issue new currency to the amount of their capitalization, and the expansion thus made possible is estimated at about one billion.

Glass' sponsorship of the bill indicates that a conservative opinion indorses this stimulation of price increases as an emergency measure justified by the country's economic condition. It is not a currency invention but the broadening of an accepted currency base. If the rule of gold had followed its simple theoretical course America's accumulation would have produced high prices, but the rule is modified by man made arrangements. It seldom works without drawbacks and in this era it has not worked at all. The gold has been largely sterilized by the political conditions of the world.

The country, paralyzed by taxes and debts, awaits a price recovery to obtain the money to square its accounts. Senator Glass proposes what must be regarded as a debtor's currency, but the creditor is not making satisfactory collections in the high purchasing money and his advantage is not found in prices without profits.

When the farmer and the producer of manufactured commodities can make a profit the fixed charges under which the nation has been flattened can be met. Senator Glass, having decided in the closing days, or what are profoundly desired to be the closing days, of congress to propose a scheme of inflation should explain how he thinks it will work. How will the new tokens get into the hands of the persons whose renewed purchasing power is to restore production with profit? Is a present element of hard times in the scarcity of tokens? Does an expansion of tokens imply a justified expansion of credit upon a reasonable guaranty of profits?

Mr. Glass is not a man to do an eleventh hour juggling trick with easy money, and, not being of the prevailing congressional type in this respect, may be expected to prove his case before he asks for a vote.

Editorials of the Day

"WEASEL WORDS."

[Decatur Herald.]

Most people think that the late Theodore Roosevelt invented the phrase, "weasel words," which he applied to some of the public declarations of President Wilson. Col. Roosevelt was not a great inventor of phrases, but when he saw a good one he remembered it long after others had forgotten it, and brought it into use.

Prof. Stewart Chaplin of the New York Law school first used the term in an article in Century Magazine 32 years ago in which he caricatured political platforms. To observant people these platforms were as much of a joke then as now.

Prof. Chaplin said that political platforms were full of weasel words, and he defined the term:

"Why, weasel words are words that suck all the life out of the words next to them, just as a weasel sucks an egg and leaves the shell. If you heft the egg afterward it's as light as a feather and not very filling when you're hungry, but a basketful of them would make quite a show and would bamboozle the unwary."

And the characters in Prof. Chaplin's story go on to draft the platform as follows:

"'We believe in honest money, consisting of standard coin and paper redeemable in coin, so adjusted and maintained at an even level of value that the debtor may be relieved of his burdens while insuring full payment to the creditor.'"

"'Not "full payment,"' said Gamage, "but 'full justice.' That can be explained to one set of voters as meaning full payment and to the other as meaning a scale down". . .

"'Very well,' said St. John, "'while insuring full justice to the creditor.' That's better. Now that, like most of the others, is what I call a stained glass plank. You look through one pane and see a purple dog, and you look through another and he's green, but what his real color is you can't tell till you throw open the window. . . ."

"Stained glass plank" did not catch the popular fancy and is never used. But "weasel words" even to a people largely unfamiliar with nature carries just the right implication.

"Weaseling" is not confined to platform writing. It appears in a good many political speeches, and in the conversation of people who usually qualify flat statements such as "I believe in the democratic form of government, but—" or "of course, our first duty is to see that everybody gets enough to eat—but" or "I'm strongly for the support of the schools—but."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. W. M. S.

OH, PROFESSOR, YOU DID US WRONG!

Yes, prof., you not only did us wrong, you did us dirt. We've had the idea for some time that the years we spent in college studying Mr. Cæsar's Commentaries and Mr. Virgil's Æneid, and astronomy and geology and calculus were just about a total loss. We are driven to this sad conclusion by the cold, hard fact which stares us right in the face that Charlie Chaplin is worth today—even with Old Man Depression hiding around behind the corner—just $7,657,570. Oh, professor, how could you? Why did you stuff us full of Latin and the names of the stars in the Great Dipper instead of teaching us how to throw a custard pie? How much coin has calculus ever got us, and look at the seven million plus that Charles has garnered in because he could throw a custard pie and hit somebody in the face every time!

It wasn't because we didn't have a custard pie. Often we had a nice cold slab of custard pie in our little lunch box and it would have been so simple, prof., for you to have said: "And now, dear pupils, get out your custard pies and see who will be the first to smear one right in the middle of my countenance." Oh, professor, that would have been so much more interesting than algebra. And so much more remunerative. Think, prof., of all the bright, young, educated minds you turn out who peddle bonds from door to door! How many of them in a few years' time save up seven million dollars?

And think of the hours we spent out on the practice field, where the coach tried to teach us to throw a baseball. Shame on him! Why didn't he teach us to throw a lemon pie? But dear old Alma Mater, sitting half way up the hill, never in the classroom or on the campus said one word to us about slinging pie and hitting somebody right on the nose. She turned us out into the great, cold, cruel world equipped for the battles of life. She said. But did she teach us how to make a pie, how to cook it, how to turn it out all squashy and goosy so that it would splash all over everything within a half mile? She did not.

And so, prof., some still dark evening we are going back to dear old Alma Mater and we're going to take the softest, juiciest lemon pie we can find and we're going to plaster it right up against dear old Alma Mater. And we hope, prof., that when we do that you will be there looking out the window. We will have another soft, juicy lemon pie all ready.

SKY MUSIC.

Five black wires and a telephone post and several stars that are whiter than most make lines and notes and a G clef even gleam from out the dark of the heaven, and I can lie on the earth below

and watch the melody bend and flow.

The chords resolve as the stars move on until they are stilled by the glow of dawn.

PARK OFFICIALS, most of 'em, anyhow, say the girls mustn't wear shorts on the tennis courts. If you want to know how far you're going to get with this, park officials, wake up early some morning, face east, and yell hoarsely at the sun not to rise. Or tell the night not to come. You should know that once upon a time there was an old gent named King Canute, who went down to the water's edge and told the rising tide of the Thames to go back. And you know the rising tide of the Thames wouldn't do it. And Canute was a king, which is a bigger job in some ways than being a park official.

A ST. PAUL PARSON declares that if Romeo and Juliet hadn't spoiled their romance by dying they would have separated in a year if they had married. Possibly. Juliet stood up on the balcony while Romeo was down on the ground and he probably didn't know she ate onions, if any. And probably Romeo owed everybody in town, but of course Juliet couldn't know that from the balcony.

THANK YOU, GOD.

Thank you, God, for this delightful turmoil
Which you have sent me as my lot in life;
Thank you for the ever changing faces
Which go to make confusion, stress, and strife;

Thank you for the endless new adventures;
The restless storm; the star-strewn vibrant night;
Thank you for the old loves, dim and dusty,
And for the new loves, bitter-sweet and bright;

Some day, when I'm tired of deep confusion,
Perhaps I'll pray for silence, and for rest,
But until then don't take away your thunder;
Give me a storm, and tempest, and the quest.

DREAMS.

A FLOCK of ducklings about two weeks old are seen catching insects for the evening meal. They dart rapidly, first in one direction and then in another. No duckling keeps the same speed or the same direction for more than a foot. As these ducklings run, so run dreams. First in one direction, then in another; first fast, then slow; first after one bug, then after another.

The bugs they are after are generally pretty close at hand. If a dreamer's feet are cold his dreams are likely to relate to cold feet or wet ones, or to some kind of exposure of the feet. Or, the connection with the material may not be quite so plain. The sensation of discomfort may start one to dreaming about other discomforts or disagreeable experiences of some sort.

One kicks off a cover and a leg is bared. The duckling races after a bug in that direction. The dreams may relate to going down the street undressed, or dropping one's trousers while dancing, or some other experience of similar kind.

The cover is too heavy, the temperature of the body starts up, and sweating begins. The dreams run to close quarters, tight places, insufficient air.

Many dreams are due to physiological causes. Some of the organs in which excretions accumulate become overfilled. The irritation of the organ walls extends to nearby structures. A line of dreams, excited by this set of causes, is set in operation.

One goes to bed without having had supper. During the night hunger registers on the dreaming mind. The dream thoughts are likely to run on foods and eating. One sleeps with the mouth open and snores. Since there is obstruction to free breathing, the dreams are likely to run on oppression of some sort, or the dryness of the mouth may cause dreams of thirst or drinking.

A light is turned on in the room. It is not bright enough to completely capture attention and awaken the sleeper, but some parts of the rays get through the lids and excite the optic nerve somewhat. The dreams are apt to relate to light or fire.

There is a noise within hearing. It is not violent enough to awaken the sleeper. It starts a line of dreams in which the sound plays a part. They may deal with noises and sounds or, if the attention was captured to a considerable degree and the mind was pulled well toward the awakening level, the dreams may be related to the cause of the noise or some cause of a noise rather than to the noise itself.

Since an undue proportion of our dreams are excited into performance by unpleasant impressions, it follows that an undue proportion of them deal with frustrations and limitations. But when one lies completely at ease in a comfortable bed the dreams are liable to run along pleasant lines.

POSITION FOR SLEEP.

C. T. K. writes: Have read your articles regarding the use of the pillow when sleeping and am anxious to have your opinion as to the position one should take when asleep. One often snores if he lies on his back; his arms may go to sleep and bother him if he lies on either shoulder. I have been told that the best way to sleep is to lie almost on the stomach with one knee brought up to keep from lying entirely on the chest and stomach. Also that it is good to sleep entirely on the chest and stomach, legs straight, without a pillow.

REPLY.

I don't think it makes a great deal of difference what my reply is. You probably will start in the position that is most comfortable for you, but during the night you will shift position many times. As a rule, the position that is most comfortable for a given individual is the one he prefers and, for the same reason, is the one that is best. The first position you describe is very comfortable for adults. It tends to prevent snoring, dry mouth, coated tongue, and bad morning breath. It is not apt to cause numbness in the arms. The second position described calls for a twisting of the neck that will shortly become uncomfortable. It may be a good position for those who stoop when they stand.

DIABETIC DIETS.

S. C. writes: 1. Can a diabetic eat honey without harm?

2. Can he drink alcoholic liquors without harm?

3. If he has colitis is it all right for him to take lactose?

REPLY.

1. Probably not, though there are some who hold otherwise.

2. I don't think so. Some ten or more years ago some authorities allowed diabetics who were on a starvation diet to have alcohol. We hear but little of this method in recent years.

3. Lactose is milk sugar. In the present state of our knowledge it seems best for diabetics to avoid all sugars, at least to avoid using them in any appreciable quantities.

RINGWORM ON FEET.

H. W. writes: I have had some experience with ringworm of the feet and I give you much the most satisfactory remedy I have found. Dissolve six tablespoons [or thereabouts] of Epsom salts in a quart of fairly hot water. When this has cooled enough, put it in a pan and soak the foot in it for about fifteen minutes. Dry. Apply tincture of iodine to the affected parts. The affected skin will turn black. In a day or two it begins to peel. This peeling process will be completed in less than two weeks. One treatment is usually all that is required. If the disease recurs, as ringworm of the foot is so likely to do, the treatment can be repeated.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 11, 1916.

BALTIMORE.—The daring German seamen who brought the submarine merchantman Deutschland across the Atlantic slept quietly tonight aboard their vessel, which lay moored to a carefully screened pier guarded by a strong squad of Baltimore police. Capt. Paul Koenig, the skipper, had delivered his papers to the North German Lloyd office, entered his vessel at the custom house as a commerce carrier, and had presented to a German embassy official a packet of correspondence for Count von Bernstorff. Now the submarine is ready to discharge its $1,000,000 cargo of dyestuffs and take on board for the return trip to Germany metal and rubber needed by the emperor's armies and navy. The time for leaving will depend largely upon plans for eluding vigilant enemy cruisers expected to be waiting outside the entrance of Chesapeake bay for the reappearance of the vessel.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—Two men of the First Illinois cavalry were fired on by Mexicans here. Sergt. Maj. Lester Johnson and Harry Coan were visiting the detail of regulars stationed at the international bridge. Across the Rio Grande a detail of Mexican troops is stationed. While Johnson and Coan were making their call a shot came across the river. Two more shots followed. The regulars told them shots from the Mexican detail were such frequent courtesies they had ceased to report them.

BERLIN.—The general army headquarters issued the following report: "On both sides of the Somme fighting continues. In the wood of Trones, which had been penetrated by the English, and the farm La Maisonette and the village of Barleaux, which had been stormed by the French, we reconquered and consolidated against the enemy. At Ovillers there was uninterrupted hand to hand fighting. The French obtained a lodgment in the village of Biaches. Between Barleaux and Belloy their oft repeated attacks continually broke down with the greatest losses. Further west they were prevented by our barrage fire from leaving their trenches."

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Official announcement was made that the Russian forces which recently evacuated Kermanshah, Persia, had been overtaken by the Turks and put to flight after a battle of seven hours. The Russian offensive on the Tchoruk sector of the Caucasus front, undertaken to arrest the Turkish advance, has collapsed.

PETROGRAD.—The Russian forces advancing in Volhynia toward Koval are crossing the river Stokhod at various points, closely pressing the Teutonic forces opposing them, says the war office statement. The passage of the river is being accomplished under serious difficulties.

WASHINGTON.—Renewed and a more specific warning of an impending Villa raid aimed at the American border was communicated to Acting Secretary of State Polk by Elizo Arridondo, the Mexican ambassador designate. Mr. Arridondo's information came directly from Gen. Carranza. Reports to the Mexican first chief stated that the band of Villistas was aiming at Boquillas.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Herman Schlesinger, professor of chemistry.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

How is matter believed to be constituted?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

SATURDAY'S QUESTION.

What factors, other than the kind of matter of which substances are constituted, determine differences in the properties of substances?

ANSWER.

Properties of substances are determined not only by the kinds of atoms their molecules contain, but by the number and arrangement of the atoms as well. Molecules of carbon dioxide, the gas responsible for the bubbling of soda water, contain one carbon atom and two oxygen atoms per molecule. Carbon monoxide differs only in having one oxygen atom less per molecule, yet is the deadly poison of automobile exhaust. On the other hand, acetic acid, the sour constituent of vinegar, and diose, a sweet, sugarlike sirup, both contain two carbon, four hydrogen, and two oxygen atoms per molecule; in the former, however, both oxygen atoms are joined to the same carbon atom; in the latter to each carbon atom only one of oxygen is attached. The great difference in the properties of acetic acid and of diose must, therefore, be due solely to the difference in the arrangement of the atoms.

NO BUILDINGS PERMITTED.

Chicago, July 6.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like to know why the bathhouses are located in the "danger zone" at North avenue, which is about a half a mile from the Oak street beach. In order to make use of these one must walk about a mile. I think it would be more sanitary to have a few at the above beach. A. S. L.

We fully realize that there is a great need for such stations at this beach, and am sorry we must inform you that it is beyond the power of the commissioners of Lincoln park to erect them. Owing to the settlement of riparian right cases of the property owners with Lincoln park in years past no buildings are allowed on the lake front from Oak street north to the north line of North avenue, hence the station at North avenue is the nearest that we can place to the Oak street beach sector.

H. O. WEEGE, Gen. Supt.,
The Commissioners of Lincoln Park.

FAMILY POSSESSIONS.

Chicago, July 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife deserted me in January, but we are not divorced. She took possession of most of our house furnishings, claiming it is her property. We have no children. 1. Does furniture and other household articles belong to her alone or both of us? 2. Does the fact that she, while married, was employed make any difference in ownership? 3. Has she a right to sell any of the household articles without my consent? 4. In case of divorce, does the wife always become the sole owner of furniture and other household articles? W. E.

1. Depends on how it was originally acquired.
2. No.
3. See No. 1.
4. No, such decisions are largely discretionary with the divorce judge, depending on all equities of the parties.

POLITICAL FOLIAGE.

Chicago, July 6.—When Franklin Roosevelt announced his project of growing trees on land now unproductive, Chairman Walsh was apparently too fatigued after the convention proceedings to ask if the gentleman intended to reforest the whole District of Columbia, or merely the acres now occupied by our great taxmakers of both parties.

It now appears that Mr. Roosevelt's proposition was seen at its alarming value by Secretary Hyde, who, after a long conference with Mr. Hoover, announced that one man can plant 1,000 trees a day; that there aren't as many as 300,000,000 seedling trees available; and that, if there were, Mr. Roosevelt's million men could plant them in three hours.

I am looking forward with zest to seeing the news reels of Mr. Hyde planting 1,000 trees in a day to prove his assertion. My previous suspicion was that few men, working for the government pay rolls, usually labor at such speed. A year or two ago, a lake strip of park out 79th street way in this fair city was reforested. My impression while watching the process was that it took three weeks for six men to plant two dozen trees.

Anyway, I am for Mr. Roosevelt's trees. They will hide Mr. Garner's postoffices.

Also maybe our children can live in them after we are gone, which at the present rate looks like a couple of months before the November election. Trees, Hennessey, trees! By the time they are grown, science can look forward to a race of American Tarzans, leaping from bough to bough [or from "boo!" to "boo!"] over the scrambling elephants and donkeys of the new Reforest Primeval. RICHARD ATWATER.

THE WAY OUT.

Chicago, July 5.—As one confronted with the prospect of paying increased real estate taxes, an increased federal income tax, and a state income tax, I have been deeply interested in your campaign for reduced governmental expenditures, but I have been convinced that all of this hullabaloo will get us nowhere unless we seriously approach the problem along the line suggested in your editorial of today. We will never succeed in reducing the cost of government by cutting the salaries of government employés or by adopting the five day week. We must get rid of excess government itself. We never will do that until agencies like your newspaper and taxpayers' organizations make up a list of particular bureaus and departments that should be abolished much like there was made up in this city some months ago—a list of public enemies—and keep up the attack until they are abolished.

WILLIAM H. LONG.

THE NEW TAXES.

Chicago, July 5.—Today I made a purchase of a box of face powder, the cost of which is 55 cents ordinarily. I was informed that the tax was 6 cents, thus making a total of 61 cents, but there was no stamp or other indication that this tax was paid.

Isn't the government planning to protect the public on these taxes? During the war each taxable article had a stamp on it showing tax paid.

Will people be given any credit for these various taxes when filing income tax schedules next March, or will they pay taxes on taxes? I am keeping an account of any taxes I pay, and I shall watch to see if articles taxed have proper stamps on them. J. C.

CIRCUMLOCUTION.

Oak Park, Ill., July 2.—The man that beat the man he nominated will try to beat the man that beat the man he nominated. THOMAS G. ELKINS.

WARBUCKS: WHAT A MAN!

Chicago, July 2.—I think it would be a good idea if you had some one take Daddy Warbucks on the side and in as inoffensive a manner as possible suggest to him that he park that rock he totes around in his shirt front or it may leave its mooring and tear a hole in the floor of his country estate or, worse yet, crush his foot.

It is really astonishing the number of people you come in contact with that say there are no opportunities under the Hoover administration. Look what Warbucks did. He rose from a teameo to capitalist and shipping magnate in a few months' time. When the chicken bureau in Washington neglected to bring Warbucks the chicken for his pot when he was a poor truck driver he didn't get discouraged. However, Jake the Merchant, not caring much for political gifts, gave Daddy his chicken and just look how Warbucks reciprocates. Sets him up in a $15,000,000 department store. What a man! Too bad some one couldn't have persuaded him to accept the presidency. V. B. QUINN.

A GRATEFUL DELEGATE.

Collinsville, Ill., July 5.—I write to express my appreciation as one of the Democratic convention guests of the splendid service and reasonable rates charged by the Chicago hotels. I had made a reservation at one of the hotels at $5 a day, and when I came to settle my bill was agreeably surprised to find that I had been charged only $3.50 a day. Meal rates also were reasonable all over the city. It should add much to Chicago's popularity as a convention city that rates, instead of being jacked up, were actually reduced for this great gathering.

Chicago people and convention visitors alike were surprisingly sociable. All one had to do was to let it be known that he was a conventioner and all formality and restraint were gone, and one could chat with all the freedom of Main street back home.

I for one hope that the Democratic national committee may choose to hold another convention in Chicago within the next decade. JAMES O. MONROE,
State Senator, 47th District.

BEYOND OUR KEN.

Chicago, July 3.—For years I have been a faithful reader of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE because I held a high opinion of the paper's honesty, integrity, and fair play. However, during the last few weeks your cruel and malicious attacks against the United States senator from Louisiana, the Hon. Huey P. Long, have caused me to change that opinion. Why, in heaven's name, must you concern yourselves with matters beyond your ken. The people of the state of Louisiana elected Long to represent them, and it is for them and for them alone to condemn him. If you must assail some one, the Lord knows that there are plenty of crooked politicians and corrupt public officials in our fair city and state for you to work on. TURNER Q. TURAN.

THE SANE FOURTH.

Chicago, July 2.—Without my knowledge my 8 year old son purchased firecrackers here in the city and came home with a powder burn which necessitated calling a doctor. I went to the store where the fireworks had been sold to him and incidentally encountered a woman about to purchase some. Trying to dissuade her by relating my son's experience merely produced a sniff and the remark, "I want my son to be patriotic."

The storekesper complained that business was bad and she was trying to make a little money; besides, she said, a policeman had been in and bought some, so it must be all right. MRS. J. D.

60,000 BELGIAN REDS MARCH ON CAPITAL TODAY

100 Mile Ring of Troops Bars Strikers' Path.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 10.—Communist strikers in the Charleroi-Mons coal region—60,000 of them—will try to burst through a 100 mile semi-circle of troops and police tomorrow in a march on Brussels, it was reported here tonight. Dispatches from the strike area said the communists are determined to reach the capital and the government is equally determined to prevent them.

Martial law will be declared in the Charleroi section tomorrow morning. At the same time a general strike will be called. Gendarmes and soldiers were encircling the region late tonight. Authorities believe that by morning the lines will be strong enough to turn back the Red army. Nevertheless any attempt of the communists to carry out their projected march is likely to result in a battle.

Reds Plan to Trap Police.

Communist leaders in Brussels declared their intention of calling a strike here and forming a column to march from the capital toward Charleroi, thus placing the police and military lines between two fires.

Riots in the mining towns this afternoon resulted in one fatality. Several towns tonight were without light when gas and electric workers joined the strike, which followed a dispute over wages. Railroad workers are expected to walk out soon and one passenger train was showered with stones today.

Residents of the strike towns are joining the conflict. Several cases are reported by the police of women lying down in front of street cars and daring motormen to drive over them. Police of Mons arrested 13 communist leaders on the charge of fomenting civil war.

Coal District Paralyzed.

The most important coal section of Belgium is completely paralyzed, and the entire country is beginning to feel the results of the shutdown. So far the companies have succeeded in keeping the mine pumps running, but they fear that if the communists succeed in calling off the emergency crew the pits would be flooded in less than two days. Water is now rising rapidly and managers of several mines were forced to remove horses to prevent their drowning.

Documents seized by police indicate that the Red leaders are in touch with communists in Holland and France. The cabinet met this afternoon and ordered two regiments of bicycle troops, which ordinarily return to civil life July 5, to remain under colors to combat disorders. The number of motor trucks at the disposition of the gendarmes was also doubled. All assemblages were forbidden in towns between Brussels and the strike area and the population was forbidden to ride bicycles or motorcycles in the streets.

SLAYS 3, SELF AFTER QUARREL ABOUT A WAGON

Mishawaka, Ind., July 10. — [Special.]—An argument over a broken wagon started Joseph Hanak, 45, on a gun rampage here this afternoon in which he killed his wife, Mrs. Joseph Hanak, 43; his brother, George, 50, and his nephew, Stephen, 19, and himself. Stephen was a son of George Hanak.

Police said that they learned from Mrs. Clara Hanak, mother of the killer, that Joseph and George, bringing a wagon load of wood to the Hanak house east of here where they all lived together, quarreled bitterly over repairing the wagon after it broke down.

Joseph ran into the house and obtained a revolver and shotgun. Stephen sitting on the porch with Mrs. Joseph Hanak, was the first victim. Mrs. Hanak fled and the killer chased her until he shot her down. He then ran around the house until he found George and killed him. He then turned the gun on himself.

LINKS ARRESTS MAY HELP FIND AIDS OF BURKE

Kansas City, Mo., July 10.—(AP)—John J. Brennan, alias John Brown, who got in a trap Wednesday at a Kansas City golf course when detectives closed in to arrest two of his companions as escaped convicts, told police today he is Harvey Bailey of Sullivan county, Missouri, friend of Fred Burke.

The golf course arrest, which has already caught the attention of investigators in the Lindbergh case, the Leavenworth prison break last December, and several major robberies, thus attained new importance as a possible lead to members of the Burke gang, police said.

Bailey admitted, police reported, that he is the man who took Burke, suspected of being the trigger man in the Chicago St. Valentine's day machine gun massacre of 1929, and then wanted for murder, bank robbery and other crimes, to the rural Missouri hideout where he was captured a year and a half ago.

Burke, who was dubbed the "most dangerous criminal" at that time, is now in a Michigan prison, but those with whom he is supposed to have been associated during irregular absences from the Sullivan county farm have not been apprehended.

SOCIALISM BARS AUSTRALIAN PATH TO SOUND FINANCE

State Broke, but Workers Demand Highest Wages.

Here is the ninth of a series of articles by Mr. Kinsley, who was sent by The Tribune to get an American observer's viewpoint of conditions in Australia. Another article will appear tomorrow.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Australia., June 23.—[By Mail.]—New South Wales is on the road to complete state socialisation of production, industry, and exchange. Labor is in control, regardless of parties in temporary power, and they will never willingly take the hard way back to state solvency through reduction in wages or serious permanent curtailment of the unemployment dole, old age pensions, maternity, and other awards and state services which have given them a taste of the age long dream of the workers for comfort and security.

In this new world, wide and sun drenched, remote from the London slums and the Irish fields of slavery, shaken free of class distinctions, impatient with kings and the "rule of gold," they are of a temper, despite all the warnings of economists and sane democracy leaguists, professors, and budget balancers, to take hold of all the sources of wealth and hold them for the state and themselves.

State Is Bankrupt.

It has already been tried in a measure and has failed dismally. The state is bankrupt and the railroads, trams, and other public ventures are in a mess, with nothing but deficits in sight. The leaders of labor in public office have misled and betrayed their people in many ways, but the people are not aware of it.

It is a Sunday afternoon in Sydney, a glorious day in early fall, with the sky blue and cloudless, the air touched with the vigor of the Pacific breeze. The girls and boys wander in pairs in the green parks. Families with camp chairs and picnic baskets make their way to the open. The race tracks and theaters are closed and there is nothing to do but go to church or out of doors.

These are just the people, familiar the world over. They are the little people, shopkeepers, clerks, carpenters, bricklayers, garage men, workers of all the trades of hand.

Drown Qualms in Beer.

Sydney, a city of a million and a quarter, seems to be populated largely by just this average sort of man. Until recently he has lived in average comfort, by a system which kept the experts down and pulled the weak and lazy up. What qualms they had about the ultimate working of such a social scheme were drowned in the public houses, where beer is cheap and plentiful, or in sports, or in going to church. The Bible and sports, it is said, are the bulwark of this new British nation.

Music from far down the street becomes clearer. There are many bands coming, and banners, bobbing above the heads of a multitude of marchers.

Now the marchers are here singing and the banners are in sight.

"John T. Lang—King of Kings."

A caricature of this labor leader and ex-premier, a suggestion of his jutting chin and broad bald brow, his face of the commoner which yet is lifted above the commoner.

"Lang Is Right."

That is the burden of it. Deep financial tracts, tons of literature on deficits and budgets, warnings and prophecies of bankruptcy, fall on deaf ears.

"Justice—Truth—Liberty."

See how that rings with the initials of Lang? Fate must be in that.

"Two pounds, eleven shillings, six pence—basic wage under the premiers' plan. Four pounds, two shillings, six pence under the Lang plan."

The great campaign is fixed on that. It makes no difference whether it is true or not.

Lang Movement Grows.

On the outskirts are men of the older labor crowd, the more conservative. They shake their heads. They are in doubt. Their official leaders have spoken against Lang, and yet they remain staunch for an unreduced wage in New South Wales and suggest that the time has come for nationalization of railways and coal mines. This might easily lead as far as the Lang movement, which goes on despite all elections, spreading through the other states, reaching out for the power of the bankers, the "money lenders," to bring back prosperity somehow out of their golden bags.

The communists work along the sidelines. God, king and empire, which have ruled the world, are now sunk in the sea, and civilization is dying to make way for a new order, they tell you. But are the Australians ready for it—for the sacrifice? No. They have been fed with too much comfort. They own too much. Lang is just a politician seeking power.

Not Ready for Communism.

But what a politician—what a showman! The communists slinking in the background, "boring in" at Trades hall, seeking a tool for premier with which to push the wedge of their doctrine further, have not come to their day yet. These thousands on the grass and the sidewalks, these neighbors of theirs who come marching, are not ready for a "red dictator" and may never be.

"Socialization is our only hope," is the inscription on the banner of one large group of men, followed by their women and children riding in trucks.

"More wages, bigger dole with Lang," is another banner.

These are home made signs, drawn in rude lettering. They all have the same idea—starvation with the bankers' policy, happiness and high wages with labor. Nobody has the least idea how the manufacturers feel, and if any are on the sidelines they must be terrified. For this is an uprising, one of the greatest political demonstrations in the history of Australia.

There is a touch of fighting, of revolution, now and then. The bearded Australian pioneer is not forgotten, but the city people are mostly from the huddled areas of the old world, families and descendants of "assisted" immigrants.

They come with the traditions of British trades unionism and Irish struggles and hatreds behind them. They have not yet come to a reverent nationalism of their own. The six starred Australian flag is found but once in the long line, and no hats are lifted as it passes. Federation is yet a wobbly thing, an idea which has yet to demonstrate its vitality.

Ex-soldiers and sailors of the war pass in masses.

"They told us the Germans would pay and now they want us to pay," reads one of their signs. "Lang says wait a while."

Picture Lang as King.

The governor and the king are not forgotten. Lang appears in one picture with a crown on his bald head. In another he is found in a heroic attitude, receiving a stab in the back from Gov. Sir Philip Game, the king's representative, who ousted Lang from the premiership, while labor crouches at his feet lifting hands for a victory that is denied.

There is no love for king and empire in this labor group, although one cannot tell the deeper feelings of this British democracy which has felt power and is not willing to give it up.

Two hours and the parade has not passed. The green has become a sea of bobbing heads and color of women's gowns.

Women and children are singing as they ride. They have gay costumes. They build stories on floats. The poor cottage of the worker, with the half starved laborer sitting down to a meal of bread and water. This is the premier's plan. They have the highest average wage in the world, perhaps, and this is their answer to the plea to cut it in the interests of national honor and economy.

It is an answer which has been put in the mouths by shrewd politicians but it finds a real echo in their hearts. "Think of the children" is their cry. They do not analyze stories and evidence of graft, misuse of their money by their idols, the packing of the public service, the taxes and the wails of business. They are going to have their own, their "rights" no matter what happens to business. If industry shuts down the government must take care of them.

Many of them have been out of work for a year or more. Some are living in shacks out in "Happy Valley," the home of the homeless unemployed.

And yet this minority of shirkers, who have grown to like the dole and who find money somehow for beer at the pubs, where they sit with cronies at dominoes, do not settle this question. The great majority, as one can see, are honest, decent folk. This is not a manufactured demonstration. It is an uprising, an expression of the Australian will not to be ignored here or in any part of the suffering world.

They have derisive banners for that upstart Fascist organization, the New Guard. "The Noo Gard—Ha! Ha! Ha!" they say. And they sing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," about Lang and the candidates for "the people." They are the people. The light is in their eyes and they will follow—even over a precipice.

SLAYING OF WOMAN ABOARD HER YACHT LAID TO JEALOUSY

Philadelphia, Pa., July 10. — [Special.] — A quarrel in which jealousy appeared as the chief factor was held responsible by Delaware county investigating authorities today for last night's triple shooting at the Essington Yacht club on the Delaware river below here, in which Mrs. Mamie Conyers, 36 year old divorcée, was slain by her suitor, William A. Briscoe, 37, of this city.

Mrs. Conyers was shot down when she sought to intervene and prevent Briscoe's murderous pursuit of two innocent interveners in the quarrel, Joseph V. Julian of Port Richmond, Staten Island, and Martin Roser of Angiesea, N. J.

SCIENTISTS OF 2 UNIVERSITIES PROVE OLD GOLD COOLEST SMOKE

LABORATORY CHECK PLACES O. G. FIRST IN COOL THROAT-EASE

Decisive Results in Favor of O. G. Obtained by Scientists From Specimens of Four Leading Brands Purchased in 20 Different Parts of the Country

Independent tests conducted by scientists of two leading Eastern Universities corroborated the findings of the New York Testing Laboratories. The educators verified conclusively that Old Golds are the coolest of the four leading cigarette brands; indicating the use of finer quality tobaccos, the selection of milder and choicer leaf and the absence of heat-generating flavorings.

Purchasing their cigarettes through certified accountants in 20 different sections of the country with widely varying climatic conditions, the scientists said they were able to establish beyond all doubt that Old Golds' coolness was not altered by climatic extremes.

"There was no doubting the accuracy of the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter—it is one of the most reliable methods for measuring heat-content known to Science," said one of the educators, "so we employed the same type of instrument.

"And when test after test showed Old Golds consistently cooler than the three other brands, and the Fahrenheit temperature of the smoke definitely cooler, there was no alternative but to decide for Old Golds," he insisted.

Inasmuch as coolness in a cigarette requires finer and purer tobaccos and absence of artificial flavoring, this scientific verdict proves Old Gold a cigarette of choicest tobacco quality—pure tobacco without added flavorings.

Selections from each lot of cigarettes bought for these tests have been sealed in airtight containers, labeled to show in which sections of the country they were purchased.

To any technical or scientific authority a signed report of the complete findings of these two scientists will be sent on request. P. Lorillard Company, Inc., 119 West 40th St., New York City.

Brief Biographies of Famed Journalists who saw Old Gold win Scientific Test

Sam Taub is one of the leading newspaper authorities on boxing. Both his column "In a Ring-side Seat," and his radio broadcasts of leading fights are the last word to boxing enthusiasts.

Karl K. Kitchen's two columns, "Mr. Manhattan," which deals with New York personalities, and "Karl K. Kitchen Presents," appear in over 60 papers, and have a wide and loyal following.

Walter Trumbull's sparkling syndicated sports features, "The Listening Post" and "The Wearing of the Green," are followed eagerly by readers all over the country.

THE EVIDENCE OF SCIENCE

"This is to certify that in 75 repeated cool tests made of the 4 leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette in B.T.Us. with the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, it was shown that:

Old Gold averages 112 B.T.Us. Cooler than Brand X
Old Gold averages 155 B.T.Us. Cooler than Brand Y
Old Gold averages 156 B.T.Us. Cooler than Brand Z

"To further verify Old Gold's coolness, the temperature (Fahrenheit) of the smoke of each cigarette brand was checked and Old Gold's smoke was found to be definitely cooler than the smoke of the other three brands."

REDS HORN IN ON SOUTH AMERICA VIA DEPRESSION

Argentina Acts to Check Spread of Communism.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, July 10.—The spread of communism in South America, as evidenced by the many revolts which have flared in the last year, has been brought forcibly to the attention of Argentine conservatives in the last few days by the outburst of the communistic Aprista "army" in Peru.

Although Peruvian government troops were able in this instance to cope with the rebellion, it has been taken as one more indication of the tremendous impetus given communism by the economic depression in South American countries.

Communist agitators lent a hand in the Chilean naval mutiny of last summer and undoubtedly contributed to the present unstable condition of the country under Carlos Davila's provisional government. Revolutionary strikes in Uruguay and Paraguay have also been traced to communist agitation.

Used to Ignore Reds.

In pre-depression days most South American governments were able to ignore the "Red peril." But with bad times the Red agents have reaped their reward in the shape of thousands of fervent adherents.

The fact that so far communism has caused no violent trouble in Argentina does not imply that its leaders have not done their best to encompass it, or that they have relaxed their propaganda in consequence. They received a check when the Uriburu government raided and closed the offices of the soviet commercial agency Iuyamtorg upon discovering that its activities were more political than commercial.

The discovery that many Argentine school children were familiar with soviet slogans and imbued with the belief that "communism is bound to come" gave rise to investigations which in turn revealed that school teachers were mainly responsible for the spread of these ideas among the children. This discovery shocked the authorities into probing the matter.

Says Drivers Forced Out.

For years past it has been noteworthy that the taxi drivers of Buenos Aires invariably declared a twenty-four hour strike in sympathy with any labor dispute that might arise, irrespective of its cause or merits. One driver who had complained about the meagerness of his earnings, when asked how he and other drivers could afford the luxury of these frequent stoppages, said the drivers knew that if they failed to strike their cars would suffer unaccountable and costly breakdowns within a few days.

The driver said that the garage workers, mostly avowed communists, possessed a union of their own which bulldozed the drivers' union into submission with the veiled threat of ruthless sabotage. Asked how the garage workers in turn could afford to strike on the slightest provocation, the driver replied with an expressive rub of the thumb and first finger, meaning that "a little bit of graft is coming to them."

The latest report on Red activities, however, comes from Asuncion, Paraguay. The police there discovered that the soviets had endowed a number of "scholarships in communism," the winners of which are entitled to a trip to Montevideo to the soviet "branch office," where they can perfect themselves in the art of social disruption before embarking on their professional careers.

BARE COMMUNIST PLOT TO CONTROL U.S. LABOR UNIONS

Carpenters' Officers Warn Members.

Under pretext of promoting unemployment insurance, communists are reported to be making a concerted effort to gain control of legitimate American labor organizations. Leading the fight against this menace, the carpenters' union last week warned its members, under penalty of expulsion, against having anything to do with the communist party or other Red organizations.

The warning followed an investigation by the American Federation of Labor into the activities of a self-styled New York A. F. of L. trade union committee on unemployment insurance and relief. The committee had been circularizing labor unions for support.

The investigation revealed the committee to be a "communistic movement recently started in New York City by communists, directed and conducted by communist leaders" and that the movement "is not connected in any manner with the American Federation of Labor."

"The real remedy for unemployment is work and plenty of it," says an official circular over the signature of William L. Hutcheson, general president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. "Unemployment insurance in other countries has not worked out satisfactorily, nor has it made charity unnecessary.

"The communists are aware of these facts. They cannot control the labor movement and they know it. Their desire is to capture it for their own ends and purposes. We want relief for the unemployed, but not the relief that will make scabs of our members.

"The communists don't care. If they cannot rule they will ruin. The unions are of no use to them. If the unions can be put out of business it will be advantageous to the communists. That is why the communists are so busy now. They believe that if the trade unions can be destroyed they will build upon their downfall, but just the same they are now appealing to our local unions for funds to carry on their so-called propaganda and relief work.

"This whole matter was considered by our general executive board. The general president and general secretary were directed to warn all local officers and members to have nothing whatever to do with the New York A. F. of L. trade union committee on unemployment insurance and relief, or with the communist party or similar or kindred bodies, and under no circumstances to vote to give them financial aid, or support or encouragement of any kind, under penalty of suspension from the brotherhood."

BANKS' SOLVENCY WILL BE ISSUE AT BAIN TRIAL

Evidence to be presented this week at the Bain trial will involve the question of the insolvency of the twelve Bain banks before they were closed June 9, 1931. Edwin J. Rater, special prosecutor, said yesterday he would endeavor to show that the banks had been insolvent for years and that a conspiracy existed to keep them open to the detriment of the public.

The defendants are John Bain, south park commissioner and former head of the twelve banks which failed with deposits of $13,000,000; his two sons, John H. and Robert A., and Bain's son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher. They waived a jury and are on trial before Judge John M. O'Connor, with Attorney Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel, as their attorney.

The trial started June 15. So far Rater has been introducing evidence of the loans made by each bank, its real estate transactions, and its sales of stocks and bonds. He has presented evidence that John Bain borrowed $1,781,607 on unsecured notes from eleven of the banks and that the Bain family and Bain subsidiaries borrowed nearly $3,000,000 more.

Rater says his plan of procedure is to present the testimony of witnesses along various lines. Later, in his closing argument, he will connect the odd bits of testimony heretofore unrelated and, it is said, weave them together to prove the existence of a conspiracy.

Policeman Uses Hearse to Chase Robbers; Gets 1

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—A hearse figured in the pursuit and capture of one of three bandits who had held up a dairy store on Amsterdam avenue today. A policeman leaped to the seat of a passing hearse and gave chase. The bandits took refuge in a tenement house. The place was surrounded, and after a siege and search lasting more than an hour one of the suspects was captured. Another escaped by leaping from the roof to the elevated structure and a third also got away.

C. C. GOODRICH, OF TIRE INDUSTRY FAME, IS DEAD

Ill for Two Years; Member of Maine Legislature

York, Me., July 10.—(AP)—Charles C. Goodrich, wealthy tire manufacturer and a member of the Maine house of representatives, died at his home here today. He was 60 years old.

His death was caused by hemorrhages from ulcers of the stomach.

Goodrich's sister, Mrs. John C. Breckenridge of New York City, was with him when he died.

The tire manufacturer had been ill for the last two years. This spring he suffered a series of shocks, which paralyzed his right side.

Born in Akron.

Goodrich was born in Akron, O., where his father, B. F. Goodrich, founded the Goodrich Rubber company. Following his graduation from Harvard in 1893, he became associated with the rubber company and continued to play an active part in its management until 1907.

In that year Goodrich withdrew from active participation in the company's affairs, but continued to serve on the board of directors.

He came to York as a summer visitor forty years ago. He returned year after year and finally made this town his permanent residence.

In Maine Legislature.

In 1930, making his first venture in politics, Goodrich won the Republican nomination for state representative. Victorious in the election he became one of the most active members of the lower house.

This spring Goodrich was chosen a delegate to the Republican national convention, but ill health prevented him from attending.

Besides his sister, Goodrich is survived by a brother, David M. Goodrich, chairman of the board of the Goodrich Rubber company.

Mrs. Goodrich died three years ago in Arizona. There are no children.

RENTED CAR CLEW SOLVES MYSTERY OF 12 BURGLARIES

Edward Bickley, 21 years old, confessed to a dozen burglaries last night after he had been arrested by Policemen William Ford and George Helstren of the Rogers Park station.

In all of his thefts Bickley entered apartments by springing locks with a special apparatus. Another of his invariable habits was to leave an automobile parked nearby in the street. In this he escaped.

Neighbors of his victims described the car as a roadster and one informant remembered five of the numbers on the license plate. Detective Ford surmised that the automobile might have been rented and made a tour of renting agencies. At 4860 Broadway he was informed a youth answering the description of the burglar was a frequent patron. Bickley was taken into custody when he returned for a car late Saturday. The last house he entered was at 1705 Jonquil terrace.

ATTORNEY IS DENIED NEW TRIAL; FACES 2 YEAR TERM IN PRISON

Norfolk, Va., July 10.—[Special.]—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals of North Carolina has denied Alton L. Jordan, Norfolk attorney, former member of the Virginia legislature and Ku Klux Klan, and a church worker, a new trial. He was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Jordan was convicted on the charge of giving false testimony before a special master in the receivership proceedings of the Home Mortgage company, a $17,000,000 corporation of Hickory, N. C. The corporation was forced into receivership.

Jordan was tried before Judge Johnson J. Hayes at Wilson, N. C., on a charge of conspiring to commit perjury and to obstruct justice. All defendants except Jordan were acquitted.

John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, was one of the attorneys who unearthed the conspiracy against the Home Mortgage company and filed a report in connection with his investigation showing the company to be perfectly solvent.

Mrs. Leanore B. Cudahy Dies After Long Illness

Besides her husband, who is president of Callaghan & Co., law book publishers, Mrs. Cudahy is survived by four children, William, Michael, Robert, and Leanore. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Holy Name cathedral. Burial in Calvary cemetery will be private.

CATALPA BLOOM PROLONGED BY GOOD WEATHER

Coloring Helped by Favorable Season.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Reports received yesterday from observers of tree life in the Chicago area indicate that the favorable growing season has lengthened by as much as two weeks the blooming period of catalpa trees, as well as intensifying the foliage colorings of what many call "the Indian bean tree."

One report indicated that in a row of western or hardy catalpas the blossoms had been showing for six weeks. The eastern species blossoms about two weeks earlier than those in the Mississippi valley, and in some localities the two species have been grown in the same park to lengthen the period of bloom.

Western Variety Taller.

The eastern types, it is pointed out, have longer, more slender pods than the western varieties. Both have large clusters of white flowers, which are dotted with red spots or streaks, more pronounced in the eastern variety. In woodlands or close city plantings, the western catalpas grow twice as tall as the eastern, and in a planting of both, the two should be alternated in rows for best effect.

A few of the rarer varieties of catalpa are being developed in this region, according to nurserymen. Of these the favorite is the Japanese catalpa, which produces a yellow flowering cluster with spots or stripes of delicate violet or orange. They are more hardy, but smaller than the eastern catalpa.

A Quick Growing Tree.

Freedom from disease and insect enemies, as well as the quick growth and attractiveness of the catalpas are said to be reasons for increased interest in this tree in the middle west. Farmers have grown them for years to provide fence posts and timbers because the wood develops rapidly and is resistant to decay in water.

The catalpas prefer moist soils, yet thrive in city conditions where most trees are neglected. They rival the horse chestnut in beauty during blooming and in later summer foliage, yet survive the chestnut because of their hardiness.

TRAINS CRASH ON 'TOY' RAILWAY; 1 KILLED, 31 HURT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 10.—One of the most amazing accidents in railway history occurred at Scarborough today when an engineer was killed and 31 passengers were injured as a result of a headon collision between two trains on a "toy" railway.

The gauge is twenty inches, the length of the track under a mile, and the maximum possible speed is 12 miles an hour.

The engines, which are exact replicas of main line expresses, met around a bend in the public gardens, hurling the passengers, who sat in open trucks, in all directions. The engine was soon lifted from the driver, James Carr, but he had been instantly killed.

ARREST WOMAN AFTER COLLISION WITH POLICE CAR

Mrs. Duncan W. Dietrich, 41 years old, 258 Ridge avenue, Winnetka, was driving a large automobile last night when it collided with another occupied by two policemen at Surf street and Sheridan road. With her was her husband, who is president of a paper company at 228 North La Salle street.

The policemen, Edward Bezarek and Edwin Meisterheim, who asserted that Mrs. Dietrich called them a pair of bums, took her to Desk Sergeant John Cunningham in the Sheffield avenue station. Mr. Dietrich was allowed to remain in the sedan.

Mrs. Dietrich was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct, for "fighting and intoxication," and a bottle of gin, which the police said they found in her car, was presented as evidence. She was told she would have to produce a $25 cash bond. Mrs. Dietrich had $20 and she went out and borrowed the other $5 from her husband.

EX-CONVICT FACES RETURN TO CELL; HEARING TODAY

Carl Stepina, 35 years old, 1427 South 49th court, will be arraigned before Judge Thomas A. Green in the South State street court today. The charge against him is disorderly conduct, but if he is found guilty a penalty much more severe than a small fine or a few days in the Bridewell will result.

Stepina is an ex-convict. He was paroled from Joliet penitentiary seven months ago and any conviction of law violation will be sufficient to send him back. He was sentenced in 1927 for bank robbery.

The allegation to be made against Stepina in court is that he was caught in the company of another ex-convict, Joseph Pierce, 4326 North Homan avenue. Stepina served as a soldier in the world war and was wounded three times.

Wm. J. Lawrence, 62, Dies; Funeral to Be Tomorrow

William J. Lawrence, 62 years old, died yesterday of apoplexy at his home, 5550 Wayne avenue. He formerly was president of the National Steel and Copper Plate company, dealers in photo engravers' supplies, which he founded in 1903, and was a member of the Crescent club in Brooklyn, the Chicago Athletic association and Chicago Yacht club. His widow, Mrs. Kathryn W. Lawrence, a daughter, Mrs. Philippine L. Schwerin, and a son, Ray, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 tomorrow in the chapel at 7066 North Clark street. The body will be taken to Kalamazoo, Mich., Mr. Lawrence's birthplace, for burial.

Doctor and His Fiancee Held Up; Lose $1,000 Ring

Dr. David C. Simon, 4215 North Francisco avenue, and his fiancée, Miss Elaine Eckerling, 4930 West Adams street, were held up early yesterday as they drew up before Miss Eckerling's home in Dr. Simon's automobile. The robber took an engagement ring valued at $1,000 from the girl and $12 from Dr. Simon.

FLYER HOPS CHINA SEA ON MADRID TO MANILA TRIP

APARRI, Northern Luzon, P. I., July 10.—(AP)—Fernando Rein y Loring, young Madrid to Manila flyer, landed here today, after a hop of 450 miles across the China sea from Hongkong. A flight of only 250 miles to Manila remained to complete the Spanish aviator's venture, which started at Madrid April 24 and has been taken by easy stages.

Rein was met here by representatives of Manila's Spanish community. An enthusiastic welcome is planned for him when he reaches Manila.

Rein has made his flight in a small Spanish plane with a low power motor. Since May 27 he has been at Hongkong awaiting the installation of emergency fuel tanks and permission from the Japanese government to land in Formosa, thus breaking his dangerous flight with an intermediate stop. The permission was denied. He made the flight in 9¼ hours.

MOTHER, 2 GIRLS STRUCK BY AUTO; DRIVER ESCAPES

Mrs. Sadie Greenburg, 43 years old, and her two daughters were struck yesterday at Western and Potomac avenues by a motorist who failed to stop after the accident.

Mrs. Greenburg received a fractured skull. He daughter, Marian, 12 years old, sustained a fractured hip, and Selma, 9 years old, the second daughter, was bruised about the legs. The mother and the elder daughter were taken to St. Mary's hospital.

One auto death in Cook county yesterday raised the 1932 toll to 578. The victim:

Angelo Gabrel, 36 years old, of 124 East 23d street, Chicago Heights, died last night in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, of injuries suffered in an auto accident May 19.

3 SLAIN, MANY HURT IN GERMAN POLITICAL RIOTS

BERLIN, July 10.—(AP)—Political riots claimed three victims slain and many wounded in Germany today. A policeman was killed and another was stabbed in a clash with communists at Bremen, a National Socialist was shot dead in a fight with communists at Duisburg. A Republican reichsbannerman was killed at Eckernfoerde in an encounter with National Socialists, in which many were wounded by bullets.

Five persons were seriously wounded when unidentified individuals shot into a Nazi procession at Neustadt. Further skirmishes with a number more or less seriously injured were reported at Hagenow, Clausdorf, Dessau and other places.

HOTEL CLERK ON TRIAL.

Kansas City, Mo., July 10.—(AP)—James McCullom, 60, hotel clerk, will go on trial here tomorrow charged with slaying Frank Frits, a lodger, on May 8.

KING C. GILLETTE FUNERAL TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Inventor of Safety Razor Succumbs at 77.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 10.—(AP)—King Camp Gillette, who perfected the double edged safety razor blade to brighten the shaver's morning, is dead at the age of 77.

Funeral services were tentatively arranged for Wednesday at 11 a. m., at Forest Lawn Memorial Park here. It was announced the services would be private.

The inventor and manufacturer succumbed late last night after undergoing several operations during two years for an intestinal malady. His wife, Mrs. Alanta E. Gillette, and their son, King G. Gillette, were at the bedside in their ranch home 50 miles from here.

Mr. Gillette's condition had been serious, but the death was unexpected.

Large Realty Operator.

He came to California nearly 20 years ago from Boston, where he organized the Gillette Safety Razor company in 1901. His Los Angeles realty transactions were among the largest ever recorded here.

Educated in Chicago, Mr. Gillette became a salesman and later London Branch manager for a bottle stopper company. After conceiving the thin, sharp blade to overcome the task of straight edged shaving, he devoted five years to evolving a holder. In this he enlisted the aid of William E. Nickerson, Massachusetts Institute of Technology instructor, whose mechanical ability helped start the company's Boston plant.

Millions of Them Sold.

The razor was launched as a commercial product in 1903. Only 51 sets were sold that year, but annual sales of as many as 15,000,000 razors and a billion blades bespoke the shavers' eventual reaction. The inventor's picture, printed on the packages, became known wherever men eschew beards.

Mr. Gillette was born in Fond du Lac, Wis., Jan. 5, 1855. His father, George Wolcott Gillette, was an inventor before him. His mother wrote the "White House Cook Book."

Mrs. Gillette's father, Alanson Gaines, was a Willoughby, O., oil magnate.

Mr. Gillette was the author of several books on political economy.

FAMOUS BRITISH WAR CHEMIST DIES AT AGE OF 70

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 10.—Sir Richard Threlfall, one of the great war chemists, died at Birmingham today at the age of 70.

His wide scientific knowledge was employed by the allies to one secret technical problem after another. He was associated particularly with the development of the smoke screen and the so-called tracer bullet.

Slinky Gowns of Black and White Shown

Distinctive Combinations Thrill Shoppers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

TUCKED away in a corner, practically hidden from the casual shopper is a new room . . . a shop within a shop, filled with black and white clothes. Probably lots of lynx eyed shoppers have already discovered this precocious young brain-child of somebody's sophisticated imagination, but there must be plenty of shop hounds, totally ignorant of such a grand place to indulge a black and white contrast appetite.

In this corner you will find all white clothes, all black apparel and some of the most distinctive black and white combinations you have ever thrilled over. Color collectors are hereby warned to detour as here in this stunning new shop only black and white are displayed, color is ignored, frowned upon and even spurned.

And what a find it is for the black and white enthusiasts . . . sleek, slim frocks and gowns that will make you a thin black mysterious shadow of what you are in color . . . two and three-piece suits with just enough flattering wisps of sheer white contrasts to make them the most successful models in your wardrobe . . . black and white prints, silk and chiffon, that are just different enough to be eye filling knockouts wherever you wear them.

If you think you have seen all the smartest speakeasy ensembles, don't brag about the ones you have inspected until you see the black and white creations.

One gorgeous get-together that will cause a riot is made of thick crinkled morraccan crêpe . . . a long skin clinging gown made with bias sections intricately seamed with all the consummate artistry of a master designer. Two suspender-like shoulder straps are fastened to the gown with huge white pearl buttons. The coat is short with wide sleeves and it too is seamed and sewed together within a triangular manner. A crisp wide white organdy bow is perched a bit rakishly, high on the left shoulder. This costume sounds positively simple in print, but it is the most satisfying sinister outfit you ever saw outside the covers of French fashion folio!

Plaited black chiffon summer suits, infinitely cooler than anything else in the "sheers," probably look so delightfully cool because the slightest breeze flutters these sable draperies most picturesquely around your ankles —as a direct contrast, the bodice tops are usually of snow white finely plaited chiffon.

Another sheer suit has a short sleeved frock with a waistcoat or vest effect of white angelskin satin . . . this can be separated from the ensemble leaving a charming one-piece black frock that is worn with the hip length jacket. The jacket is contrasted with deep cuffs and a long ascot scarf of the white angelskin satin.

Once in this room or shop, you can stay . . . part of the exquisite service is the fact that you can have your costume accessories fitted and assembled with the clothes, while you are buying . . . shoes will be brought and fitted, gloves, hosiery, hats, and even jewelry will be rushed for your approval, allowing you a leisurely and restful shopping expedition without once leaving the cool gray atmosphere of the black and white room, especially planned and arranged for those fastidious feminine shoppers who are completely sold on this fashionable and distinctive combination.

All White Costume

Loretta Young models a summery costume of all white. The pleated one piece dress is of heavy white silk and the jacket is of wool basket weave trimmed with cuffs, edging and scarf of fine white wool crepe. [Fryer-Warner Bros. Photo.]

Pony Winner Happiest Boy in Lake Forest

Children Are Hosts at the Horse Show.

BY JUDITH CASS.

OF ALL the happy children at the children's horse show yesterday at Misery Farm in Lake Forest—and I never saw one who did not look happy and excited—certainly the happiest was seven year old Tommy Connors, son of the Thomas A. Connors, for he is the new owner of Bumble Bee, the two months old pony that was the chief attraction to the younger children at the show.

Not that the youngsters didn't enjoy the show tremendously, for they did, but they all fell in love with the wabbly legged little animal that various ones took turns leading about and I'm sure every child had hopes of making room in the family car to take the colt home. Tommy, however, was the lucky boy and if he had taken the pony home with him yesterday he wouldn't have had far to go for the Connors family is summering on Illinois road in Lake Forest.

Tommy said, however, that he would wait and get his new possession this morning and that he was going to keep him in the yard, so no doubt Bumble Bee is tied up there now and probably Tommy is giving him his morning bottle of milk.

The parking space around the ring was crowded with cars filled with proud parents and envious brothers and sisters and friends of the children who were riding, although the storm of the night before had made the ground so terribly muddy that the white shoes of those who left their cars were sorry sights after two steps. No one minded such an unimportant thing as that. The ice cream wagon which also sold orangeade and gave away drinking water did a rushing business, and the three young girls, Ann and May Harrington and Elizabeth Gould, who were in charge of it, were kept busy serving the customers.

Billy McLaughlin Is Winner.

Some one discovered that the organ grinder's monkey was at his most cunning when he drank a cup of water, so the monkey had all the water he could drink. Three year old Billy McLaughlin, the Frederic McLaughlins' boy, dressed in wild west garb, led the opening parade and won the blue ribbon in the lead class. His proud father was there to see him but his mother is visiting in the east just now, so she missed this important event in her son's life. The Aldis twins, daughters of the Graham Aldises, mounted together on Bobby Brundage's white pony, were second in this class. Irene Mitchell was third and Bobby Wamboldt was fourth.

In the junior walk, trot and canter class, Ed White won the blue ribbon by his excellent horsemanship; Eddie Spalding was second, Catherine Judah third, and Johnny Jelke fourth. In the senior walk, trot and canter class, Freda Robinson was the blue ribbon winner, Johnny Hughes won the red ribbon, "Sissy" Minotto the yellow, and Mansfield Hughes the white. Marian Carry, daughter of the Champ Carrys, was first in the walk and trot for children under 8 years of age on ponies, Pat Hopkins second, Richard Chatfield third, and Scotty Welles fourth.

David Wilhelm was awarded the blue ribbon in the jumping class, Freda Robinson the red, "Sissy" Minotto the yellow, and Johnny King the white.

Richard Knoblock from Fort Sheridan was first in the handy hunter class, Johnny King captured second place in this class, and Freda and "Sissy" were third and fourth, respectively.

The children from Fort Sheridan were the only ones of the 30 who started who were left at the end of the musical stalls game which completed the show. This game is similar to the old fashioned one of going to Jerusalem, which is played on foot with chairs, and musical stalls is played on horseback with stalls instead of chairs. Mrs. Austin H. Niblack and Benjamin L. Behr were the judges. A group of Lake Forest men, prominent in all equestrian activities in that north shore community, assisted Miss Libby Chase in putting on the show.

Show Given by Pupils.

The pupils of Miss Chase's riding classes gave the show. Every one in Lake Forest, practically, young and old, was at the show, although most of those except those who had children entered in the last two or three classes, had to go home to luncheon before it was over, for it started at 10:30 o'clock and was not finished until past 3:20.

A few of those who were watching the show around noon from their cars—few were inside, however, for the most of them were on top of the cars to obtain a better view—were Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift, with their children Betty and Eddie, their elder son, Phelps, was riding; Mr. Vincent Healy and Tommy Healy; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke and Mary Louanan, Johnny, Charley, and Minot Jelke, Mary Louanna very much pleased with her special prize ribbon and Johnny with his white one. Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Stanley Keith, Mrs. Edward Brundage and Jacqueline and Eddie Brundage and Malcolm and Davis McAdoo, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Connors and Tommy and Henry. Tommy did not know then he would own Bumble Bee in a few hours; Mrs. Charles Isaacs and her son, Spencer; Mrs. Cyrus Edson Manierre and her son, Billy; Mrs. Valentine Bartlett and Miss Mildred Fitzhugh; Mrs. Merrill Hubbard and an escort, and her two cunning daughters, Marie and Elizabeth, who were perched on top of the car; Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm and her sister, Mrs. Vaughan Spalding; Mrs. William Roy Carney, Mrs. John H. Mellvaine, Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, Mrs. James Minotto and Mrs. Edward Peel, with last named was her little daughter, Patsy, and Miss Betty Jane Nor-

Russia—the Old and New—Told in Travel Book

Critic Praises Objective Study of Authors.

"This Is Russia," by George Earle Raiguel and William Kistler Huff (Penn).

THE authors of one of the latest and most interesting travel books are eminently qualified to present this picture of Russia. Mr. Raigul has traveled extensively abroad, has spent years in Russia, Siberia, and countries in the farther east. He knows the conditions of pre-revolutionary Russia and thus has a background upon which he effectively bases his observations of U. S. S. R. Mr. Huff also, in a position to meet the lecturers, artists and thinkers from Europe and Asia, has spent much of his time acquainting himself, through travel, with the conditions of the world, in particular the world of Russia.

GEORGE RAIGUEL.

The result of the efforts of these well trained authors is "This Is Russia," a book that is not devoted to travel alone, nor to details for tourists, but a book that is a combination of these things, disinterested, objective, thorough, and timely.

In the chapter entitled "The Pageant of Ten Centuries" is included a brief history of the Russian nation from the time of its founding to the last czar. In this section the reader's imagination is stimulated by the exploits of the famous figures in Russian history, by Ivan the Terrible, Peter the Great, Elizabeth, and Catherine the Great. In these pages Russia gradually emerges from its primitive beginnings to one of the most powerful and brutal and enigmatic nations of the world, a country that comprised one-sixth of the territory of the world and in proportion to population was the most illiterate.

One of the most tragic and memorable failures in its history, the authors say, was its attempted westernization by Peter and Catherine. Despite all that could be done to inculcate modes of living and thinking that were characteristic of Europe at the time, Russia remained essentially oriental, a curious combination of the mystic and the sensual, the brutal and the refined, the patient and the rebellious. The authors carefully interpret the national spirit and genius in these first chapters, the better to prepare the reader for the revolution that resulted in one of the most astonishing experiments in history.

In one chapter the authors discuss the pros and cons of any one's projected trip to Russia. They explain all the possible difficulties and clear up the legend of exorbitant prices by emphasizing the difference between the "earned" ruble and the "exchanged" ruble. This chapter is valuable for those who expect to make such a tour, and is about the only feature of the book that reads like the conventional book for tourists. The rest of it can be read with interest, no matter how many thousands of miles the readers must remain from Russia.

The third section of "This Is Russia," entitled "The Modern State," presents in orderly and completely objective, almost reportorial style, the organization and purposes of the Soviet Union. It is clear, simple, interpretative enough to be interesting and impartial.

The next two long sections are devoted respectively to Leningrad and Moscow. The authors trace the development of Petersburg [which later became St. Petersburg, named thus by a loyal populace], whose name was changed to Petrograd during the world war and finally to Leningrad after the death of the idol of communistic Russia. The palaces and monuments and famous sights and buildings are described with vividness and imagination. Even the life of the court is re-created, the sumptuous elegance that was not rivaled in any other court in Europe. Later the scenes and the activities that were part of the revolution are dramatically laid before the reader's eyes with equal imagination and impartiality.

Moscow, the heart of Russia before the reign of Peter the Great and since the revolution, comes alive in one of the best sections in the book. St. Petersburg was always in the mind of the Russian people a westernized graft on the orientalism of the nation's origin. In Moscow, the mother of Russia, the inflicted westernization of Peter and Catherine never took root. It remained and is now the soul of Russia. Here, as in the section devoted to Leningrad, the authors describe the monuments and museums as well as the historic background of the city. Again, too, the life of the court, as well as that of the revolution and present day Russia, is re-created.

The last part of "This Is Russia" contains an evaluation of the art, music, and literature of Russia. Gogul, Lermontov and Pushkin, Turgenev, Dostoevsky and Tolstoi pass across the pages. Russian operas, dancing, musicians, and contemporary litterateurs are given space enough for the reader to realize that Russia possesses a vast store of cultural history.

No matter what the reader may think of the present economic order in Russia, this book creates in him a desire to visit that country and judge for himself. M. D.

Skill Is Needed in Wielding the Powder Puff

Results Repay Careful Application.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I suppose there isn't another beautifying tool so consistently applied to women's person as the powder puff. Women may slip up on the creamings of the face—not many, to be sure. But there are those who feel that a good soap and water scrubbing is all they need.

There is no substitute for the powder puff, however. There just isn't anything else that will take the shine off. More to the point, however, is that powdering is a gesture to bolster up one's feelings. Not a gesture—a habit!

With all its use, however, powdering results could be better. The speed mania to which is laid many of our modern day troubles certainly may be dragged into the powdering scene. It may be accused of most of the poorly powdered faces.

Why not apply the good old maxim about one thing at a time well done reaping the fattest harvest? This powdering of the face is so important, honestly. Theatrical women are on to this trick as few women in non-professional walks are. And I mean for street use and day appearance generally.

Here is their powdering system. Maybe we'd better begin back at the foundation cream or the thorough face cleansing. Get this all attended to first. Then put the rouge on—and after the rouge, the powder. But powder this way: Have two puffs—one large fluffy one. Use this over the entire face and neck, not forgetting to reach the back of the neck when you are at it. Then take the second puff, a finer grade, to even off the first application.

Why so many faces look half powdered, or powdered in blotches, is because parts of the face are stinted of their share. The powder is dabbed on the nose, the chin, the forepart of the cheeks and run between the eyebrows and up to a line not quite close enough to the hair line. At least twice a day the hair can be fixed back and the powdering done in a wholehearted fashion.

Of course, you will have your tiny eyebrow brush to take the extra powder off the eyebrows and lashes. A good habit using that small brush, too. Eyelashes and eyebrows profit from the brushing just as the hair does. And it is cleaner than the usual procedure of removing powder from the eyebrows.

Child Specialist Approvingly Eyes Young Generation

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

This younger generation is simply dreadful! Rude. Disobedient and disrespectful. Lazy. Wild. Extreme. At least, so many people say.

But is it? I don't find it so. I find it: Frank. Inquiring. Intelligent. Alert. Independent in thought and action. Affectionate and comradely.

Trying to make its ways fit a world very different from that of its mothers and fathers—even the world of the very young mothers and fathers.

Trying to find itself in a society where its elders often act one way and tell it to act another, so that their examples are bad ones.

As ready as boys and girls ever were to admire what is fine, follow an ideal, and love what is worth loving, and more humane than any other generation has been.

It is keeping its head in an environment where the influence of the movies and talkies, the automobile, the radio, the sensational newspapers and magazines, politics and fiction are enough to bewilder a cool-headed adult.

I find this younger generation of ours doing pretty well.

Old Time Printers Hold Quarterly Dinner Meeting

Members of the Old Time Printers' association held their quarterly meeting at a dinner last evening at the Palmer house. The association voted to send a bonquet to Owen W. Clark, one of the oldest members of the organization. He recently celebrated his 92d birthday. The members were told that another member, Thomas E. Sullivan, 90 years old, is recovering from a severe illness in his home, 2126 Hudson avenue. Mr. Sullivan is the oldest active employe of THE TRIBUNE.

Use of Cosmetics by Ancient Greeks Told by Scientist

Princeton, N. J., July 10.—(AP)—The ancient Greeks employed cosmetics to adorn the handiwork of Mother Nature. Their word from it was "paymithion."

Prof. T. Leslie Shear of the Princeton university department of art and archaeology, has been keeping this secret for two years. He divulged it on his return from Athens where he was field director of the American School of Classical Studies.

The professor dipped his hand into the vanity case of a Corinthian lady while excavating a tomb in 1930 and came up with a terra cotta box of white face powder.

Subsequent analysis by the Princeton department of chemistry showed that the powder was a lead carbonate manufactured along the same lines now used in the production of white lead. Four hundred years before the birth of Christ, it was determined, the Greeks were making and using cosmetics in great quantities.

Crowd Pays Tribute to Bishop Hughes at Camp Meeting

One of the largest crowds in the 73 years of the Des Plaines camp meeting assembled there last night to bid farewell to Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, former head of the Chicago area of the Methodist Episcopal church. Fully 3,000 persons were packed in and about the open air tabernacle to hear the tribute paid the bishop before he departs to Washington, D. C., where he will head that area of the church.

President Raymond Kimball, of the camp meeting board of trustees, told the assembled Methodists of Bishop Hughes' leadership during the last eight years. In his farewell sermon that followad, Bishop Hughes stressed the need of a renewal of the devotion which has characterized Methodism from its beginning.

The camp meeting entered its closing week yesterday. The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, South, St. Louis, will bt the preacher.

Menjou Gives Amusing Shock in Gay Movie

He Takes Role of Gullible Bachelor.

Good Morning!

There are mines and mines.

Some are of the dangerous variety. Run into them and they blow up. Others are the sort that are mined. Adolphe Menjou is a mine that is mined through most of this filium's footage.

A unique condition for the suave sophisticate whose principal claim to fame has lain in his deft manipulation of blasé and canny man-about-town rôles. To behold him all naïve and gullible is an amusing shock.

In this little farce he impersonates a gouty, asthmatic, but immensely wealthy bachelor whose money charms attract the eye, whet the desires and arouse the determination of the gold-digging elder sister of a little dumbdora who looks so much like Jean Harlow that she might just as well be Jean Harlow.

The girls hail from—Ypsilanti, I believe—a secret Big Sister Stella zealously tries to keep from the knowledge of the prey. But Little Sister Eva—who really isn't interested in anything at all but flapper whoopee—lets cats out as soon as they're bagged and Stella's whole plan would have been patent to anybody other than the innocent known as Andrew Hoyt.

Andrew, however, walks right into the trap. He dances to "Precious"—which is Big Sister's pet name for Eva—tunes till his bones creak, his eyes pop and his brain is jolted into realization of what has happened to him.

Then? Ah—then . . .! Well, you'll like that part of the picture.

'S'matter of fact I believe you'll care for it all, for, while the story is the lightest sort of summer farce, it's crisply presented against charming backgrounds that have been gorgeously photographed. The acting is competent as refers to the older members of the cast. Mr. Menjou is entertainingly in character throughout. Minna Gombel is pat as the designing Stella. Irene Purcell—why on earth we don't see more of her is beyond me!—is charming as gentle Jane, adoring secretary of Hoyt. Allan Dinehart portrays Hoyt's aware business partner in smart fashion. Joan Marsh's work leaves plenty to be desired—but she's young and will learn.

The dialogue zips along revealing some real drollery here and there, and what you are about to scowl down as an anti-climax, turns out to be a delightful surprise.

So—I hand you this gay bit of entertainment, hoping you'll do right by it.

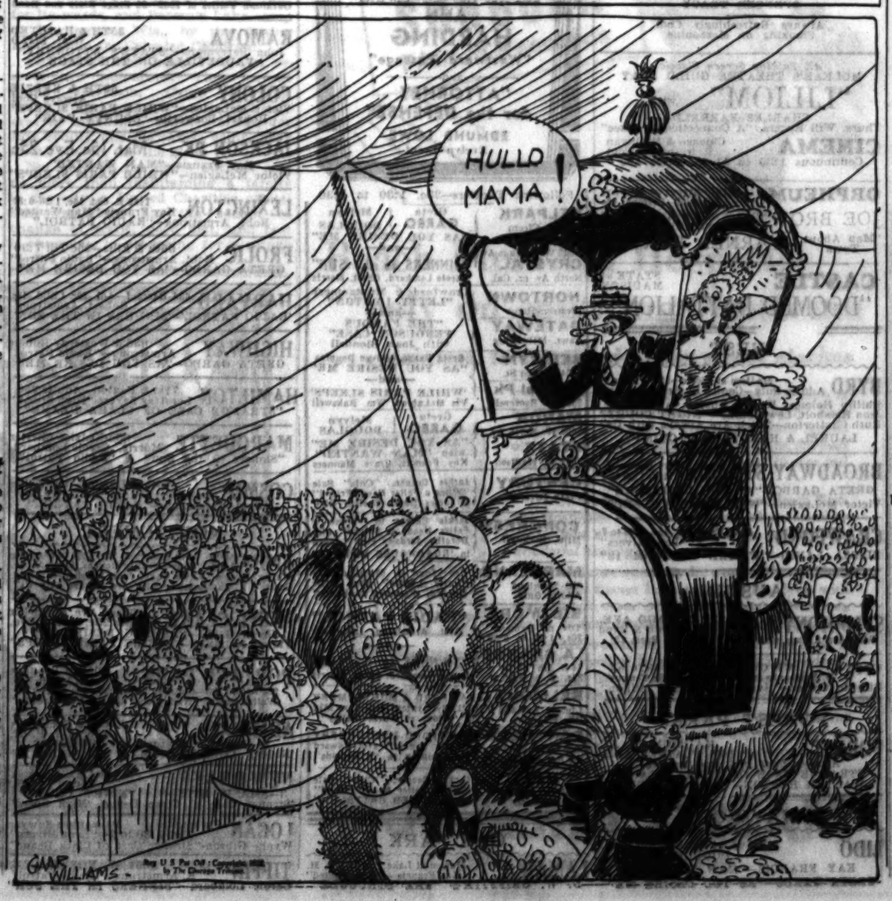
OUR SECRET AMBITION



I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralising influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doria meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Pierce comes across Gold standing forward on the boat, alone, at dark. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Doria asks Gold to dine with her the first night out.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

TABLE FOR FOUR.

Gold thought: "He won't own to her that we have already 'met.' I am nobody and he is a rich snob with just about one idea of working girls."

Yet Pierce too was inwardly sardonic. She wasn't so simple; she was deep. How—even in her glance at him—she ignored their talk in the darkness; their self-made introduction! She was no stranger to intrigue?

Her very perfect tactics suggested intrigue. And he thought again: "Yes. Women are so clever. So clever."

He was between Gold and Doria at the little table, looking politely across to Dorrance.

"You're David Dorrance?"

"Yes," Dorrance answered. "And I changed my sailing when I knew you were to be in this ship."

"O, indeed."

"Business, I suppose," guessed Doria sparklingly, "but isn't that jolly now? Isn't it fun? All of us linked up at once! Now listen, Mr. Dorrance. Listen, Barney. I don't care where you men are sitting—captain's table or anywhere! We've got to have a table for three every night; you must arrange it—"

"Table for four?" said Barney Pierce.

In the very slight pause Dorrance did some mind-reading. Doria wanted them both—charming thing, she deserved them! But she was in love with Pierce, and he with her? That might be likely; it wasn't the lovely companion-girl, for he had only just been introduced to her, and had been no more than politely interested. Pierce wanted the fourth at the dinner table to occupy Dorrance? Play into Mrs. Hathaway's hands, Dorrance said to himself, and I'll play into Pierce's. I'll get the table, he thought, rising.

"I've a lighter——"

"For four?" he repeated, bending over Doria.

She replied slowly: "Well, Miss Franklyn—she's dining with me tonight, but she may have been put at another table really—"

But Dorrance, with the situation already diagnosed, said:

"That's easily arranged," with a look to her that she could read flatteringly as: "I'll make it my affair, I'll do anything for you." She wished she hadn't engaged this lovely girl in the lovely coat. But generosity—which she had in abundance so long as it did not mulct her pocket—rescued her from an exhibition of unkindness. So she nodded; and called gaily after Dorrance: "Special dinner every night!"

"Of course," he laughed, "in the gallery of the Louis Quinze restaurant."

As he left them, he was congratulating himself all over again on his luck. The first night out; and he had dropped, satisfactorily, not only into the desirable company of alluring women, but straight into what promised to be Barney Pierce's shipboard party.

"Who is he, then, Barney?" said Doria, leaning close to Pierce.

"Dorrance. Artificial silk man."

"O. And you're a cotton man. You have plantations in the south. And factories up east, haven't you, Barney?"

"What a lot you remember," he said lazily.

"I remember all you've ever told me."

"I don't think that will burden you."

"You're the most secretive thing," she pretended to complain, but she was all radiance; all satisfaction; as gratified as a cat with cream. She expanded towards Gold: "See, Barney, what a nice little traveling companion I found for myself. I shall be awfully sorry to leave her all alone in New York, to travel back alone if she can't get a job, but there's that old dresser of mine—"

She went again into the story about the dresser, which showed—though here she did not mean to play for self-advertisement—her own innate warmth of heart.

Barney Pierce seemed to listen attentively, but his swift brain was turning to account—Gold's account—the opportunity Doria was giving him.

"It seems," he said promptly, when she had finished the tale of the old theater dresser, "as if we must try to arrange something for Miss Franklyn, if she will allow us."

In Gold pride flamed high. He was so rich, he had such power—now she more than vaguely guessed at it—and his patronage was, no doubt, a thing for which people would struggle eagerly. But how he despised women! And she could not forgive him either that blank unrecognition as he joined the table. Probably she was even annoyed—she told herself—that her employer inconveniently turned out to be the woman with whom he was, that woman said, crazily in love. He was one of the men who wanted the whole world to walk his way. But Gold Franklyn stood upon her own feet; and so she would continue to stand. As she thought thus, with a fire disproportionate to the slight sparks that had kindled it, with a reassertion to herself, of her own pride, she forgot how, even twenty-four hours ago, she would have been prudent enough to grasp at any opportunity offered for the future. What was it in her that could be touched to the core by this stranger?

"I like you so much." The hand clasp . . . and now?

"I can take care of myself, I think, thank you," she answered, and her smile replied to his brilliantly.

His smile died, and he looked at her scrutinizingly. His eyes were very wise, gray and hard. She looked back right into them. It was like a challenge. Then Doria's voice broke in rather sharply:

"Of course she can. If the worst comes to the worst I'm paying her return fare. But she can do beauty parlor work, and secretarial work, and dozens of things, can't you, my dear?"

"Wonderfully qualified, then," said Pierce easily. "I am certainly tempted to leave Miss Franklyn my office address in New York and ask her to interview the manager. May I give you a card now, Miss Franklyn, while we are on this interesting subject of work?" While he was extracting a slim letter case, he was thinking skeptically that Doria Hathaway was not likely to find that return fare when it came to the point.

"But we must have a further talk about it," he said quietly, and took out a card which he laid on the table before Gold.

She was constrained to say: "Thank you so much."

He knew in a flash that she was going to make no use of it; and he began to think in the manner she had roused him to think on his first sight of her in that dim London street. 'First woman I've wanted to speak to for . . .' had been his thought then, as with a strangely sharp regret he saw her vanish from him. Now he had found her again, and again she seemed like that, evanescent, not to be touched or held.

Doria pinched his arm complainingly.

"No matches on this table, Barney—"

"I've a lighter—"

"Go and get the match stand from over there . . . dear."

He rose and crossed to a near-by table. The moment he was out of immediate earshot, Doria turned to Gold:

"I told you! He's crazy about me! Altered all his business arrangements to sail on this boat!" Her eyes snapped and she looked brimful of the sheer joy of living. "Men are that maddest things when—"

Pierce returned; and lighted her cigaret.

His card still lay before the girl in the scarlet coat, and his eyes rested on it significantly. If she only knew how she might need that card! But she did not pick it up. And Dorrance came back.

"I think I've got the very best table in the restaurant—for the duration!"

Clara's Going to Make Rex a Movie Star

Miss Bow Will Become Film Director.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 10.—Clara Bow is still Clara Bow, the impulsive, hearty, individualistic girl who plans and talks and does things that the other Hollywood girls never think of.

Her latest is her most unusual, however.

Clara plans to turn movie director. She will become a director in order to direct her husband, Rex Bell, and make him a film star. The picture in which she is preparing to make this departure will be turned out at an independent studio, Clara says, but not until after she has finished her contracted comeback film, "Call Her Savage," for the Fox company, starting next month.

Clara was back in the Beverly Hills home with Rex today after nearly a year spent at the couple's ranch on the Nevada-California border, and said she felt that she had completely triumphed over the breakdown and illness which caused her to retire to the desert and quit films in 1931.

She said: "After my last visit to Hollywood, three months ago, I went to the ranch weighing 135 pounds. Now I weigh 117. I never felt better. Systematic diet and massage did it. I want to loose two more pounds and then I will be perfectly satisfied.

"Rex and I are very happy together and I am back in Hollywood with a new and happier outlook than I had here before. There was a time not long ago during all my troubles when I thought I would give up pictures altogether. But everybody has been so nice to me I feel all the old time thrill again."

After telling that she has become the best angel food baker that she knows of and prides herself on her all around culinary ability, due to the experience obtained in cooking all the meals at the ranch, Miss Bow turned again to the subject of films, and dropped the first news of this amazing plan:

"I have always wanted to direct a picture, and my dream probably will come true this summer. I am making a deal with Trem Carr to direct Rex in a film.

"The experience will not really be wholly new to me, however. In all of the pictures I figured in I helped here and there in the direction, and with a little study I believe I will be successful in my first serious attempt.

"Working with Rex will be ideal because we get along so well together and understand each other. Rex is all for the idea, like I am. Our names together ought to mean considerable at the box office."

Miss Bow is back to her natural reddish brown hair. In appearance she resembles the vivacious "bonfire" of 1926.

Harry Bannister is leaving tomorrow by plane for New York on the first lap of a trip to London where he will take a place in a London stage production.

Schoolboy Patrol Group to Have Picnic Friday

An all day picnic for the Schoolboy Patrol association, which has 15,000 members in Cook county, will be held at Riverview park Friday. Free tickets will be available at all police captains' offices, W. J. Falkenstein, safety director of the association, announced. Five hundred prizes are to be distributed to winners of games and athletic events.

Among other children in the show were Joan Templeton, Alice Otis, Vernon and Lester Armour, Lucia Winston, "Blissy" King, "Buddy" King, "Buddy Cudahy, Sammy Walker, Deborah Smith, Betty Dewey, Collidge Chapin, Tommy Coleman, Ann Ambler, Kay Goodman, Shirley Hopkins, Helen Mary Bryan, Annie May Henry, Bob Brundage, "Bill" Carney, Edith Farwell, Ben Carpenter, Phelps Swift, Dudley Winston, Robbie Odell, and Betty Mead.

Arden Shore Picnic Friday.

The annual Arden Shore picnic will be held on Friday at the camp at Lake Bluff. A board meeting will be held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, with the president, Mrs. George A. Mason of Highland Park, presiding. A picnic luncheon will follow at 12:30 o'clock and after that there will be reports of the camp staff and a program to be given by the children in the first lot of 1932 campers who arrived there on June 30.

Friends of the camp who give liberal contributions annually through the committees organized in every north shore town from Evanston to Lake Bluff, and the Chicago committee which raises its fund by means of its annual ball [it's to be held on Dec. 10 this year], always attend this yearly outing at Arden Shore.

The annual program gives the camp supporters an opportunity to tour the colony of 65 buildings housing 500 women and children who are there, the camp staff, the educational department, the library, and the administration buildings.

Despite the depression, supporters of Arden Shore are more determined than ever this year to raise ample quotas to care for the parents and children begging for a place in the camp for two weeks during the season. Contingents of 500 open the camp when the Chicago schools close for the summer. Two hundred of these remain for the season as workers in the kitchens, dining rooms and elsewhere, and every two weeks 300 return to Chicago and another 300 take their places.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne is permitting her remarkable collection of miniature rooms to remain on view for another week at the Ackermann galleries to aid the architects' relief fund. More than 2,700 people have visited the exhibition and it is expected that several hundred more will want to view the rooms before they are sent east for an exhibition in New York next fall. Mr. and Mrs. Thorne will leave soon for their summer estate at Santa Barbara.

Luncheon at Hertz Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hertz gave a luncheon yesterday at Leona farm near Cary for Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hitt of Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Hitt, who were house guests of the Laurance Armours in Lake Forest, spent the week-end at the Hertz farm. The Graysons, who are also house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hertz, are here for the races at Arlington.

Mrs. Carl Stibolt will leave tomorrow to spend a month at the old German castle near Baden Baden, Germany, which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse, purchased years ago, and where all the members of the Morse family have enjoyed numerous holidays. Mrs. Stibolt has been with her parents in Lake Forest since she closed her estate at Libertyville.

Edgar J. Uihlein Jr. will leave today for his father's ranch near Laramie, Wyo., and on Friday his father and his sister, Miss Paula Uihlein, will board a west bound train to join him at the ranch for several weeks. The Uihleins spend part of every summer at their western property.

Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson will be hostess at a meeting of the Lake Geneva Garden club on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Prof. Frank A. Aust will speak on "Getting Acquainted with Native Plant Materials."

A regular meeting of the board of the Garden Club of Illinois will be held this morning at the Hinsdale Country club, preceding a luncheon for the presidents of the various Garden clubs throughout the state, with the Hinsdale Garden club and the Junior Garden club of Hinsdale as hostesses. After luncheon the visitors will be taken to the Morton arboretum.

Beets Provide Refreshing Bit of Menu Color

Combine Pleasantly with Other Foods.

BY MARY MEADE.

Today our culinary spotlight falls on a food that claims first cousinship to spinach—yet isn't a "green" at all, but a root. Your first guess is right. Beet roots, known in most kitchens simply as "beets," are the fellows. More and more, with hot weather soft pedaling family appetites, we are coming to grand these jolly, rotund customers with the baby pink to wine-red blush a generous share in the job of putting palate thrillers into our three meals a day.

Mostly we have met our beets coming to the table sliced up in vinegar or parading in colorful salads, but really these are just starters in the realms of beet cookery. For, by their ability to combine pleasantly with flavorful but less colorful foods and their easy adaptability to new methods of preparation, beet roots will, if we'll let them, make summer cookery a joy to perform as well as to partake of.

Beet canapes, soups, entrées, salads and marmalades . . . beets baked, creamed, sautéed, and frittered . . . beets mashed, molded, latticed, and julienned . . . beets stuffed, scalloped—but breath fails us, and still the last of the tantalizing beet adventure is well out of sight.

But before getting out the pans and measuring spoons there are a few important things to know about beet cookery to insure that your never-so-good recipes will not unaccountably turn out to be colorless, stringy, or tasteless dishes.

First, tenderness. Baby beets are almost certain to become tender with a short period of cooking, thirty to forty minutes doing the trick. Older beets, which have developed more of a fibrous structure, take a much longer time to relent—usually from three to four hours.

Second, color and flavor. The pigments which make beets red are temperamental affairs, and if mistrected will show their displeasure by fading out of the picture or turning a dismal shade of purplish brown. Unlike the green color in vegetables, which is intensified by alkalis [soda and the salts in hard water] and destroyed by acids and soft water, the red coloring materials in vegetables and fruits are made brighter by acids and destroyed by alkalis. Thus it is important that we cook beets either in soft water or in water to which a little lemon juice or vinegar has been added.

If the color has faded in cooking, however, it frequently can be brought back by the addition of vinegar before serving.

Also, cook beets with the cover on. This catches the steam which is carrying the acids away from the water and beets and throws it back to help in the color treatment. Never add soda thinking you will hasten the tenderness process. You surely will, but the result will be mushy and of a sad, sad brown. Cook beets whole, with one inch stems and "tails" left on. To skin, plunge into cold water and slip out of jackets. Reheat before serving.

Drawn butter, orange or lemon juice, gravy, or a thick white sauce add pleasant touches to beets served on toast and used as a luncheon mainstay. To get the pleasant baked flavor many fancy you must devote from four to eight hours of low oven heat to their cooking. Bake with the skins on, and when done skin and serve with lemon juice and minced parsley.

OVEN BRAISED BEETS.

A short cut to the oven flavor may be managed by slicing large cooked beets quite thick, placing in a dripping pan and adding a dab of butter for each slice. Pour over the slices the juice of a lemon and let stew in a hot oven about twenty minutes, basting occasionally with the butter and lemon juice.

Girl Writes of Pleasures at Algonquin

Charities Care for Record Number at Camps.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Summer after summer, readers of THE TRIBUNE have contributed generously to help keep open Camp Algonquin, located forty miles out of Chicago on the Fox river. Year after year, badgered mothers from the tenement areas and undernourished youngsters have enjoyed the benefits the camp offers. Now and then comes a first hand expression of the appreciation of these families, such as contained in a letter to one of the social workers of the United Charities, received yesterday.

The writer is a girl of twelve, the eldest of a family of five children who has tried valiantly to relieve the burdens of her overworked mother. The child's disposition has made her a special favorite at the camp.

"Dearest Miss C——," she writes. "I really don't know how mother and I will ever thank you for sending us up to Camp Algonquin. You have no idea how we enjoy being up here. Mother is so happy—I haven't seen her as happy as she is now for a long time. We go for hikes most every day, and mother and I wade in the Fox river—O, it's just wonderful. Everybody out here is so sociable it seems as though we're one family. Mrs. Save out here is so nice she takes care of everything so well that it seems as though everything is run like a clock.

"Miss C——, there is something we would like to ask you, if it is possible. Do you think you could arrange for us to stay another two weeks or at least one more week?

"O, I just don't know how to tell you how happy we'd be, Miss C—— if you could just manage to have us stay. Will you please [if you have time] drop us a little note saying so, if not, we'll be satisfied with the vacation we are now having. Thank you.

"Mother and I are sending you our best regards. I must close now and hoping to hear from you soon. Just loads of love. VICTORIA F——."

Unfortunately the crowded list of those awaiting entrance to the camp makes it impossible to grant Victoria's plea, and she and her mother will have to return to Chicago when their two weeks are up. Some time toward the close of the summer, however, Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, promises to try to secure an additional week for them at Algonquin, because the mother's need for it is marked.

Donations to help many other Victorias and their mothers, as well as smaller brothers and sisters, have heir outing at camp may be addressed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, and will be listed in these columns. Similarly checks for the Free Ice fund, which protects the milk of sick babies, may be maled to the cashier.

The need of summer camps is greater now than in many previous years and social workers are making valiant efforts to meet it. What once was a luxury has become a necessity, and no faction was more prompt in realizing its worth than the social service agencies. "Going to camp," this year, embodies a significance it never carried before. It means new life, new hope, new health for thousands.

Without the tremendous service rendered by the railroads, who transport the crowds of needy families to and from most of these camps without charge to the charities caring for them, much of the advantage would be lost to the ones needing it most. With the transportation problem solved, the major factor in getting the camps and the vacationers together is handled efficiently and courteously.

It would be difficult to estimate the number of Chicagoans who will enjoy wholly or partially free rests at the Chicagoland camps this summer, but it is safe to say that it will be well above the 20,000 mark.

Men and women, boys and girls are all accepted at a few resorts, such as Camp Gray, Saugatuck, Mich., sponsored by the Forward Movement; the camp at Bridgeman, Mich., the Salvation Army, Tower Hill camp at Sawyer, Mich., of the Tower Hill Camp association, and one or two others.

Crippled children and cardiac cases are not left without resorts especially equipped to handle their afflictions. There is the Happy Haven camp, for instance, run by the South Side Crippled Children's aid at Twin Lake, Ind., for its wards, and Brown's Lake camp at Burlington, Wis., by the Outing Association for Crippled Children.

Boy Scout and Camp Fire Girl resorts are numerous. They include Camp Harrison, Camp Kiwanis, Camp Fort Dearborn, south, and several in Muskegon county, Mich., for Boy Scouts, and Mawakwa camp, near South Haven, for the girls.

Not only do the camp outings cost no more than maintaining a family in the city, a United Charities official said yesterday, but the benefit of change of scene, good diet, and rest is enormous in preparing for a return to the city routine.

Washable Linen Evening Frock Making History

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—What the dressmakers of Paris call a robe au succes fou is one dress that everybody who comes into the house wants. There aren't many these days when the buyers who come here are looking at the clothes with one eye and at their money pocket with the other. However, the Worth dress, sketched today, just that—a succes fou.

The first day this dress was shown by Worth it was ordered exactly thirty-eight times, the second just as many, and it has been going strong ever since. Everybody who sees it wants it.

This frock is made of pastel blue embroidered linen and it a genuine washable evening dress. Worth sends it out every night after the last collection is passed and gets it back freshly laundered and looking new every morning. This is one reason for its success.

Another reason is the silhouette. The smart Parisienne is getting tired of the narrow skirted evening frock, and this one, as you see, has a wide skirt. The hip yoke is closely shirred all around the sides and back, and the fullness from this shirring is left in the skirt. The bodice is entirely shirred also, except for the bolero effect that takes in the back shoulder straps and the side fronts. A cluster of dark blue silk flowers is placed on the left shoulder, and there is a tailored belt with a shell shaped rhinestone buckle.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Outerbridge have gone to their summer home, Maple Ridge farm, Litchfield, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Bullock have come to the Pierre from the Columns, their summer place in Royalston, Mass.

Mrs. Charles Thorley has left the Plaza and will be at the Samoset, Rockland, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clarke arrived on the Mauretania and are at the Ritz-Carlton with Mrs. Clarke's sister, Miss Audrey Campbell of Chicago.

Mrs. Robert Ives Gammell and Mrs. Gammell Cross sailed on the Isle de France to pass the summer in Europe.

Mrs. Charles W. Watson sailed on the Georgic.

Wise Gal Never Turns Down a Date, Says Doris

Even a Bore May Lead to Better Things.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Red" confides that a boy asks her to go out with him. She doesn't love him.

"So why should I go out with him?" she asks.

Say we, too, "Red," why should you? Only, we add: "Who's urging you to go?"

If your mind were fully made up, you wouldn't ask us. So we assume there is some doubt as to the wisdom of refusing the invitations. Which brings us to our real reason for introducing your query today.

You confide, "Red," that the boy is nice. His family is nice. He's steady, has no bad habits that you know of. Isn't bad looking—but not awfully good looking, either. And he could dress better!

The thing boils down with you, "Red," to the fact that the chap doesn't excite your interest. He lacks the flash and glamor other boys offer—other girls or you, as the case may be. His ties aren't what the well dressed man should wear. Maybe his suits aren't the proper cut or color.

Still, "Red," you never can tell about boys like that. You never can tell what they might lead you into. And we don't mean mischief, either. We mean what good company they might introduce you to. Not that we think you should go out with the boy if you feel you'd rather not. But if you haven't any other beau, if you don't know many boys, we think it not a bad idea to trail along with a chap like this just to see if he'd bring you any luck.

You do not have to become engaged or fall in love with a boy just because he asks for your company. You are not obligated in any way to him because you do accept his invitations. But when you are young it's not a bad idea to extend the scope of your acquaintances and get around and about as much as you can. Later, you may not have the opportunity.

Also, the type of boy you describe invariably is the kind of young man other men like. Not too flashy. Not too showy; good, solid sort. Such a minor matter as his dress is correctible. Reform here, under tactful girl guidance, might brighten the young man's appearance. However, our argument is that going out with a boy you may not be mad about is better than sitting at home. You are on your way, at least, to meeting more people. You can't round out a social life without many sided contacts.

Sally Invites Children to See Thurston

Noted Magician Will Thrill 100 Guests.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Isn't our party for Thursday, July 21, going to be a grand one, boys and girls? Just imagine having an opportunity to see the great Thurston, master magician, go through his bag of tricks. And what a collection he has this season! He'll mystify and amaze us with his illusions.

Women floating through the air . . . the transparent girl . . . sawing a woman in half . . . his famous magic water fountain . . . these number among his feats of magic and some of them are so mystifying even his assistants and the company of 52 people he has with him are unable to figure them out. I know you'll love every minute of his act.

All this will be at the Balaban & Katz Uptown theater, where this next party of the summer is to be held, and in addition to Howard Thurston's act on the stage we'll see the inimitable Jimmie Cagney in his prize fight picture, "Winner Take All." It's a marvelous picture from all reports and when you consider what a smell boxer Jimmy Caney would make it isn't hard to believe these reports.

Little Dickie Moore, that adorable youngster of the screen, and Marian Nixon help to make the picture a success. And there'll be a lot of other things at the Uptown that week that I haven't space to tell you about now, but I assure you they are features you'll all enjoy.

That is, you'll enjoy them if you win an invitation to this glorious party on July 21. And, as you probably know by this time, the way to win an invitation is to write a letter that will convince me you'd enjoy such a party. I shall select as my guests the hundred boys and girls who write the best letters. And I want every young person in and around Chicago who likes a good time to compete. You are all eligible.

In writing, the things to bear in mind are that you must show me that you really want to come to the party, see that your name and address are plainly written, tell me your age, and send the letter in time to have it reach me no later than next Thursday morning. Just address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat in Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast. Avoid fatty meats and starches. It's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce, as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

Beach First-Aid Hospitals rely on soothing Noxzema

. . . stainless, too, applied under street clothes

NOXZEMA USED AT FIRST-AID HOSPITALS at Coney Island, Atlantic City, Asbury Park, Revere Beach, Miami, Chicago and other beaches

SUFFERING from a red-hot sunburn that feels as though it's searing the skin off your body? Then do this quick: Get a jar of Noxzema Cream. Spread on in a healing, cooling layer. In 5 seconds, the pain will stop, the fire cool down, and you'll know real skin comfort again.

This is the expert advice of nurses at Beach First-Aid Hospitals. Noxzema is their sunburn stand-by—they give everyone suffering from sunburn this wonderful healing treatment.

Children are sometimes the worst sufferers. Their tender skin tissues burn more easily. Even with these severe cases of painful sunburn Noxzema works its same healing miracle in just a few seconds!

Another wonderful feature is that Noxzema is absolutely greaseless! So you can apply it before dressing, during the day or at night before retiring—without staining street clothes or bed clothes.

Get a jar of Noxzema at any drug or department store. Next time you go to the beach take the jar along. Apply Noxzema before exposure and get a rich, even tan without the slightest burn.

GERMANS SAIL; CHICAGO BOXERS ARRIVE AT CAMP

CROWN PRINCE AND BIG CROWD SEE TEAM OFF

Plan 2 Drills Daily on High Seas.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, July 10.—Germany's eight amateur boxing champions, who meet the Chicagoland team in the international Golden Gloves bouts at Soldiers' field July 26, sailed for America today aboard the liner Europa.

To the boys, it was the beginning of the greatest adventure of their lives. Some of them have been jobless for months. Others have been working in factories or on farms, supporting widowed mothers and smaller brothers and sisters. They could not believe it, but today they found themselves the objects of the good wishes of all Germany.

With the recent statements of President Paul Von Hindenburg, "I want you to beat Chicago," still ringing in their ears, the German boxers arrived at the quay to be met by former Crown Prince Wilhelm, who came to say farewell to them and to the German Olympic team of 65 athletes, which also sailed on the Europa.

Come In Special Trains.

"I know you will do credit to the Fatherland," the crown prince said. "I know that you will go to Chicago determined to be content with nothing less than glorious victory. And you Olympic team members—remember that Germany was recognized as Olympic champion in 1928. Try to repeat that triumph."

At 10 o'clock this morning special trains bearing the boxers and Olympic athletes from all parts of Germany pulled up near the dock where the Europa awaited them. Each car was decorated with United States and German flags and red, white and blue bunting.

The boys were dressed in coats of a medium blue shade, with gray trousers. The girl Olympic athletes wore the same kind of coats, with gray skirts. The girls carried armfuls of flowers.

Flowers Embarrass Kohlhas.

Other flowers were the object of great embarrassment to Heinrich Kohlhas, the heavyweight champion. Victor by knockouts in scores of ring battles, Heinrich found himself unable to cope with a huge basket of flowers which admirers presented him at the dock.

For a moment he stood there grinning, and then, with a sudden inspiration, he almost flung them at a group of girl athletes standing nearby.

The fighters found themselves in a new wonderland when they boarded the Europa. On the sun deck they were greeted by Privy Councilor Albert and Commander N. Johnsen, who wished them luck at Chicago. "Eight fighters, eight winners," said the councilor.

"What's Chicago Like?"

Then to their quarters. Here there were more flowers, but not so many people, so the boxers rapidly made themselves at home. Theodore Lewald, German Boxing federation official, who is in charge of the group, was the busiest man in the party. He got the boys settled, he answered innumerable questions about what this gadget was for and how that gadget worked, and he made arrangements for the champions to work out twice a day while they are crossing the Atlantic.

"What is this Chicago like?" he asked. "Perhaps there are some people from Chicago on board. We will find them and learn about this wonderful city in America."

The roster of the team follows: Werner Spannagel, Barmen, flyweight; Hans Siglarski, Munich, bantamweight; Josef Schleinkofer, Munich, featherweight; Franz Kartz, Oberhausen, lightweight; Erich Campe, Berlin, welterweight; Hans Bernloehr, Stuttgart, middleweight; Hans Berger, Duisberg, light heavyweight, and Heinrich Kohlhas, Muenster, heavyweight.

YANKEES APPEAL BAN ON DICKEY AT MEET TODAY

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—Bent on making every effort to lessen the 30 day suspension and $1,000 fine which President William Harridge of the American league imposed on their star catcher, Bill Dickey, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees and Ed Barrow, business manager, left for Cleveland today to attend the special meeting of the league's board of directors tomorrow when the Yankees' appeal from the decision will be heard.

Umpire George Hildebrand, who has been officiating at Yankee stadium the last few days, also left for Cleveland. Hildebrand was the umpire in charge during the first game of the July 4 double header in Washington in which Dickey struck Carl Reynolds, fracturing the Senator outfielder's jaw and it is believed that it was largely on his testimony that Harridge imposed so heavy a sentence on the Yankee catcher.

GOLDEN GLOVES ARMY TAKES LAKE WAWASEE FOR 15 DAYS

"When Do We Eat" Is Battle Cry on Arrival.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 10.—Chicago's Golden Gloves army took this peaceful Indiana lake by storm this afternoon. But the invasion, although noisy, was orderly. In fact, there was no more disorder than one might expect from a score of amateur boxers released from city streets with no other immediate thought than, "When do we eat?"

Food was the objective as soon as the boys had covered the quarter mile or so from the railroad to the Spink-Wawasee hotel, which will be their headquarters for the next 15 days while they are preparing for the international bouts with the champions of Germany at Soldiers' field on July 26. It was well, indeed, that the coaches had wired ahead instructions for a late Sunday dinner.

Pile Into Dining Room.

As soon as rooms were assigned, the boys piled into the dining room. They made the best of their opportunity to eat without limitation, for it had been decided that today all rules were off. Tomorrow morning, and thereafter, all menus will be prepared under the supervision of Johnny Behr, who, incidentally, has drawn up a time schedule not only for meals but for the morning and afternoon workouts as well.

For most of the Golden Gloves boxers this was the first trip into the lake region of northern Indiana. They being accustomed to think of Indiana in terms of sand dunes and farm land, this lake, more than 10 miles long, was a surprise. And, too, their quarters were more than satisfactory.

The hotel folk tendered quite a reception with all the hired hands gathered around the entrance and the weekend guests watching from the spacious lower lobby which opens directly onto the lake.

Day of Recreation.

In the afternoon the Golden Gloves scattered to all points of the lake, making the most of their half holiday. Some visited the golf course; others decided in favor of a swim. The speed boats also drew a share of the trade.

Today was a vacation for the boxers, but it was a lot of hard work for coaches and officials. Equipment, which had been sent down by truck several days in advance, was checked over. Tomorrow morning the ring must be set up, the heavy bags swung, and all fixed up for the afternoon workout in the ring. While this manual labor, which will either put the coaches into condition or ruin them completely, is going on, the boys will be out on the road for their first jaunt through the hills.

Baggage Clutters Hotel.

Although several of the Golden Gloves boys are veterans of two campaigns, and Adam Smith has been a member of three Chicago teams, to-

A's Win, 18-17, in 18th; Foxx Hits 3 Homers

Cleveland, O., July 10.—(AP)—Cleveland and Philadelphia battled wildly and stubbornly today for eighteen innings—two full regulation games—before Jimmy Foxx crossed the plate with the run that gave the Athletics a hard earned 18 to 17 victory.

Fifty-eight base hits rattled off the offerings of five pitchers in today's baseball marathon, three of them home runs by Foxx and one a home run by Earl Averill.

Won and Lost Many Times.

The game was won and lost a half dozen times according to normal standards of baseball. The most notable occasion was in the ninth inning when Ed Morgan, Cleveland first sacker, allowed Dykes' easy roller to go between his legs.

The error snatched victory from the tribe, which was leading, 14 to 13, with two men out. As it was, Simmons walked and the irrepressible Foxx then singled to score both runners and keep the A's in the fight.

Foxx hit homers No. 31, 32 and 33, batting in eight runs, scored the winning run and played hob generally with the Indians. Johnny Burnett, Indian shortstop, was the Tribe's sparkplug, ramming out nine hits, two for extra bases, in eleven times at bat.

Haas Halts Indian Rallies.

Mule Haas, plus a new timidity on the part of the Indians on the base paths, was a contributing factor to the Tribe's defeat. Three times Haas blighted Indian rallies with spectacular fielding plays. Once, in the ninth with two on and two out, he made a running shoestring catch of Vosmik's liner to kill off the winning run.

Krause lasted only one inning for Philadelphia, Rommel going 17 innings to be credited with victory. Wes Ferrell lost his sixth game of the season, going 11 and one-third innings after relieving Hudlin. Score:

SPARKS SETS FRENCH FIGHT MOB ON FIRE

Marseilles, France, July 10.—(AP)—A 15 round bout between Al Brown, Panama Negro, recognized in some quarters as bantamweight champion, and Kid Francis of Italy, ended in a riot tonight when the crowd stormed the ring and manhandled the American judge, Dr. G. V. Sparks.

The bout finally was called "no contest."

The bout had stirred up the keenest interest, for Francis is a local favorite. A heavy police guard was on hand to keep order.

At the end of the fight one judge and the referee split their ballots, Dr. Sparks held the deciding vote, but was unable to cast it, as the crowd, evidently fearing he would vote for Brown, swarmed into the ring.

Sparks was roughly handled and his ballot was torn up and destroyed. After a long and hot argument the referee declared the bout "no contest." The unsatisfactory ending of the battle will be subject to inquiry by the French boxing commission. Order was restored by 70 policemen.

The bout was closely fought all the way. Francis took an early lead but Brown was the stronger finisher.

Helen Moody Wins Twice in Dutch Tennis Tourney

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, July 10.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody beat Miss Conquerque of Holland in the women's singles of the international tennis tournament today, 6-1, 6-2. In the doubles Mrs. Moody and Elizabeth Ryan beat the Dutch pair, Miss Conquerque and Miss Dross, 6-0, 6-2.

Lacoste Is Total Loss as France Beats Australia

PARIS, July 10.—(AP)—France defeated Australia, eight matches to five, in an informal tennis team series completed today, but French fans were bitterly disappointed over the showing of Rene Lacoste.

The one time French ace was beaten twice in the series and clearly eliminated from further consideration as a Davis cup candidate.

Germans Beat English Davis Cup Team, 3-2

BERLIN, July 10.—(AP)—Germany's Davis cup team upset Great Britain's highly touted squad, three matches to two, to enter the final round of European zone competition today.

Trailing two matches to one after the first two days' play, Germany swept both of the final day's singles matches to eliminate the team previously favored to play the United States in the interzone finals.

Gottfried von Cramm evened the count at 2 all when he defeated Henry Wilfred [Bunny] Austin, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, and Daniel Prenn clinched the series with a five set triumph over Fred Perry, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 0-6, 7-5.

Great Britain won the doubles yesterday and the first two singles matches were divided, Prenn beating Austin and Perry defeating Von Cramm.

ITALY WHIPS JAPAN.

MILAN, Italy, July 10.—(AP)—Italy defeated Japan, three matches to two, in the semi-final round of European zone Davis cup tennis competition today.

The Italian singles players, Giovanni Palmieri and Giorgio de Stefani, won both of the last two singles matches to clinch the victory and gain for Italy the right to play Germany in the zone finals.

Palmieri, who had been beaten by T. Kudabara in the opening singles match of the series, conquered the Japanese star, Jiro Satoh, 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2. De Stefani then whipped Kudabara, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, in the deciding match.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 10.—A tornado, made up of 19 hits of assorted sizes blew up around the White Sox today and the results were disastrous. The Senators, greatly refreshed after dropping four out of five to Cleveland, seemed able to score runs whenever they felt that way and apparently they felt in that mood most of the time. The score was Washington, 13; Chicago, 3.

Not having any choice in the matter, Manager Fonseca started Pat Caraway, the one time sensational southpaw, but the tall boy proved that he hasn't overcome his weakness for padding the other fellow's batting averages. Pat labored satisfactorily in the first, which was the only inning that a hostile hit didn't appear. Just a few things happened to him in the second, but in the third, he did a nose dive from which the Senators salvaged five runs. Then Vic Frasier and Art Evans took turns, but the changes didn't bring about any noticeable let up in the deadly barrage.

Sullivan Has a Nightmare.

The Sox pitchers were not the only ones who found the afternoon one of great distress. They were bad enough, but their sufferings would have been less acute if the Senators hadn't persisted in overlooking young Billy Sullivan at third base. They tested him out on about a half dozen grounders or bunts, practically all of which should have been handled. Billy did some fancy diving, but didn't touch any of the grounders, much to the delight of the Senators. He managed to pick up one bunt and one short roller, but not in time to get anybody. He also picked up a high bounder back of the pitcher, but threw it wild to second.

Just so that Caraway wouldn't be too shocked when the big blowoff came the Senators served him with a warning in the second. They scored a run on Cronin's double and a single by Bluege. This stimulated the Sox into throwing a scare into the 6,000 customers and the veteran Alvin Crowder. They bounced up in the third with a pair of runs and this kept them in front for a few short moments. The tallies were accomplished on a single by Seeds, a double by Hayes, and a two bagger by Sullivan.

Now Comes Disaster.

Spencer slipped a single into right to open the home third and the riot was on. Crowder sacrificed, Kuhel slapped a drive into the right field corner and the return throw was just aimless enough to let the young man stretch the hit into a homer. Myer

Radio broadcast today—W-G-N, 2:45 p. m.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke was in such fine fettle yesterday that his 4 to 0 spanking of the third place Boston Braves wasn't the least exciting, except for the statistical phases of its accomplishment. Of course, you had to get a thrill out of the fact it was Lon's fifth straight and his twelfth win of the season, and there was some wallop in the realization that the Cubs have won five straight since starting their home stand against eastern invaders. But the actual pitching performance pretty nearly made it a no contest entertainment after the Cubs got two runs in the first inning.

Lon was so good that only one Boston runner got to third and only two others reached second. In the third inning, Frankhouse got to second after two were out; in the fifth, Akers got to third, also after two were out, and there were two out when Urbanski got to second in the eighth inning.

Hartnett Supplies Hits.

Half of the Cub runs were scored by Mr. Warneke's battery mate, Gabby Hartnett. Gabby socked his No. 3 homer to lead off the second inning. In the fourth they let the same gent waste a single, but Gabby busted a double to start the seventh and scored thereafter, thus retiring from the offensive with a perfect record at bat.

What the skilled and orderly Cub performance lacked in thrills to the 30,000 customers was made up to a degree by the posting of the score of the nip and tuck game in Brooklyn, in which the Pirates nosed out the Brooklyns in the eighth and ninth innings to protect their 1½ game lead over the Cubs. While the gang was pulling for the Pirates to lose, keeping apace was good enough. And then there is the circumstance that the Braves can not leave Chicago ahead of the Cubs, even if they beat Pat Malone today and Bob Smith tomorrow.

One Hit: Two Runs.

A single by English was all the hitting the Cubs had to do to make two runs in the first inning. Herman reached first on Urbanski's fumble and took second on a wild pitch. He scored on English's hit. Cuyler bunted and was safe when Frankhouse fumbled, English stopping at second. Stephenson also sacrificed, putting English on third and Cuyler on second. Barton drove a long fly to Berger, English scoring and Cuyler holding second. Maranville threw out Grimm.

Worthington registered the first hit off Warneke to start the second, but it forthwith was nullified by a double play started by Herman. Shires then flied to Cuyler.

Hartnett started the Cubs' second with that No. 3 homer, a high one,

THIS IS CLASSIC WEEK—THE WEEK THEY PICK CHAMP

Fourteen Sure Starters in $85,000 Stake.

BY FRENCH LANE.

At the opening of Classic week during which Arlington Park's racing season reaches its peak, a roll call indicated a field of 14 for the world's richest 3 year old race next Saturday afternoon.

Those answering "present" and ready for the battle will involve some $85,000 were:

Top Flight	Faireno
Gusto	Evening
Stepenfetchit	Osenlator
Fairbypair	Brandon Mint
Sunmelus	Adobe Post
Big Brand	Mad Pursuit
Sweeping Light	Late Date

A few others answered "present," but in a sort of a weak voice. Among them were Proteus, Bubble Up Masked Knight and Marmion. They are on the job training, but they haven't much of a desire to step into the kind of a battle the Classic promises to be.

The Classic again will definitely decide the 3 year old championship, just as it did in 1929 when Blue Larkspur won, in 1930 when Gallant Fox captured the rich prize and again last year when Mate beat the game and fleet Twenty Grand.

Will Decide Title.

Victory for Top Flight, Faireno or Gusto will stamp the winner as the best 3 year old of the year and even if Stepenfetchit should win he most likely will wind up his campaign regarded as the best 3 year old of the 1932 season.

But it is the battle between Top Flight, the filly champion of the world beaten but once in her racing career, and Faireno, winner of the Belmont Stakes, Dwyer Stakes and Shevlin Stakes in New York, which will make the Classic the most interesting 3 year old race run in many seasons.

Not since those stirring days of the Zev-In Memoriam-My Own feud back in 1923 has a more interesting 3 year old championship situation existed. And if the filly Top Flight wins she will establish herself not only as the greatest mare in the world but one of the superhorses of all time.

Buckingham Today.

Classic week at Arlington will be a gala week. Classic candidates begin going into action this afternoon in the Buckingham purse at a mile. They will be tuning up in other races for the first three days of the week. Then on Wednesday afternoon comes the renewal of the Hyde Park Stakes, which bring all the best 2 year olds in America into action.

The largest field to compete in a Chicago race this season will parade in the Hyde Park. Racing Secretary Joseph McLennan expects twenty youngsters to face the barrier in the dash of five and one-half furlongs giving it a gross value of more than $27,000.

Outstanding among the candidates are Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory, which established a new track record of 1:04 1-5 for the distance in a recent victory here, and Charles C. Van Meter's Red Whisk generally conceded to be the west's best juvenile. The latter was second to Crowning Glory in this record breaking performance, but gave the Whitney colt much weight on that occasion.

Coe to Start Three.

W. R. Coe is expected to have the strongest numerical entry as his trainer, Benny Creech, is planning to start Polonian, Ladysman and Sunny Queen, none of which have run at Arlington. Hal Price Headley's speedy Liqueur, which triumphed in the Gold Coast Stakes, will start as will S. W. Labrot's Bally Bay and Le Mar stockfarm's Misguide. The latter defeated Audley farm's good filly Hilena, on Saturday.

Hilena is expected to accept the issue as is her stablemate, Trace Call. Projectile, which captured the Curran Memorial Stakes at Washington Park is another probability, and he will run for Adolph Pons, who recently leased him from the Mereworth Stud.

Among the other probabilities are Morton L. Schwartz's Clarify; Mr. Joe, the consistent stablemate of Red Whisk, who has not been out of the money in seven starts; Tranquillity Farm's speedy Miss Purray, winner of four races and second once out of five starts; W. C. Weant's Wise Anne, winner of the Clipsetta stakes at Latonia; C. V. Whitney's Rapscallion and Roman Holiday, a companion of Crowning Glory.

First Outboard Regatta Sunday at Fair Lagoon

Chicago's first regatta of outboard runabouts will be held next Sunday afternoon on the world's fair lagoon in Burnham park, it was announced yesterday by Lieutenant Commander J. M. Creighton, director of water sports for the exposition. The Jackson Park Motor Boat club, the North Shore Outboard club, and the National Outboard association will sponsor the races.

Extra! Stecher Predicts Victory; So Does Steinke

Joe Stecher, three times heavyweight wrestling champion, and Hans Steinke are getting talkative about what they're going to do tomorrow night when they meet at the Marigold Gardens, Grace street and Broadway.

Promoter Doc Krone has lined up four supporting bouts. Wee Willie Davis meets Jim Clinkstock, Oklahoma Indian exponent of the scissors, in the semi-windup. Other bouts feature George Hills, Wisconsin lumberjack, vs. Ray Richards; George Tragos vs. Oscar Kohl, and Hans Bauer vs. Charlie Fox, the Cleveland policeman.

The powerful scissors of Stecher mean nothing to Steinke, whose press agent has composed the following speech:

"His scissors hold won't amount to anything with me. My strength will make his legs look like toothpicks. I'll rough him around the ring so much he'll forget what it's all about. Then I'll floor him."

Just reverse this and you'll have Stecher's statement.

Mrs. Hack Is Victorious in Skokie Tennis

Mrs. Dorothy Hack, leading woman tennis player of the Chicago district and wife of the Chicago Cubs' third baseman, yesterday defeated Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., to win the Skokie invitational tournament at Glencoe. Mrs. Hack, with a dazzling array of chop shots, sent her opponent down in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2.

Jay Cohn of Santa Monica, Cal., won the junior crown by defeating Lindsay Franklin of Topeka, Kas., in three sets, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

Mrs. Hack, who two weeks ago defeated Miss Wolf in the finals of the western meet, flashed the best tennis seen among feminine players in Chicago this year. She ably took to the net and smashed hard, accurate drives into unprotected regions, successfully covering her own court with amazing speed.

Cohn Plays Steadily.

Miss Wolf was bothered by the terrific cut on Mrs. Hack's chop shots, and as a result many of her return drives were netted or bounded off into outside territory.

Cohn played for steady and consistent tennis, using both the fore and the back court with equal ease. He faltered but once during the battle, when Franklin staged a brilliant rally to win the second set.

In morning matches Mrs. Hack defeated Eugenie Sampson, 6-0, 6-2, while Catherine Wolf sailed through Lucy Jane Hedberg, 6-1, 7-5.

Doubles Today.

The doubles championship was not decided yesterday, due to the blazing sunshine. It will be played today. Helen Fulton, the Chicago city champion, and Jay Cohn, who have already reached the finals, will play the winner of the match between Mrs. Hack and Dick Lewers against Lucy Jane Hedberg and Lindsay Franklin.

Anzac Cricket Team Piles Up Many Victories

The Australian cricket team, considered the world's champions in the sport, continue to pile up imposing scores against Canadian teams in the games preceding its appearance at Grant park on July 23, 24, 25 and 26.

At Victoria, B. C., the Australians scored 503 runs for the loss of only seven wickets. The second day it defeated Victoria 306 to 180 with only six men at bat. A western Ontario team lost to the Australians at Guelph, the Australians scoring 479 runs with only six men batting.

The next game was at St. Catharines, where 18 Ridley college students lost. Ridley scored 251 runs with the loss of six men and the Australians replied with 186 runs with the loss of only one man.

The Australians will arrive July 22 for their series against picked players from the Illinois Cricket association.

GUTH AND SIMA WIN FOURTH RACE OF BIKE SERIES

A crowd of 3,000 saw Fred Guth and Henry Sima, representing the Henry playground, score 45 points to win the fourth of a series of eight one hour team races sponsored by the Amateur Bicycle league of America yesterday at Humboldt park. Guth and Sima lapped the field, as did three other teams. The races are held to raise funds to send a team to the Olympics.

Jerry Rodman, south park title holder, and Morris Gillis of the Lake View cyclists were second with 28 points, while Frank Lemajeur and Andy Cajet of the Belgian-American club were third with 19 points. Stanley Olsen, South Chicago Wheelmen, and Art Cumming, Star Cycle club, were fourth with 11 points. Andy Engelhardt, 1929 holder of the state and tri-state titles, who placed second in the national championships at Boston, paired with Ed Triest of the Barrett A. C. to place fifth with 15 points, a lap in arrears.

Henry Vervoort, Belgian-American, won the three mile open event, with Sylvester O'Barski of South Chicago second. Arvid Anders of the Lake View Wheelmen was third. Al Klingbell defeated Fred Smedt and Tony Iacovette in the Australian pursuit race.

Chicagoan Wins in Class A at Outboard Regatta

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10.—(AP)—Ten states and Canada were represented in the sixth international regatta of outboard motorcraft, the closing sports feature of centennial week here today. The east was victorious. In the class A open, one heat, Bob Meyer of Chicago won in 10.18. Russ Heinz of Pittsburgh won from a large field in the class B for amateurs.

60 Women Start Play in Western Open Meet Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 10.—More than 60 women golfers from Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota were at Ozaukee Country club today, prepared to begin qualifying play tomorrow in the third annual women's western open tournament. The entries included June Beebe of Olympia Fields, Chicago, the defending champion.

Miss Beebe and Mrs. Hayes Dansingberg of Rochester, Minn., will open the tourney at 9 o'clock, with other pairs following at five and ten minute intervals.

Miss Beebe's greatest competition is expected to come from Florence Hadfield of St. Augustine, Fla., who will represent the Blue Mound club of Milwaukee, Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, Ia., Mrs. G. E. Cleophas of Beloit, and Jane Cannon, another Milwaukeean.

The best practice round reported today was that of Miss Cannon, who had an 82 for 18 holes over the 6,400 yard Ozaukee course. Women's par is 80. Additional entries are expected tomorrow.

Night Herons Plentiful in Chicago Area

BY BOB BECKER.

Several days ago we watched a few black crowned night herons feeding at a pond near Wheaton, Ill. While paddling down the Fox river recently we saw more of these water birds and we wondered at the time where their rookery was.

Now comes word from Helen McWeth, 704 Downer place, Aurora, that she has discovered a rookery of black crowns north and west of Aurora. Her report of a visit to the rookery is as follows:

"I would like to acquaint you with a find I have made in this locality. Some distance north and west of here I have found a large group of black crowned night herons. That they number several hundred I believe is not an overestimate.

You are familiar with this species, so I will not bother with any description of the bird. Some people have been of the opinion that the birds are blue herons. But studies of the Audubon society, which I have consulted, prove conclusively they are the black crowned.

Nests on Top Branches.

"The nests, which are large, loosely made structures, are situated in the topmost branches. In one tree I counted seven nests. A pair of young herons, probably too venturesome, have taken up their abode on the ground in a large brush pile—ungainly little belligerents!

"A short time ago I rose at 4 a. m. and went out to discover the feeding ground of the colony and was fortunate enough to find it and watch the birds. At the same time I was treated to a particularly favorable opportunity to see about twenty varieties of birds. The most beautiful and enjoyable sight was two little goldfinches perched on a telegraph wire and near them an indigo bunting. The bunting, by the way, is fairly common in that locality."

Feeds After Sunset.

The black crowned night heron is very easily identified by its glossy greenish black crown and upper back. It's total length is about 24 inches and as the name implies this bird usually feeds after sunset. However, when there are young in the nest the parent birds have to hunt food most any hour of the day or night.

When we were on the Fox river we heard the hoarse, loud "quack" of the birds many times after dark when we were encamped close to the river. A few years ago we were told of a colony between Chicago and the Fox and north but this is the first report we have had of a rookery north and west of Aurora.

COOPER, SMITH WHIP SARAZEN, ARMOUR, 7 AND 6

Glen Oak Pro Is 3 Under Par with a 70.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper, not satisfied with winning the Canadian open championship, hopped off a train from Ottawa yesterday and out to his home club of Glen Oak, where he entertained a welcoming audience of nearly 5,000 by teaming up with Horton Smith of Oak Park to defeat Gene Sarazen, the British and American open champion, and Tommy Armour, 7 and 6, in an exhibition best ball match. Net proceeds were turned over to the American Olympic games fund.

Cooper started out as though he intended to set a new course record and received such able support from Smith that by the end of nine holes Sarazen and Armour didn't have a chance. The fact that Harry, Horton, and Tommy had competed in the Canadian open may have had something to do with the fact that all led Gene, who has done almost no playing within the last week, in medal scoring. Cooper shot a 70, three strokes under par. Smith had a 71, and Armour a 74, while Gene's total was 76. The little Italian, who is now regarded as the world's greatest golfer, had great difficulty with his putting, missing several shots for birdies by inches.

Cards for Match.

Par and the cards for the match, which was played out the full 18 holes for the benefit of the gallery, follow:

Par—Out	443	453	544	36
Par—In	534	444	454	37—73
Cooper—Out	342	353	553	38
In	435	544	444	37—70
Smith—Out	444	443	543	35
In	624	444	453	36—71
Armour—Out	444	453	544	37
In	534	454	444	37—74
Sarazen—Out	543	453	644	38

Cooper Starts with Birdie.

Cooper gave his twosome the lead and the gallery its first thrill on the first hole, where he was 40 feet off the green but holed out his approach for a birdie 3. He sank an 18-footer on the third green for another birdie and followed it up by holing out from the edge of the green on the 4th hole. He pushed another in from 50 feet out on the ninth green to be out in 33, and with the assistance of Smith, who shot birdies on the 5th and 9th, was 5 up at the end of nine holes.

Birdies by Cooper on the 10th and by Smith on the 11th, and a halved hole on the 12th ended the match as far as the result was concerned.

PIRATES DEFEAT DODGERS, 8 TO 7; KEEP SLIM LEAD

Pittsburgh Wins in 9th as Wilson Loses Drive.

Brooklyn, July 10.—(AP)—The league leading Pittsburgh Pirates paid a flying one-day visit to Ebbets field today and took home an 8 to 7 victory over nine innings of see-saw baseball. The Pirate victory enabled the team to stay a game and a half ahead of the Cubs.

Floyd Vaughan, Pirate shortstop, scored the winning run in the ninth when he singled and went all the way home on Comorosky's drive that went through Hack Wilson and rolled to the fence. Both starting pitchers, Mungo and French, were driven to cover in the third.

Manager George Gibson of the Pirates was banished by Umpire Magerkurth for arguing a called third strike on Swift, the winning pitcher. Barbee, Pittsburgh outfielder, injured his shoulder making a diving catch in the sixth and Comorosky finished the game in left field.

REDS BEAT GIANTS TWICE.

Cincinnati, O., July 10.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds emerged into the day light after more than a month in the cellar by winning a double header today from the New York Giants, 6 to 4 and 4 to 2.

The Reds pushed the crippled New Yorkers into last place with a combination of bunched hits, good pitching, and an exceedingly tight defense.

Owen Carroll and Adolfo Luque engaged in a pitching battle in the second game until the eighth inning, when the Reds bunched a base on balls and three straight singles to score the winning two runs. Luque was relieved by Herman Bell.

SQUARES, MILWAUKEE SPLIT.

Logan Square shared a Wisconsin-Illinois league double header with Milwaukee yesterday at Logan Square park, winning the first game, 5 to 3, and losing the second in seven innings, 6 to 5. McNaughton stopped Milwaukee in the first game with six hits and fanned eight. In the second game Quader held the Squares after the first inning until succeeded by Blatz after Stumpf had batted for him. The Squares scored two runs in the ninth and had the bases full when the game ended. Scores:

Roper Fights Tomorrow on Sparta Card

The West Side Boxing club will present boxers in all classes from featherweight to heavyweight when ten bouts of four rounds each are fought at Sparta stadium tomorrow night.

Jack Roper, former California fighter, will replace George Neron against Tommy Davenport, Hot Springs, Ark., in the heavyweight match. Neron was taken off the card following his knockout by Roper at Milwaukee last week. He received a long cut over his right eye that will keep him out of the ring for several weeks.

Paul Dazzo, former Golden Gloves champion, will appear on the program in the featherweight bout. Dazzo has lost only two matches since turning professional two years ago. The assistant matchmaker, Sol Katz, said last night that Paul Stepright has agreed to fight Dazzo.

Danny Neenan, Golden Gloves runnerup this year, will meet Art Donovan, Joliet, Ill., in a lightweight contest. Welterweight bouts bring together Jack King, Little Rock, Ark., and Herb Peterson; and Jimmy Lundy, Butte, Mont., and Dick Sisk, Mickey Patrick, East Chicago, Ind., and Henry Firpo, Louisville, Ky., are middleweight battlers. Other matches are: Oscar Liebman vs. Mickey McGee, Jack Robinson vs. Tex More, and Harry Schuman vs. Harry [Kid] Roberts.

RODERICK AND SIGWALT TIE IN CASTING MEET

Dave Roderick and C. R. Sigwalt tied for first place in the weekly casting tournament of the Lincoln Park Casting club at Fullerton avenue and the Inner drive yesterday. Roderick and Sigwalt each scored 98 points. Eddie Davis, Joe Nystrom Jr., Joe Nystrom Sr., and E. Lambert tied for third place with 97 points.

Davis captured the ½ ounce accuracy bait event, scoring 96 points, while J. L. Caplinger and Lambert tied for second with 91. Davis also tied in the ¾ ounce accuracy bait event with D. W. Hilstrom, and A. J. Naugle with 93 points.

GRACE ERRORLESS IN 64 GAMES; SETS NEW RECORD

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 10.—(AP)—The perfect catcher was discovered today to be Earl Grace of the Pirates.

By his faultless receiving in today's game at Brooklyn, which the Pirates won, 8 to 7, Grace established a new major league record of 64 games without an error.

His perfect play in every game he has engaged in this season eclipses the former nonerror record for catchers held jointly by Johnny Bassler and Van Clemmons.

GOLDEN GLOVES TRAINING.

LAKE WAWASEE, Ind., July 10. —[Special.]—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, you said I better come down and see our Chicagoland boxers start training for their international bouts against the German boys at Soldiers' field July 26, so here I am. We arrived in time for luncheon, or possibly it was dinner, one couldn't tell from the menu.

Of course, when you suggested this trip it didn't sound so terribly good to me because I had been improving the breed of thoroughbreds out at Arlington park rather successfully, and besides I feared the loss of my patronage might cause the track to close. You see the handle isn't up to former years because of the depression. Now I usually make about three $2 bets a day. Well, figure it out for yourself. The track takes 6½ per cent, so it will miss 39 cents a day while I'm down here. I just want President Otto Lehmann to know I'm here on duty in case the track does have to close on account of that 39 cents daily.

I didn't want to seem unwilling to come, so I didn't say anything back. In these times one doesn't say anything back to his boss. Well really, Arch, this isn't going to be so bad to take. In some ways it already reminds me of how hard I used to work for you when you sent me to Florida to cover the winter fights down there, and we had to play golf and go in the ocean and to the race track and occasionally visit the fighters' training quarters, although that really wasn't necessary because the Madison Square Garden publicity staff got out a summary of happenings each day at press headquarters.

I told you, didn't I, about the New York fight expert there whose boss went to Miami suddenly. He wanted to go to training quarters to see the workout and the expert didn't know where to take his boss because he had never been to training quarters.

Well, there's a golf course here just across the street from the Spink-Wawasee hotel where we stop. The hotel fronts the lake and the "swimming hole" is right off the cement walk. The boxing will be done in the garage, open at both ends and two stories high, and that's only about 200 feet from the hotel. So actually things here are somewhat more convenient than at Miami except that we have to write our own copy. But I'm willing to do that, for, as I always have admitted to you, I'm no shirker and very conscientious about my work. For example, I'm writing this letter to you now while all our boxers and retinue are out on a trip around the lake in speed boats.

This Lake Wawasee fooled me, Arch. I thought it was something like Phantom lake up in Wisconsin, but it's ten miles long and two miles wide in some places. Although I was born in Indiana I didn't know we had many lakes because I came from down in the coal mining regions. They tell me there are 64 lakes in this county, of which Wawasee, of course, is the largest. Why, when I told a friend I was coming here, he thought it was up in northern Michigan.

In case your children are interested in geography, Wawasee was an old Indian chief, but he must be dead, for I haven't seen any Indians around. Mr. Buckley, the hotel manager, told me sometimes there were Indians at a dancing pavilion a few miles from here, but it sounded funny because he sort of smiled when he told me.

It looks like a great place for the Chicagoland boys to train for the German boxers, because the nearest town is three miles away and there are no temptations, I am told. Of course, I did see a couple of slot machines and I understand there is a casino somewhere in the vicinity. Our Chicagoland boys are amateurs, so they haven't much money and the slot machines and casino won't interest them.

If you don't mind, however, I'd like personally to visit the casino and see whether there is 17 or 27 on the wheel one expects to find at casinos. Only first I'd like to know whether, if there is no 17 or 27 on the wheel, I can charge the investigation on my expense account.

I'm not telling you much about the boys because Trainer Johnny Behr said this would be "Get Acquainted day" and the training won't start officially until tomorrow. I'll keep you posted and if I find the work is more than Smitty and I can do, we'll let you know and perhaps you'd send some one down to help us, but we'll do the best we can for the present.

Regards. HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

Browns Take Two Games from Yankees

New York, July 10.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns captured two games from the league leading Yanks today, 10 to 9 and 3 to 7, in 10 innings.

Goose Goslin led the visitors' attack in the first game, in which Lefty Gomes was shelled from the mound, with five hits that drove in four runs. Errors by Crosetti and Ruth, however, gave the Browns what proved the winning run.

WHEAT HOLDING EXPECTED TO BE OVER BILLION BU.

European Crop Said to Be Smaller.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Starting of the new crop season of 1932-'33 finds many interesting factors.

The winter wheat crop this year is estimated at 411,000,000 bu, against 787,000,000 bu last year. The spring wheat crop is privately estimated at 274,000,000 bu, against a crop failure last year with only 106,000,000 bu raised. Indications are that the United States will have 685,000,000 bu of all wheat, provided there is no change in present estimates at the end of the season.

With a carryover of 350,000,000 bu, which is considered low, there would be 1,035,000,000 bu in the United States. The Canadian crop is estimated from 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 bu, compared with 314,000,000 bu last year. On the basis of the outside figures there would be more than 1,500,000,000 bu of wheat in North America, a quantity sufficient to supply all consumptive requirements and provide an exportable surplus sufficient to make up any ordinary deficit in European or South American countries.

European Crops Appear Lower.

Within the last few days reports have come from a number of European countries that their crops have fallen down materially from early expectations. The trade might as well forget about Russia, as it is too uncertain to be used for definite calculations. Within the last week three sets of reports have been received that were supposed to have been from authoritative sources, indicating larger and smaller production this season. Those who have tried to follow Russia say it is useless.

Stocks in Argentina and Australia are said to have been greatly reduced. All these factors combined suggest a world surplus sufficiently large for all requirements.

Visible supply in the United States is 163,000,000 bu, unusually large, although 26,000,000 bu short of the big supplies a year ago.

Strenuous efforts are being made for a trade revival in all lines. Every one favors such a movement. At the same time close observers and analysts run against the question as to how a big bull movement is to be started with the immense surplus of wheat. All agree that prices should be allowed to drop to a world's export level and kept there until the surpluses are reduced to normalcy. Unless they are there will be nervous, choppy markets, with a slow return of prosperity. We have the grain to sell, why not put a price on it and clear out the surplus, after which we can go ahead and dictate prices for our grains.

Federal Grain Report Due.

The trade will have the government report on grains today. Estimates are expected to be about in line with private reports given out July 1.

At the close of the week wheat prices showed net gains of ⅝@⅞c compared with a week ago, with July finishing at 48c, September 50⅝@50⅝c, and December 53⅜@53⅝c for old style. Prices for the week follow:

Three Billion Bu Corn.

Trade expectations are that the government report today will show more than 3,000,000,000 bu of corn, probably the largest crop ever raised. With heavy reserves carried over from the 1931 crop the question is, "What is to be done with the corn?" The only solution is to put prices down to a competitive level with Argentina and other exporting countries. Unless that is done there will be an unsatisfactory market situation. A little export business is done occasionally, but it is too

United Air Reports Gain in Travelers

BY HUGH SEXTON.

United Air Lines, operating from Chicago to New York, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle, carried 35,920 passengers in the first six months of this year, as compared to 15,629 passengers carried in the first half of last year, an increase of 130 per cent, according to P. G. Johnson, president of the lines.

This growth in passenger traffic demonstrates the position of United Air Lines in the passenger carrying division of air transport, particularly on the coast to coast route. It also bears out estimates made in the first few months of the year that the total number of passengers carried this year on air lines in the United States will exceed 1,000,000, or twice the total carried last year. Other lines have been reporting increases of around 100 per cent over similar periods of last year.

Increase Is Steady.

The increase in passenger traffic on United has been steady. From the 15,629 in the first half of last year, it increased to 27,563 in the second half, and then to 35,920 in the first half of this year. The last half of this year is expected to bear at least the same relation to the first half, as the similar period of last year bore. This would be an increase of 75 per cent in the second half over the first half. Such an increase would mean a total of more than 62,000 passengers in the next six months, or a total for the year of more than 97,000 passengers for United Air Lines alone, one-tenth of the total passengers expected to be carried.

For the three six month periods the number of miles flown has increased steadily. The first half of last year, 4,940,686 miles were flown, and in the last half of the year 6,174,455 miles were flown. The first half of this year 6,255,120 miles were flown. In other words, while passenger volume increased 130 per cent between the two similar periods, miles flown increased only slightly more than 25 per cent, which indicates increasing revenue from that source without an undue increase in operations costs.

Air Mail Business.

Air mail carried the first half of last year amounted to 2,374,397 pounds, and the last half of last year, to 2,465,407 pounds. The first half of this year about 1,900,000 pounds of mail were carried. This decrease is attributable to two factors, a belated falling off of business air mail volume on account of business recessions, and increased competition for long haul mail loads on the part of Transcontinental and Western Air Lines and American Airways.

Some of the volume lost the first of the year by United when T. & W. A. inaugurated a 24 hour Los Angeles to New York mail schedule is expected to be regained by the former this fall when it places in operation a fleet of new, fast passenger, mail and express planes which will cut the coast to coast time below 24 hours on the United route.

Decline in Sterling Seen Due to Short Covering

[Copyright, 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 10.—It has now become clear to the London banking community that the abrupt decline of sterling since the early weeks of June was primarily due to covering of the "bear position" in dollar exchange which had been created during the recent scare over the American position. It may also, however, have been emphasized by selling in anticipation of sales of war loan stock by foreign holders. Uncertainty over the course of efforts at Lausanne was possibly also for a time an adverse factor in sterling, and the rate received very little official support during its downward movement.

Reports Spencer Heater Sales in 23.6 Pct. Gain

Williamsport, Pa., July 10.—Unit sales of the Spencer Heater company, division of Cord corporation, for the first six months of the 1932 fiscal year ending June 1, were 23.6 per cent greater than for the same period in 1931, C. N. Tull, president, announces. An intensive sales and newspaper advertising campaign during the last few months was cited by Mr. Tull as one of the reasons for the increase.

GENERAL COMMITTEE FOR THE PROTECTION OF

Real Estate Bondholders

To the Holders of Real Estate Bonds or of Certificates of Deposit Issued Therefor:

In the last few years, real estate bond issues aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars in amount have been sold to the public. A large number of these bond issues are now in default. The undersigned, at the request of holders of substantial amounts of real estate bonds now in default, have agreed to act as a general committee for the protection of real estate bondholders.

At the request of the Committee, Hon. Samuel Seabury has consented to serve as chief counsel for the Committee. He has associated with himself, as counsel, Messrs. Cotton, Franklin, Wright & Gordon and Samuel L. Chess, Esq. The policies to be followed as to all matters of litigation and plans for reorganizations will be subject to the approval of counsel for the Committee.

The Committee is prepared to accept deposits of bonds of certain issues, most of which were distributed by S. W. Straus & Co., and certificates of deposit issued therefor. A list of such issues will be furnished upon request.

Chief Counsel:

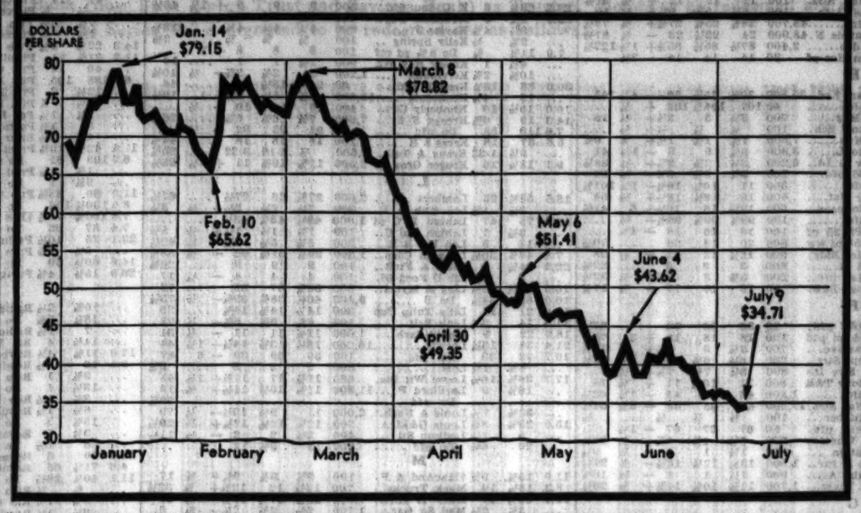
Average Daily Closing Prices of 50 Leading Stocks on the New York Stock Exchange



PRICE OF BONDS STRONGER; LED BY FOREIGNERS

German Issues Among Features.

New York, July 10.—(AP)—The bond market will start the new week with prices of most issues at least a shade higher than they were at the start of last week, and with many foreign government and municipal issues now ruling at or near their highest prices of the year.

Settlement of the reparations problem at the international conference in Lausanne was a fillip to the market which was reflected last week in striking gains—not only by German issues of all descriptions, but also by several other European, South American, and Japanese bonds as well.

Bond Value Is Higher.

At the close of the week, the total market value of all bonds listed on the New York Stock exchange stood substantially above the $37,353,339,937 total reported by the exchange as of July 1. The latter figure, in turn, represented an increase of $696,711,657 over the June 1 total, or approximately 2 per cent.

A number of foreign bonds rallied 5 to 10 points during the week. The German government 7s reached 73, up 11⅛ from the preceding week's low price of 61⅞. The German government 5½s crossed 51 for the first time this year, up over 10 points from the preceding week's low of 41. The Argentine 6s of October, 1960, reached 47 for a gain of 8⅜ points from the preceding week's low price of 38⅝.

United States Bonds Higher.

In the domestic group, United States obligations held the spotlight. Their price tone was firm and trading was in fairly large volume. The treasury 3⅜ per cent issues attracted considerable institutional buying, $1,000,000 face amount of bonds changing hands in a single transaction during the week.

Industrial and railroad bonds showed considerable strength, and the utilities moved up a small fraction on the averages.

HIGHER PRICES OF HOGS INCREASE YARDS BUSINESS

East St. Louis, Ill., July 10.—(AP)—Firmness in the prices of hogs during the last six weeks has resulted in increased business of from 30 to 50 per cent at the National Stockyards here, with shippers receiving between $600,000 and $1,000,000 more than they would have received before the upturn in the market, it was estimated today, with figures based on stockyard records.

During the last few days hog prices have been the highest for the year and range about 50 per cent above the low price established during the latter part of May. The prevailing range today was $3.75 to $5.25 per hundred pounds, compared with a range of $2.35 to $3.30 for May 23.

Prices of cattle also have shown consistent firmness, today's top price for prime steers being $9 per hundred pounds compared with $7.25 a month ago.

AMERICAN POWER EARNING AT RATE OF $1.41 A SHARE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—The report of the American Power and Light company for the twelve months ended on May 31 shows a net income of $18,335,101, equal after preferred dividends to $1.41 a share on 3,013,812 common shares, against $15,621,058, or $2.50 a share, for the preceding year. Surplus after all dividends was $353,924, against $3,138,429.

Operating revenues of subsidiaries were $79,925,455, against $85,632,773, and net revenues were $42,531,911, against $44,452,947. Balance to the parent company after other income, depreciation, underlying charges, and preferred dividends and minority interest was $15,756,365, against $18,366,846, and total income was $16,695,643, against $19,183,284.

The pamphlet report of the company for 1931 gives previously published information on operations and in addition gives a consolidated balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1931, showing total assets of $829,225,815. Current assets were $42,706,493, including $11,695,434 cash, $1,303,019 acceptances and treasury bills, $1,300,000 time deposits, and $594,803 municipal short term securities. Current liabilities were $21,946,777.

Canadian Wheat Crop May Set New Record

A western Canadian elevator operator after a motor trip of 3,000 miles through the main wheat producing areas of the prairie provinces says western Canada is making a sensational come back from drought conditions of last year and is in line for the second largest crop in history.

Alberta, he adds, probably will break a new all time record for wheat production in that province. "Taking into consideration the general rains we have had throughout the west during the past week," he says, "I believe our production will run better than 450,000,000 bushels and with favorable conditions between now and completion of threshing might make as high as 540,000,000 bushels."

The estimated range in Alberta is 175,000,000 to 200,000,00 bu, Manitoba, 45,000,000 to 50,000,000 bu; Saskatchewan, 235,000,000 to 275,000,000 bu.

BOND ISSUE OF CONSUMERS TO BE REFINANCED

Skyscraper Fails to Pay Interest.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization plans for the $1,855,000 first mortgage leasehold bonds secured by the twenty-one story Consumers building at the northwest corner of State and Quincy streets have been made public by M. E. Greenebaum Jr., vice president of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, which underwrote the original issue of $2,300,000 of 6½ per cent bonds in November, 1924. The ninety-nine year leasehold estate and the Consumers building are owned by the Kesner Realty trust, of which Jacob L. Kesner is the head. No bondholders protective committee is contemplated, the Greenebaum Sons Investment company acting as reorganization managers.

JACOB L. KESNER.

"The earnings of the property for the year ending Dec. 31, 1931, after allowance for taxes, ground rent and operating expenses, showed a net income of $37,468 available to pay interest amounting to $123,037," said Mr. Greenebaum. "In addition, $95,000 of bonds matured during the year. Default in the payment of interest occurred May 1, 1932. The final maturity date of the original issue is Nov. 1, 1939.

Exchange for Income Bonds.

"Under the plan of reorganization, the bonds are called for deposit with the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The bondholders will receive new 5 per cent income bonds, par for par, in exchange for their present bonds. All surplus earnings above the 5 per cent interest shall be used each year to retire the new bonds, which will mature on May 1, 1947. Thus all of the net income from the property will go to the bondholders.

"The new bonds will be made by a corporation, the capital stock of which will be deposited and pledged as additional security for the bondholders until all of the new bonds have been paid. In addition, the new bonds will bear the personal guarantee of Jacob L. Kesner and also the guarantee of the Kesner Realty trust, as does the present issue."

The land under the Consumers building comprises three parcels, all leased for ninety-nine years by the State and Quincy Building corporation, the stock of which is owned by the Kesner Realty trust. One parcel was leased from Charles F. Gunther on June 1, 1909, at an annual ground rental of $20,000. Another was leased from Antoinette K. Dangeler and Elizabeth C. Hamill at $35,000 annually. The third was from Philetus W. Gates at $16,000. The total ground rent, therefore, is $71,000 annually. The property fronts 82½ feet on State and 144 on Quincy.

6300 Kenmore Avenue.

Title to the 6300 Kenmore avenue apartments, at the northwest corner of Kenmore and Rosemont avenues, has been conveyed by the Foreman State Trust & Savings bank, trustee, to William M. Richards, assistant secretary to the H. O. Stone & Co. bondholders' protective committee. The property is to be reorganized through a liquidation trust if a necessary loan can be negotiated.

Ninety per cent of the bonds have been deposited. The original H. O. Stone & Co. issue was for $250,000, since reduced to $228,750. The building contains forty-two suites, twos, threes and fours. Chester R. Davis of the Chicago Title & Trust company is receiver.

Another step in the reorganization of the Beacon Manor apartments, at the northwest corner of Wilson avenue and Beacon street, was taken when Robert E. Straus conveyed title by quitclaim deed to the Beacon Manor Building corporation, the common stock in which is held by the depositing bondholders. The four story building contains six stores and twenty-four apartments of one, two and three rooms. This was an S. W. Straus & Co. issue of $325,000, since reduced to $214,000.

GAIN IN SUGAR PRICE IS TO EAST WHAT HOG ADVANCE IS TO WEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—The sustained upward trend in sugar prices of all classifications has been the most sensational development in local commodity markets in the last several weeks—one which parallels the meteoric rally in hog prices in the middle west.

While it is true that New York hardly expects to ride to prosperity on a "lump of sugar" as the west is reported to be expecting it on the "back of a hog," it is nevertheless true that local traders are highly enthusiastic over the rapid correction in sugar prices and are inclined to regard it as one of the most hopeful signs in many months.

Last week was the fifth consecutive week during which sugar prices have gone steadily upwards, moving forward almost every day with the exception of a few instances of profit taking and hedge selling. In that time the price of raw sugar has nearly doubled, moving up from 0.57 cents a pound early in June to 1.05 cents a pound, exclusive of the 2 cent duty, late last week.

ONE LONG VISTA OF STOP LIGHTS IN WALL STREET

Traders Find Little Cheer in News.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—An unending vista of stop lights confronts the stock market speculator as he peers into the new week for some sign whereby to mark his course. Business is still at rock bottom. Steel operations are at a new ebb; commodity prices are still dragging the lower levels; carloadings remain "off"; banks are still blowing up; taxes are going higher and incomes lower.

Wall street, truth to tell, is about the gloomiest spot on the habitable globe these days. The skyscrapers that overhang the old canyon seem to loom just a little taller than ever, shutting out every last ray of sunshine that used to find its way down. One breathes easier upon leaving the district, even though it be to dive into a subway jam with the mercury up in the stifling nineties.

Lausanne Fails to Cheer.

Even the Lausanne reparations decision on which market appraisers had hung such store failed to draw a smile. Traders were so downcast over the adverse factors in the domestic situation they overlooked the bet entirely. Maybe the development would have some good effect in restoring stricken world credit in the sweet bye and bye, they guessed, but there are other things to think about just now. Congress and its fondness for the old pork barrel for instance; the notions entertained by one of the major presidential candidates about the electric power industry—anything but these so-called constructive offerings in a time like this. It's the Wall street way and "that's an end to it"—apparently.

There are those—apologists—who insist that sentiment down there has become a little more cheerful during the last week as a result of the Lausanne development, but evidence to support the contention is difficult to ferret out. Certainly the stock market's course has not furnished it. Every trading session has seen its fat quota of new lows for the bear market recorded, with demand growing less and less noticeable. Only 3,080,199 shares were traded in during the entire week—Monday of course, being a holiday—as compared with a total of 9,803,841 for the corresponding week a year ago, itself an extremely dull week as compared with activity during the Hoover debt moratorium rally which had just preceded it.

Prices at Lows.

The week-end found prices around the extreme lows of June 1, with numerous erstwhile trading favorites resting on brand new bottoms. At that the net changes of the week were almost negligible, thanks to the drying up of forced liquidation and diminished business generally. A study of the averages, in fact, shows that the market has been dragging along on about the same levels for a good two weeks. Some market letter writers find reasons for encouragement in the phenomenon, holding that the adherence of the list to the same level for so long indicates that prices may be "stabilized" for the time being at least. It has been the longest period of stability, at any rate witnessed since the major decline got under way back in 1929.

Rumors have been going the rounds during the last few days that "something bullish" was in the offing—just what, deponents sayeth not—and traders out for profits on a turn have been keeping their weather eyes peeled for a long hoped for rally. If one be on the way, however, it is too effectually camouflaged to be detected at the moment.

WAR LOAN PLAN BOOSTS DISCOUNT RATES IN LONDON

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 10.—One effect of the war loan scheme has been to strengthen discount rates. Now that it is known that the war loan is to be paid off next December, that stock acquires a very definite value to the money market. It is equivalent to a short dated bond, giving much better return than can be obtained on ordinary bills. Consequently, the demand for bills has fallen and large money market purchases of war loan stock have been made, with discount rates, therefore, rising, while war loan stock was receiving a strong support at a time when sales were heavy by those who were not converting.

The government, however, has intimated that it disapproves of further large money market purchases of war loan stock. It considers that these may prejudice the result of the conversion plan, and such purchases are now much smaller. But the market rate for treasury bills has been lifted from less than three-fourths of 1 per cent to nearly 1 per cent. Credit supplies remain very plentiful at less than 1 per cent, although large movements are occurring in connection with the heavy turnover in securities.

Chicago District Electric Generating.

Will you please give me information on the preferred stock and bonds of Chicago District Electric Generating corporation?—C. M.

Chicago District Electric Generating company was incorporated in 1926 as State Line Generating company. It furnishes electric power at wholesale to Commonwealth Edison company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Northern Indiana Public Service company, and Interstate Public Service company, which own all the common stock.

The controlling companies have entered into contracts whereby they agree to take all the company's output at a price sufficient to pay taxes, depreciation charges, operating costs [except cost of fuel consumed], plus an amount not to exceed 8 per cent of the company's investment, regardless of the amount of electricity furnished.

Operating revenues in 1931 were $6,445,000 and net income was $1,006,000, or $30.12 per preferred share. Fixed charges were earned 1.88 times. Operating revenues in 1930 were $6,593,000, and net income was $182,000. There were no preferred shares outstanding in 1930. Fixed charges were earned 1.10 times.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $4,610,000, and current liabilities were $1,292,000.

There are outstanding 33,388 shares of no par preferred. Funded debt consists of $15,000,000 first 4½s, due 1970; $2,250,000 first 6s, due 1961, and $2,000,000 5½ per cent debentures, due Oct. 1, 1935. The mortgage provides that additional bonds may be issued under certain circumstances.

Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

I have a life insurance policy in Mutual Life of New York. Like other people, I have seen my real estate, bonds, and stocks become of little value. Now my insurance is the best thing I have and I don't want to lose it. How do you consider this company?—W. T. M.

Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, incorporated in 1842, is one of the oldest and largest mutual life insurance companies in the world. Total admitted assets at the close of 1931 were more than one billion 106 million dollars, and insurance in force was four billion 450 million dollars.

The company has had a steady growth under able management. Expenses are low and the mortality rate is favorable.

On Dec. 31, 1931, 1 per cent of total admitted assets was real estate, 25 per cent mortgage loans, 18 per cent policy loans, 47 per cent bonds [carried on amortized basis], 2 per cent stocks, and 1 per cent cash.

Total income in 1931 was $224,926,000, and disbursements, including $45,988,000 dividends to policy holders, were $183,273,000.

It enjoys an excellent reputation.

BANKERS WAIT FOR U. S. PACTS ON WAR DEBTS

Recall Borah Remarks on Europe's Problems.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—[Special.]—The agreement just signed at Lausanne for a final and reasonable settlement of the reparations problem was regarded in Wall street as accomplishing the first half of a great task. The second half, the readjustment of the war debts owed to this country, has yet to be tackled.

The stock market's apathetic response to the Lausanne agreement was explained as due largely to the belief in the financial district that it will be even more difficult to secure an early adjustment of the war debts than it was to settle the reparations problem.

Await Election Results.

While it is recognized that little can be done until after the election, leading bankers are confident that the general public is slowly recognizing that the debt problem should be settled.

Opposition to the revision of the war debts in this country has been based on two main theses: First, that so long as Europe was unable to settle the question of reparations, European nations could not expect this country to aid them by the cancellation or reduction of their war debts. Second, that the wiping out of the war debts would leave the American taxpayer to bear the whole burden of the cost of the war.

Recall Borah's Speech.

The first of these arguments was summed up by Senator Borah last April in a speech to the senate in which he said:

"If Europe cannot solve the reparations problem . . . it is useless to talk to the American taxpayer about aiding Europe by canceling debts and equally useless to talk to the American banker about lending more money to Europe. . . .

"I do not know whether the reparations question can be settled or not. I do not know whether armaments can be reduced or not . . . but we do know that, until these things are settled, the United States is powerless to aid in the readjustment of conditions in Europe."

Bankers here expressed the view last week that discussions of the war debt question from now on are likely to be based entirely on a business viewpoint.

RAPS GUARANTEE SCHEME AS A CURE FOR BANKING ILLS

That sound banking principles and practice rather than guarantee of bank deposits by the government is the solution for this country's banking problems is the contention emphasized by Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, in his monthly analysis of current business trends.

Explaining his stand against the proposed bank deposit guarantee law, Mr. Heimann states that "if one would appraise the workings of such a law he should journey to the various states which have attempted to substitute such legislation for sound economic management. A law of this nature has a tendency to put a premium upon the introduction into the banking business of incompetents; bad banking would be the natural and inevitable result. Proper principles of credit would not be applied in banking, and the deluded depositor would be lulled into a false sense of security.

"Sound banking must emerge from this present economic crisis, but it will never emerge through a bank guarantee law by the government. It is important to emphasize that those of our leaders who believe that such legislation is the answer to bank credit control are motivated by a misunderstanding that is working untold hardship upon the American people in bank credit as in commercial credit. In both of these it is the human factor, which is primarily important."

As to the human factor, Mr. Heimann declares that "it behooves every man to ask whether, after all, this lack of confidence during the depression has not been largely due to the fact that men have banked on collateral rather than character; on balance sheets rather than on balanced judgment; upon mortgages rather than morals; upon printed bonds rather than human bonds. While it is true that not all credit managers of commercial concerns are blameless in the distortion of credit, it is also true that the almost total absence of inventory inflation to the extent that it existed in 1920 and 1921 indicates an abundance of sound judgment in the extension of commercial credit. Unfortunately this does not hold true relative to many other types of credit. In too many cases there has been insufficient analysis of the integrity and character and ability of the one to whom credit was extended."

Wall Street Discusses Telephone Dividend Future

New York, July 10.—(AP)—Though the dividend meeting is about a month away, discussion on the possibility of a reduction in the $9 annual rate of American Telephone and Telegraph was renewed in brokerage circles last week as a result of the continued pressure on the stock. At its low for the week the shares showed a yield of more than 12 per cent.

FARM PRODUCT PRICES HIGHER ON THE HOOF

Live Stock Advance Adds to Hopes.

New York, July 10.—(AP)—An advance in a few important commodity prices, implying increased purchasing power for at least a portion of the nation's farming community, furnished the brightest spot in the past week's business news.

Meanwhile, the heavier industries continued to lag, a tendency that was influenced by the Fourth of July holiday period. Automobile output dropped to an estimated total of 50,958 cars in the week ended July 2, against 54,577 the week before; steel operations fell to a new low level, standing at 12 per cent of capacity on July 5, and car loadings for the week ended June 29 dipped 19,600 from the preceding week to a total of 498,799—the lowest since the Decoration day week.

Production Still Slow.

Retail trade likewise continued to bump along the low levels of late June, causing Dun's to comment that "it is believed that production generally in most of the basic industries will continue at less than half normal capacity."

With many commodities now selling at bare cost of production, and some of them actually lower, the upturn in a fairly wide list last week caused considerable encouragement. After allowing for the important part normally played by seasonal influences, the annalist index increased to $1.2 as of July 5, against 90.6 the week before, and 87.3 when a new post-war low was established on June 14.

Gains in Several Lines.

Gains predominated in cotton, crude petroleum, live stock and meat divisions, more than offsetting losses in the grain, refining gasoline and spot hides divisions.

The hog market was the cause of considerable enthusiasm. Late in the week a further rally carried average hog prices to $5 per hundredweight. Last week the average had been around $4.70 and at their low point in June prices had established an average of around $3.

An aftermath of the Chicago convention of the Democratic party was reflected in the publication of electric power production statistics for the week ended July 2. The total stood at 1,456,961,000 kilowatt hours against 1,440,541,000 the week before.

Approximately one-half of this gain, which covers the nation as a whole, was contributed by the Chicago district in which the Democratic delegates consumed the midnight juice freely and, on one historic occasion, spent the entire night in the convention hall.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE SHORT INTEREST IS LARGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 10.—The short interest in the New York Stock exchange was increased 71,150 shares last month to 2,131,783 shares, according to statistics issued by the exchange after the close of the market Saturday. This is the smallest change in the size of the short interest for any month since May, 1931, when the exchange began to make public these figures. Fluctuations from day to day in the size of the short interest were negligible in June indicating that the operations of bears were at the lowest point of any month in more than two years. During May the short interest had been reduced 617,801 shares; in April it had been cut 521,237 shares, and in March it had increased 176,522 shares.

The decline in short selling operations last month was attended by a smaller decline in stock market averages than in the preceding three months. In June THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of fifty stocks declined 3.26 points; in May it declined 10.32; in April, 15.49, and in March, 8.88.

Ask Over Million on Bank Stocks' Double Liability

Toledo, O., July 10.—Suit to collect $1,193,523 in double liability from 156 stockholders of the closed Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company has been filed in Commons Pleas court here by C. F. Carr, assistant to Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, in behalf of Ira J. Fulton, state superintendent of banks. The consolidated suit was filed after stockholders had been given opportunity by the state banking department to pay or put up collateral to cover their claims. As a result, collections in liability at the Ohio bank have passed the $820,000 mark and about $1,000,000 of double liability claims have been secured by collateral.

Trade Association Heads Will Meet in September

The part trade associations may be expected to play in the changing economic and financial American business scene will be the central theme of a four day convention of the American Trade association executives which will be held at the Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, Sept. 14 to 17, according to the program made public by W. J. Donald, chairman of the convention and program committee of the association. Those attending the meetings—the thirteenth annual congress of the organization—will comprise executives from associations of every important industry in the United States, according to Mr. Donald.

HOGS AND PRODUCT HIGHER

In the provision market there is a situation not known in many years. Hogs have advanced almost $2.00 from the recent low point to a top of around $5.50. Receipts are not heavy enough to cause the trade uneasiness. Distributors are buying the best trade in years. Pork loins which sold in February at 8c and 10c for desirable weights are hard to buy at less than 20@21c lb. This puts them on a basis relatively higher than dressed beef or dressed lamb. It is the first time in more than a year that live stock raisers are getting a profit and it will put the industry in better shape.

At the close prices were almost the highest of the week and for the season with lard up 25@35c for the week. Bellies have had an unusual advance being up 40c for July and 62½c for September compared with a week ago. Packers have taken practically all the bellies offered for several months. Prices for the week follow:

	High.	Low.	Past wk.	Prev. wk.	Last yr.
Lard.
July	$4.97½	$4.72½	$4.90	$4.55	$7.85
Sept.	5.00	4.85	4.90	4.85	7.85
Oct.	4.97½	4.87½	4.82½	4.57	7.75
Jan.	4.87½	4.50	4.50	4.40	....
